Major Changes Coming School Boards Warned

'Heed Or Pay' —Sharp

By VICTOR J. MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Canadians were faced today with an appeal from Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp to work with the government to hold down costs and prices or face the alternative of a stiff rise in taxes.

Inflationary pressures are rapidly gaining momentum again in the country. Prices and costs are soaring. The federal government has embarked on a determined campaign to curb the increases. It needs the help of business, industry and labor to exercise "restraint," said the minister.

He bluntly warned that if inflationary pressures continue at their present rate the government will have to step in and forcibly bring about deflation. He implied that tax increases would be Ottawa's weapon.

Later in a television interview he acknowledged that higher taxes were the implication but said he hesitated to attach such a threat to his appeal for co-operation in combatting inflation.

MAJOR SPEECH

In a wide-ranging major speech on the economy of the country during the resumed budget debate Wednesday Mr. Sharp said if Canadians cannot collectively and individually restrain costs and prices a "cooling-off period" would be imposed.

The budget debate continued today. A vote on the New Democratic Party amendment, which constitutes a want-of-confidence vote, will take place tonight.

The minister outlined his proposed actions as follows

1—Holding down the budget deficit to his already forecast $740,000,000 and the government limiting its demands on the capital market.

2—Already slashed from the estimated expenditures of the governmental departments has been $650,000,000. The slashing will continue, he promised, to try to achieve balance in national accounts in 1968-69.

3—Ottawa will ask for the continued co-operation of the provinces and municipalities in the anti-inflation drive.

4—The federal government is appealing to industrial and labor organizations to organize a campaign to hold down increases in costs and prices, exercising restraint and curbing demands for wage raises.

TOUGH LANGUAGE

Mr. Sharp's appeal and warning to Canadians was couched in some of the toughest language he has used since assuming office. It drew jibes from opposition members that the government had been "free spending", but Mr. Sharp snapped back that it was slashing estimated expenditures. He urged the opposition to assist by not demanding bigger spending programs.

He revised upwards his forecast of growth in the Gross National Product from 6⅔ per cent to 7 per cent or slightly more. He admitted that this implied an undesirable increase in prices.

He forecast next year consumer demands will increase more strongly than this year. But government demands for goods and services would go up less this year.

Later in a TV interview talking about cutting back expenditures Mr. Sharp invited the provincial governments to postpone implementation of medicare. He acknowledged that if the provinces go ahead with medicare, scheduled for July 1, higher taxes will result.

"The problem that we face — and this is the first time in our history that we have ever faced any problem like this — are

U.S. ASTRONAUT KILLED IN SMALL PLANE CRASH

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — An astronaut died today in the crash of a T-38 jet plane near Tallahassee, Fla., the Manned Spacecraft Centre said. His name was not at once disclosed.

The plane was returning to Houston from Cape Kennedy, Fla.

MASKED RAIDERS GET $1.5 MILLION

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Five armed bandits raided the palatial seaside estate of Willis Harrington du Pont early today, bound the family and servants, and looted the house of a $1,500,000 Russian coin collection and some $34,000 worth of jewelry and cash.

Du Pont said the bandits told him they would hold the rare coin collection for $200,000 ransom. He at first estimated the worth of the collection at $500,000 but later increased the value.

Du Pont, 31, said the bandits entered the two-storey house shortly after midnight. "They woke us up, tied us and started ransacking the house," he said. "I think they were basically after cash."

OPENED SAFE

Du Pont said the robbers discovered his coin collection after they found 1,000 silver dollars in his safe, which he said he opened for them after being threatened.

Du Pont told police he and his family were herded into an upsairs bedroom while the masked bandits rummaged the house.

Police said du Pont, his wife Miren, 29, and their four-year-old son, Victor, were upstairs when the bandits entered the mansion, which has nine bedrooms and 19 baths. The robbers bound the family and brought in the butler, Hans Hein, 55, and his wife, Rosa, 50.

The bandits left a $10,000 bill on the floor of the bedroom.

Du Pont said it had been in the safe with the silver dollars and he didn't know if the bandits left it through carelessness or because it would be hard to cash.

During their looting of the huge estate which fronts on Biscayne Bay in the Coconut Grove area, the bandits took a roast from a refrigerator and consumed it, along with soft drinks.

'MOMENTOUS STEP'

Key Policy Shift Begins Real Constitution Reform

By PETER NEWMAN

OTTAWA — The long painful process of fundamentally reworking Canada's constitution — the legal framework within which we live and govern ourselves — has begun in earnest.

Confirmation of this momentous step came today in a service club speech delivered in Quebec City by Maurice Sauve, the federal minister of forestry and one of Quebec's senior representatives in the federal cabinet.

Newman

In his speech, which was read and approved beforehand both by Prime Minister Pearson and Justice Minister Trudeau, Sauve invited the provinces to open all of their constitutional problems to negotiation with Ottawa "even, if desired, the most sensitive such as the future status of Quebec in the Canadian Confederation."

NEW POSITION

What makes Sauve's speech so important is that it's a marked departure from Ottawa's previous staunchly held position that constitutional changes should proceed in orderly progression from the relatively uncomplicated matter of winning approval for provincial adoption of a bill of rights, to the more fundamental questions of Canada's future existence.

Now, accorddin to Sauve, there no longer are any "constitutional subjects which can be declared axiomatically beyond the bounds of discussion."

He came back to this point over and over again in his speech ("It is not the policy of the federal government to place any restrictions on the extent or subject matter of a constitutional conference"). He even attacked the British North America Act as being "in many ways old-fashioned, misleading, ambiguous and incomplete."

NO CONTRADICTION

Only a month ago, in Quebec City during a press conference that followed his address to the Canadian Bar Association, Justice Minister Trudeau declared that Ottawa was not prepared to negotiate the question of the fundamental relationship between Quebec and the rest of the country.

The Sauve speech contradicts none of Trudeau's contentions, but it takes the great Confederation debate considerably closer to the moment of truth.

HE'LL BE PURRING AGAIN SOON, SAY DOCTORS

Paul Getting Tune-Up After Oil Change

BOURNEMOUTH, England (AP)—Little Paul Pennington thinks he's an automobile, so when he came home feeling ill Wednesday his mother took him to the local garage for an oil check.

Yep—two-year-old Paul had topped himself up with a pint of upper cylinder lubricant.

Now he's in hospital getting drained and the doctors said he should be ticking over smoothly again in a couple of days.

Where Paul found the oil nobody knows. But his engine was in a pretty sticky state when he got home after a spin around the block.

"He just stood at the door covered in oil from head to foot," said Mrs. Anne Pennington, 24. "It was dripping from his mouth. He said he had a tummy ache and wanted to go to sleep.

"I rushed him to the garage because I wanted to find out whether the oil was poisonous. I didn't want to make a fuss if it was harmless. The garage people took one look at Paul and called an ambulance."

Doctors at Christchurch Hospital quickly reassured her that Paul is cranking back to health without the oil.

"What a relief," sighed Mrs. Pennington. "You never know what's going to happen when your son is a car."

SHARP OPENS DOOR

Another Delay For Medicare?

By VICTOR J. MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Medicare means higher taxes.

That was the message loud and clear that Finance Minister Sharp conveyed outside the Commons after his speech Wednesday night on the state of the economy.

Elaborating on the government's plans to cut down unnecessary expenditures and do away with obsolete programs, the minister said during a nation-wide television program the government had made good progress in cutting expenditures and it might be possible to avoid a tax increase.

"But so much depends upon, for instance, the progress, or at least the intentions of the provinces with respect to medicare, which is a great uncertainty," Mr. Sharp said.

SERIOUS PROBLEMS

The finance minister opened the door wide for the provincial governments to indicate they do not want to proceed on July 1, 1968 with the implementation of medicare. He said the provincial governments have a very serious financial program.

"I think it might be a very useful thing to do to sit down with the provinces and talk about this common problem of how best we can bring into effect the medicare program that parliament wants, that I personally want, and that I think would be very good," said Mr. Sharp.

He noted that one province; Saskatchewan, already has a medicare program in effect. It was introduced by the former CCF administration in 1962. Under the federal medicare plan if a province agrees to go ahead with medicare Ottawa will pay one-half the costs. The starting date was to have been July 1, 1967, but that was postponed one year because of the inflationary pressures at work in the economy last year.

It was suggested to Mr. Sharp that in view of his urgent appeal to business, industry and labor to exercise restraint to try to bring down rising costs and prices, he must feel that postponing the effective date of medicare again would be a good move.

The provinces could take the government off the hook of its commitment to proceed with medicare by unanimously agreeing to set back medicare.

Mr. Sharp replied that "if the provinces felt they could assume their share of the burden . . . I would consider that had high priority."

Mr. Sharp said the federal government is under some obligation to assist Saskatchewan which has complied with the requirements of the medicare legislation.

Mr. Sharp said that if the other provinces decided they do not want to proceed immediately with medicare, "we would have no objection. We're not going to blackmail them into it."

Bonner Hits 'Gross Errors' Of Liberals

Attorney-General Robert Bonner said Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp's proposed cutbacks admit the government has made a shambles of the economy.

Mr. Bonner added bitterly that it was largely the fault of Liberal partisanship which was being repeated by Mr. Sharp.

"It's evident that the financial policies of the national government have been in gross error for the past two or three years," he said in commenting on Mr. Sharp's Commons speech.

He recalled his complaint three years ago that the national medicare plan was revealed at a federal-provincial conference in 1963 "as nothing but window dressing for the Liberal (election) compaign that was impending.

'SHOCKING'

"The most shocking statement, if Mr. Sharp has been correctly reported, is that although they now admit it was a mistake, they are nevertheless making an exception for Saskatchewan—which just happens to be in the midst of an election where the Liberal party has troubles of its own."

(He was referring to Mr. Sharp's statement that if there is a delay in implementing the national medicare plan next year, Saskatchewan would still be entitled to the appropriate federal sharing of costs because it already has a suitable medicare plan in operation.)

"This statement demonstrates again that the Liberals have national policies which have been selectively applied, but seldom to this province's benefit," Mr. Bonner said.

"If the public of this province is not sufficiently alive to our (Socred Cabinet) view in this regard, then I suppose they have the democratic right to suffer further at the hands of this Ottawa administration."

"Three years ago I deplored Dominion-provincial conferences which have been called for the sake of Liberal party propaganda.

"That was the case in that (1963) conference and it is the case in the present proposed constitutional conference as well."

However, Mr. Bonner hinted that the B.C. government will respond to Mr. Sharp's hint he would be happy to see the pro-

PETERSON

Eight Point Plan

By JOHN MIKA
Times Legislative Reporter

Education Minister Leslie Peterson today revealed a massive shift in government policy towards school financing and administration is under way which shake things up even more than the Chant royal commission report did to classroom programs in 1960.

In a series of announcements and warnings during his 6,000-word speech to the annual B.C. School Trustees Association convention in Vancouver:

- He feels schools should be in operation on a year-round basis with some of their facilities — such as libraries, business machines and industrial training machines — available to the community on a round-the-clock basis if need be;
- To revamp the "antiquated" system of idle schools for two months each year. A wide-ranging study of the length of the school year, daily hours and holidays will be launched soon;
- A serious argument is under way with Ottawa over jurisdiction and financing of manpower training and the province is prepared to undertake the costs of going it alone in adult education if the quarrel can't be resolved;
- Henceforth all non-shareable costs in school referendums will have to be financed by school boards themselves floating loans directly on the money market — which would almost rule out any possibility of Greater Victoria School Board repeating last year's $742,000 referendum for several new schools which did not get departmental approval;

MILL RATES

- The government is considering making school trustees directly responsible for fixing school mill rates instead of municipal councils although one specially-devised tax notice and collection system would continue;
- A study will be made aimed at standardizing all school construction to cut building unit costs and if it comes up with an answer all other government departments may copy it for their building programs;
- The present system of teacher salary grants to school boards may be revised drastically;
- A study for wholesale changes to the teacher certification system is under way to enable the province to deal rationally with the need for mass importation of qualified teachers and self-improvement programs for native teachers as a method of meeting the needs of a galloping school population.

And studded throughout the speech were warnings that it is essential to reduce per-pupil costs or the whole financial

Lonborg Blanks Cardinals

BOSTON (UPI) — Lanky Jim Lonborg pitched a masterful one-hitter and Carl Yastrzemski drove in four runs with a pair of homers today to give the Boston Red Sox a 5-0 victory over the St. Louis Cards in the second game of the World Series and tie the series at one game each.

The series now moves to St. Louis for the third game Saturday.

Lonborg, who pitched the American league pennant-winning game for Boston last Sunday, came close to becoming the second pitcher in history to hurl a no-hitter in the series. Don Larsen of the New York Yankees did it in 1956 with a perfect game.

Lonborg's bid for a no-hitter was ended with two out in the eighth inning when Julian Javier of the Cardinals lashed a line-drive double into the left field corner of Fenway Park.

ONE OTHER RUNNER

Lonborg allowed only one other runner, on a walk.

Yastrzemski, the American league's "triple crown" batting champion, supplied Boston's first run with a base-empty homer in the fourth inning off starter Dick Hughes and then crashed a three-run homer in the seventh into a light rain off reliever Joe Hoerner after Jose Tartabull had walked and Dalton Jones had singled.

The Sox picked up another run, an unearned one, in the sixth inning. With one out Hughes walked both George Scott and Reggie Smith and the bases became loaded when third baseman Mike Shannon, fumbled Jerry Adair's hard grounder for an error.

Ron Willis relieved Hughes at that point but Rico Petrocelli drove in Boston's second run with a sacrifice fly to centre before Willis fanned Lonborg to end the inning.

FIRST RACE—Some interesting shuffling in post positions among the speed horses here. Ready Freddy moves inside; Coquahalla and Cocoa Silk go outside. Only Coquahalla seems dogged but with the other two pushing him early he could have his hands full. Western Shadow may be able to tuck in behind the leaders, waiting until they run themselves dizzy before making his thrust. My Madronna has a good late run but needs clear sailing. Conibhai has a look despite the outside . . . WESTERN SHADOW, My Madronna, Coquahalla.

SECOND RACE — Concise Answer may run out of excuses here. He's been all around the money but something always pops up ahead of him. His style demands stout navigating but he'll seldom find an easier spot. Lady of Kent came to life in her last and will be a better price than Concise Answer. The rest dont inspire much' confidence; Yansco, Takavich, Miss Mystic and Easy Anna have shown brief speed at times—very brief and infrequently . . . CONCISE ANSWER, Lady of Kent, Takavich.

THIRD RACE — Mister Hawk and El Tajo drew ideal posts for their getaway styles. The former has run porly on off tracks which contradicts the concept that Dark Hawk horses like mud. But he obviously prefers sprints and is stubborn. Serenade in Red goes either way—in front or from out of it — and should be tighter today. Inconnu and Short Circuit were Derby nominees and would probably appreciate the Derby distance more than this sprint. But they close crisply and the rider switch to Harris may be meaningful to Short Circuit's chances. Peace-Man steps up but he was beaten by a good one and has won more money than anything here . . . SHORT CIRCUIT, Peace-Man, Inconnu.

FOURTH RACE — If Parisienne Pixie can draw clear—as she might—the others will have to roll up their sleeves if they want the pot. Mobil Maid can also ramble but Frazier may have to use up a lot of fuel from the outside. Sikanni Chief should improve and is in good hands but meets tougher. Velvet Morn has had traffic problems but she can sizzle late. Dark Susan belongs. Jayie finished strongly and may be better than his form indicates. Chase trys everything, off his Aug. 5 sprint he's in business . . . PARISIENNE PIXIE, Velvet Morn, Sikanni Chief.

FIFTH RACE—It will be interesting to see who elects to go for the lead since most of these like to wait-and-see. Heather W is 1-2-1 and looks like the one to whip. Wonder Cross and Shadows Sake come from out of it; the latter may have needed her last and may be rougher today. Haigla made a bold move sprinting and then hung; his best puts him close. Jayleen is the mudlark but she's been sprinting. Fleet Brother didn't care for the slop; off his June 2 route try he's a possibility at a price . . . HEATHER W, Shadows Sake, Jayleen.

SIXTH RACE — Murrayville may open up on these but whether Phillips can coax him the distance is problematical. Hi-Ma-Dan sheds five pounds and seems to take a new lease on life at Sandown. Tuffins knocks hard in this class and hasn't been overraced. Grand Idea gets Harris but doesn't seem as keen as he was earlier. Royal Kimbo should like the going and the boy trys hard. Famous Bayboy is the local Silky Sullivan; he gets so far back you need high-powered lenses to find him. But his late run is something—and looks even better if the pace is staggering . . . HI-MA-DAN, Famous Bayboy, Tuffins.

SEVENTH RACE—Swan Lady loves the drippy going, the track and is quick away. Miss Cye C leaves the gate like a scared rabbit but doesn't seem partial to mud. Trusteen has met better and switches to Frazier who gets, a lot of run out of them. Hay Billy can lay close and is all heart where it counts—near the finish. But Copper Prince may be the one to fear. Shields should be able to save ground and may come on when it matters. In a harem-scarum finish . . . COPPER PRINCE, Swan Lady, Hay Billy.

EIGHTH RACE—With a pace over the track and no Murrayville here, Malheur Kitten may lead them home. Penuelo has early lick and has met better but there's no works shown and he hasn't had a race in a month. Baby Joe may be the most reliable and moves from the outside to the rail. Inner Guard and Speedy Session have some late run and it may be significant that Harris is staying with the former. Souzem is overdue. In a grab-bag . . . MALHEUR KITTEN, Baby Joe, Inner Guard.

What Sauve is saying, in effect, is that the cumbersome and dead-slow orderly progress of constitutional reform, is no longer enough.

At another level, the Sauve declaration is Ottawa's first constructive response to the Robarts Confederation of Tomorrow Conference, planned for Toronto in late November.

The format of constitutional negotiation suggested by Sauve is "a continuing committee of ministers from both the federal and provincial governments, meeting frequently and regularly, working on an agreed agenda."

Although he never makes the comparison, this sounds very much like the tax structure committee, set up at the federal-provincial conference in Quebec City in the winter of 1964.

NEGOTIABLE

The Sauve initiative is based on a new conviction adopted in recent days by the Pearson government: that if Canadian nationhood is to be saved, Ottawa must not appear to be grudging in its constitutional negotiations. Suddenly everything has become negotiable.

It was to help resolve this very situation that the Royal Commission on Bilingualism and Biculturalism was established in the spring of 1963. It is a matter of cold fury to the politicians who now have to deal with these problems, that more than four years and $8,000,000 later, the commission's recommendations are still no available.

The federal ministers from Quebec are determined to erase the image, held so long in their home province, that the central government is capable only of responding to the initiatives of others. For once, they are all working together instead of expending energy fighting each other.

TO PUSH VIEW

All of the French Canadian ministers in the federal cabinet — and it's an impressive roll call — Marchand, Trudeau, Sauve, Pepin, Chretien, Cote and Cadieux — are planning to take part in a concentrated series of speeches and appearances in Quebec over the next six months to push the federal point of view. The whole operation is being carefully coordinated by Marc Lalonde in the prime minister's office.

As Maurice Sauve said in his Quebec City speech: "The issue is survival. Survival of Canada as a country, and the survival of the culture of French Canada."

Soviet Arms

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union has offered to replace the arms Jordan and other Arab states lost in the six-day war with Israel last June, it was announced today.

The statement came in a joint communique issued after King Hussein of Jordan ended military aid talks and flew home. There was no immediate indication Hussin had accepted the offers during two days of talks with President Nikolai Podgorny and Defence Minister Andrei Grechko.

structure of the school system would be undermined by runaway inflation.

On the school year and better use of buildings, he had this to say:

"It is my view that we must find ways and means of ensuring a better and more complete use of school plants.

"I refer not only to buildings but to libraries and the very expensive equipment that we now use in our schools such as business machines and industrial education equipment.

"I see no reason why these should not be used in the evenings as well as throughout the day.

"Indeed, if the demand in a community exists, they should be available on an around-the-clock basis.

ANTIQUATED SYSTEM

"I believe that new developments in education have made the existing prodecure of 10 months of school and two months of summer holiday antiquated.

"In my view, school plants are too costly to be left vacant for one-sixth of the year.

"The traditional reasons for summer holidays rather than holidays at other times of the year are probably disappearing. In any case, the problem bears examination."

As a result, he said, an advisory committee is being set up by his department which would include teachers, trustees and parents for a full examination of the matter.

While these measures would help reduce costs through more effective use of buildings, Mr. Peterson emphasized that building costs must be curbed too by attacking the main sources of rapid increases — "customized" school plans and the jurisdictional gap which permits boards to launch programs without direct responsibility for finding the money.

PER PUPIL COSTS

He pointed out that the cost of building a classroom has risen from $22,000 to $33,000 in the past five years and that the per-pupil costs of school operation have skyrocketed again to $41.51 and $44.82 in the past two years after having been held down to $4.81 in 1960 and only $2.24 in 1961 when the government put strong pressure on school boards to apply brakes to their spending.

Although increases in labor and material costs have raised construction prices, greater productivity also has tended to offset those factors.

"What is adding mostly to costs is not these general factors but the special items that are demanded," he told the trustees who have ordered them.

"For example, there seems to be a general tendency to design schools that incorporate unproven experimental features."

When one baord introduces such a feature, others seem to copy for the sake of prestige, he suggested.

CUSTOM-BUILT

"Another tendency is to 'customize' buildings by introducing innovations which may be more aesthetically pleasing or architecturally interesting than educationally significant."

The study towards standardized construction is a direct result of these tendencies, he revealed.

"The sale of debentures for non-shareable expenditures by the school district capital financing authority has been discontinued; the authority limiting its bond sales to provide for essential, and therefore shareable projects at this time.

"Approval for non-shareable expenditures will be given only with the proviso that the school board concerned arrange for the financing of them through the sale of school district debentures without any provincial guarantee."

On the rising costs of school operating budgets, Mr. Peterson emphasized:

"We cannot justify the annual increases in the cost of education each pupil which have occurred in the past two years."

He said the rate rose twentytold in the past two years and are not warranted.

"The taxpayer has every right to question such increases and ask if, in actual fact, maximum value is being obtained for every school dollar spent," he said.

'HASN'T WORKED'

He said it has been a government objective to give school boards as much financial autonomy as possible while providing as much provincial grants as possible but implied it hasn't worked too well.

He said school boards are the only government level "where the preparation of the budget is divorced from the revenue process.

"Understandably, therefore, there is less restraint to hold budgetted expenditures within the limits of the revenue funds available.

He concluded this portion of his speech with the warning that while current approval powers of municipal councils over school budgets may be withdrawn as trustees have frequently demanded:

"Elimination of this provision will probably mean that each board will have to shoulder the responsibility for setting the local school mill rate."

SERIOUS IMPLICATIONS

Mr. Peterson said the current quarrel with Ottawa over sudden termination last year of its sharing in vocational and technical school costs "has not only serious financial but also education implications."

He said the federal cutoff has thrown the whole vocational program into uncertainty but the B.C. government has decided to continue its same financial support to school district vocational programs in the hope of a new agreement being worked out shortly.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Mainly cloudy skies held temperatures to around 50 above even in the Cariboo Wednesday night. The only exception was the Kootenays where clearing allowed temperatures there to drop to freezing early this morning. The storm off the B.C. coast for the past several days is weakening and rising pressures are expected to bring clearing skies to southern B.C. later today and to northern areas Friday. Temperatures also will show a gradual upward trend Friday.

DECISIVE VOTE

Brown's ECM Plan Wins Party Support

SCARBOROUGH, England (Reuters)—British Labor party members today decisively endorsed the efforts of the Labor government to take the country into the European Common Market.

They also rejected hostile resolutions pressed by anti-marketeers at the party's annual conference here.

The result was considered a major personal triumph for Foreign Secretary George Brown, who suffered a setback Wednesday when the conference rejected his pleas and urged the government to break with U.S. policy in Vietnam.

After an effective though unexciting speech from Brown, the conference approved a policy statement recording its support for Britain's market entry application by a 2-to-1 margin, 4,147,000 votes to 2,032,000.

APPLAUSE HEARD

A burst of applause greeted the result and James Callaghan, chancellor of the exchequer, shook Brown's hand warmly.

Prime Minister Wilson's leadership then got a 1,000,000-vote margin to defeat a resolution insisting upon stringent safeguards for British interests.

Brown said this was so worded that it would, in effect, prevent negotiations from ever starting.

The resolution, sponsored by former cabinet minister Frank Cousins' huge Transport and General Workers Union, was defeated 3,536,000 votes to 2,539,000.

Most of the 6,000 delegates to the party convention are empowered by the members of the unions, or groups, they represent to cast bloc votes in their names. Thus the various counts, totalling millions, affiliated, membership of the Labor movement.

Brown said Britain does not believe its balance of payments is an insurmountable obstacle to joining the market.

"It is a problem and complications will arise, but complications through our balance of payments will arise if we try to stay as we are," the foreign secretary said.

The political case for joining is overwhelming, Brown said. As long as divisions within Western Europe are maintained, it will be difficult if not impossible to end divisions between Western and Eastern Europe, he said.

Brown's speech was designed to persuade the party membership of the need to press for negotiations, despite the reported gloom of some senior ministers over the market's executive commission report on British entry.

Foreign Secretary Brown Draws Spotlight

'Must Accept Me as I Am'

Times News Services

SCARBOROUGH, England — British Foreign Secretary George Brown went on national television Wednesday night to answer demands he be fired for, among other things, his much publicized drinking habits.

Brown answered critics by saying;

"I think the country has to make up its mind whether it will accept me as I am, because there is not the slightest chance of my changing.

"You never get into this kind of situation unless you are partly responsible yourself," Brown said. "On the other hand I feel that the press have gone out to look for anything they can find."

After he stormed out of a dance at the Labor party convention Monday because of the harassment of press photographers, the Daily Morror declared in an editorial:

"The trouble about Mr. George Brown is not that he drinks too much but that he shouldn't drink at all."

"Genial George was born with so much natural ebullicence," said the Mirror, "that all it needs is a splash of soda to make his behavior intolerable."

Young Grit Threatens To Quit

WINNIPEG (CP) — Increased interest rates under the National Housing Act have caused G. Russell Hunt of Winnipeg to lay his party membership and his Manitoba Young Liberal presidency on the line in protest.

In a letter to Labor Minister Nicholson, Mr. Hunt said it appears that "the Liberal party is either no longer in touch with, or no longer cares about its country's average citizen and unless it admits its mistake, I regret to say it is a party with which I no longer wish to be affiliated."

He said the interest increase to 8¼ per cent from 7¼ per cent effective Oct. 1 "will make it impossible for our country's average citizen to purchase a home. . . ."

Mr. Hunt said it appeared the decision was reached "with complete disregard to the far-reaching repercussions that will follow."

'It Takes Time To Disarm' Canada Warns

GENEVA (AP)—Canada today warned critics of the draft treaty to halt the spread of nuclear weapons that they risk sabotaging not only the treaty but also any other disarmament agreement.

Gen. E. L. M. Burns, chief Canadian delegate to the 17-nation disarmament conference, rejected demands by India and other countries that any treaty must be accompanied by disarmament measures from the nuclear powers.

Burns said the nuclear powers must, however, within the next few years, halt the escalation of their stocks of nuclear weapons and begin to reduce their delivery.

"If this does not happen—some of the states with a capacity to make a nuclear weapon are going to decide that extraordinary events have jeopardized their supreme interests."

Under the escape clause in the draft, any state justifying such a claim can withdraw from the treaty.

Burns said that in the state of the world today, getting rid of nuclear weapons will be "a gradual process."

MONTREAL EXASPERATED

Transit Workers Spurn Offer; Mediator Quits

MONTREAL (CP) — Expo 67 and Montreal's exasperated public today begin a third week without bus and subway service, their hopes for an early settlement of the transit workers' strike dashed by Wednesday's turn of events.

A note of cautious optimism crept into an otherwise bleak strike picture late last week when the provincial government announced appointment of a mediator in the dispute between the Montreal Transportation Commission and five unions representing about 6,000 transit employees.

However, Mr. Justice Francois Chevalier quit his post Wednesday night following union rejection of his "final recommendation" for a settlement.

SOLVE OWN PROBLEM

Mr. Justice Chevalier of Quebec Superior Court at Hull told a press conference Wednesday night that the unions, affiliated with the Confederation of National Trade Unions, and the MTC now will have to solve the problems themselves.

Paul Dozois, acting premier in the absence of Premier Daniel Johnson, said in Quebec City Wednesday night that the government is "ready to do what is necessary to bring about a settlement."

He would not say whether the government would act by means of injunction or call a special meeting of the legislature.

Meanwhile taxi drivers, the CNR and the CPR continue to do a rousing trade while Expo, the public and downtown businessmen are taking it on the chin.

The greatest concern, however, centres on the crimp the strike has thrown into the "show of the century"—Expo 67.

The question most often encountered in letters to the editor, private conversations and editorials is: "Why couldn't they have waited until Expo was over to go on strike?"

A letter to the editor of a Montreal newspaper from an irate Toronto resident says the MTC employees must be "among the meanest men who have lived for calling an illegal strike during Expo."

Daily attendance figures at Expo are falling far below originally-predicted figures for this time, and hopes that total attendance would exceed 50,000,000 have been effectively dashed.

The most common mode of transportation to the site now is either by car or by the CNR's special train, which runs every half hour from downtown Central Station to a point near Expo's main gate.

STRIKE LOSSES

Philippe de Gaspe Beaubien, operations manager for Expo, has estimated the fair is losing between $900,000 and $1,000,000 a week in revenues because of the strike.

As far as pedestrians and commuters to downtown offices are concerned, the strike means traffic jams, delays in getting to and from work and general inconvenience.

Car pools have been formed by many groups of persons, while motorists have been reasonably accommodating in picking up hitchhikers, especially during peak traffic periods.

This may not be universally true, however, as Montreal police said last weekend they believed unsuccessful hitchhikers were turning into part-time car thieves.

About 116 parked cars in downtown Montreal were reported stolen last weekend, with about 85 of these being recovered on city streets or somewhere in the country," police said.

FIRST ARMED BANK HOLDUP IN ST. JOHN'S

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — "It was bound to happen as the city grew," said the manager of a local bank that Wednesday fell victim to the first armed bank holdup in the city's history.

An intensive manhunt continued today for the lone bandit.

"We've often sat around and talked about it,", said manager George Hutchings of the downtown branch of the Bank of Montreal where the holdup occurred.

He declined to estimate how much was taken but it was believed the single teller's cash drawer cleaned out contained about $2,000 which the robber stuffed into an attache case before he fled.

The Critical Point

THE NEWS HEADLINES ANNOUNCE that Finance Minister Sharp will give Canadians a choice of cutting back on national expenditures or paying increased taxes. That is not a new choice: it has been before us for a number of years and the invariable response of Canadians — as demonstrated in their actions and their demands on government—has been to continue the spending and hope for the best.

But apparently the critical point against which we have been warned has now arrived. The federal government is being driven by stark necessity to effect drastic cuts in its expenditures, and is appealing to the provinces to do likewise. Mr. Sharp hopes to cut this year's budgetary deficit of $740 million by more than half next year. A national deficit means national borrowing, and the hold-down program of the government will have wide effects on the economy.

Noting the likely result of a change in government policy which would be reflected in a slowdown in production and employment, Mr. Sharp says he would prefer to avoid the sacrifice this would entail. But, he warns, "if we cannot collectively and individually exercise the restraint that is called for in wage and price increases in the present situation, then there would be no escape from an essential cooling-off period."

That has a familiar ring. It is exactly the same appeal which Britain's Prime Minister Wilson put forth nearly two years ago. The British government found that a call for voluntary restrictions on wage and price increases failed to meet the needs of the anti-inflationary drive. The voluntary program was soon followed by the legislated controls on wages and prices which now are causing hot controversy in Britain. Among the calculated effects of Wilson's plan was an increase in unemployment. This has come about — a development which Mr. Sharp also anticipates in his reference to the possible development of "slack" in the economy.

Ottawa says it has trimmed more than $650 millions out of next year's spending plans, but more will be necessary and federal government departments will feel the weight of further cuts. Undoubtedly this should find favor with the public. All governments inevitably build up financial fat in their departments during prosperous times and the onset of this critical period will provide an excellent opportunity to do considerable paring in many directions.

But the government's economy wave will not mean much in the end if it is not accompanied by similar restraint on the part of the public. There must be a sustained demand for goods and services if the country's economy is to make progress. But too heavy a dependence on borrowing to satisfy that demand can exert strong pressures on prices, which ensures an upward surge in the inflation spiral. And that is Mr. Sharp's—and Canada's—dilemma.

Autonomy and Taxes

IN AN ATMOSPHERE OF CONTROVERSY on educational matters, the president of the B.C. School Trustees Association, Mr. Frank Beinder of Trail, urges the need for some municipal contribution to school costs. At a time when some voices are raised in demands that the provincial government take over responsibility for all school costs, he says that although school boards are aware of increasing financial pressures on municipalities, "there must be some consideration for maintenance of a local contribution to education."

There will be wide agreement on that premise. Mr. Beinder cites in support the argument that without local contributions local autonomy would be lost. The principle, at least, still stands. Although the autonomy of school boards is largely limited by the powers of the provincial government through its education department, they would have little right to a voice in educational affairs and even less likelihood of making it heard if the residents of a school district made no direct contribution to the functioning of their school system.

There is another practical reason for local contributions to school costs. If a district wants more than the minimum provided by the provincial government, it is up to the local taxpayer to furnish the extra funds for amenities beyond the basic level. When they are supplied, a community has better schools. A municipality with superior schools is a better place in which to have a home and raise children. Hence the municipality benefits as a municipality. That requires local contribution.

This, however, is not the problem before larger urban areas in the province today. For them the problem is to acquire from the province financial support in amounts which free a municipality from scrimping on other essential services, or neglecting them altogether, because municipal taxpayers are carrying all the tax burden they will accept.

The Future Geographers

DR. J. LEWIS ROBINSON, head of the University of British Columbia's geography department, has given educationists a serving of indigestible food for thought. To test fourth year students in the course, he asked them to draw a map of Canada and mark some salient features. The results brought from him the statement: "I shudder to think of what the students do not know. I am shocked by the geographical ignorance of the product of B.C. schools."

Dr. Robinson finds that many of those who should know — students who have taken previous university level courses in geography — lack many of the facts of Canadian geography.

Dr. Robinson may have missed the familiar discussion of recent years in which some educators have been de-emphasizing the importance of facts and telling us that education is something other than the accumulation of data. He might, however, on the basis of his test results, ask how knowledge of a subject can be soundly built on a vacuum — or is that idea just old-fashioned pedantry?

A Little Indian Culture

THE SELECTION OF FABLES in "Son of Raven, Son of Deer" by the Indian artist-writer, Mr. George Clutesi, for reading in the Grade 4 language arts program throughout British Columbia is commendable on several grounds.

The action of the department of education in choosing the book gives encouragement to a Canadian author. More important, the inclusion of the volume in the program should make young children of this province more familiar with an element of culture native to their country.

It is cheering to learn that school children here, frequently well-versed in the legends, stories and literature of nations distant from their homeland, are to be exposed to a little more of the background of peoples indigenous to this country. Mr. Clutesi's book should provide an incentive to further study of material which should be part of the Canadian heritage.

Timing the Levesque Confrontation

AN important and perhaps crucial test of the possibility of stopping Quebec's long drift toward independence is expected at the annual congress of Quebec provincial Liberals October 13-15. No matter what the official agenda may say, the one issue at the meeting will be the fate of Rene Levesque's proposal that Quebec pull out of Confederation and then associate with the rest of Canada in a form of common market.

McDowell

There is little chance of the Levesque plan winning a vote of approval this month.

The question is whether it will come to a vote and be beaten or be kept on the table without a vote until a later meeting, in June 1968, at which the party plans to decide on its constitutional policy.

Hope for Success

For the Levesque supporters the best hope of eventual success is to have the plan kept alive for study by the party until next June.

That would give Mr. Levesque a long winter in which to throw his great gifts for persuasion and communication into a campaign for enough public support to influence the party's eventual decision, a strategy he used successfully in his campaign for the nationalization of electricity.

By June, a successful campaign would put Mr. Levesque in a position, if not to win a showdown vote within his party, at least to split the party seriously and perhaps to bring about the realignment — at which he has already hinted — of the pro and anti independence factions within the two major provincial parties.

For the pro-Confederation forces, led by party president Eric Kierans, the best hope would be a vote against the Levesque plan this month. That would minimize Mr. Levesque's chances of breaking off a sizeable chunk of the present party when he walked out, as he is almost unequivocally committed to do if his proposal is rejected.

Clear Alternative

More important it would give Quebec, for the first time in recent years, a party that was clearly anti-separatist.

It is widely believed outside Quebec, and to some extent in Quebec, that the majority of the province's population is firmly against political separation from Canada. So far there has been no test of the truth of that assumption. But even if it were true, it would be largely irrelevant without effective political representation in a provincial party committed to keeping Quebec in Confederation.

Up to now there has been no such political expression for anti-separatism.

Neither major party has clearly espoused the cause of independence. But both major parties have espoused a Quebec-first, militant nationalism that operates on the assumption that the government of Quebec must have an ever-increasing role in the lives of the province's population and the federal government an ever-decreasing role.

Matter of Mood

This trend, a matter of mood as well as of concrete policies, has already gone a long way toward detaching Quebec from Canada in spirit and cannot continue indefinitely without detaching it in fact as well.

A defeat for the Levesque plan and an unequivocal anti-independence stand by the provincial Liberals would offer at least some hope of establishing an opposing force against this slide toward independence.

Having rejected separation, the provincial Liberals would be obliged, for their own survival, to start telling Quebec voters the advantages they see in Confederation.

Federal liberals have had this job alone, until now, and have been undercut by the nationalist charges that they are traitors, or at least suspiciously un-Quebecois.

At next weekend's congress, both pro-independence and pro-confederation forces will be attempting to sway the third force, led by Mr. Lesage and by Liberal house leader Pierre Laporte, whose chief concern is to save the party from serious damage.

Seek Compromise

Both Mr. Lesage and Mr. Laporte, a leading contender for Mr. Lesage's succession, have attempted to play down the independentist implications of Mr. Levesque's plan and so keep the door open to a compromise.

Mr. Lesage is clearly reluctant to give up the potent electoral weapon of Quebec-first nationalism.

At a party dinner in Sherbrooke Sunday, when Mr. Kierans made a tough attack on separatism, Mr. Lesage followed by saying that he, too, was against separatism, but then added that his motto was "sovereignty and interdependence." The phrase would not be out of place as a slogan for the Levesque policy.

But the pro-Confederation and the pro-independence wings will not let the middle group keep the constitutional question open indefinitely.

Damage Estimates

Mr. Lesage and Mr. Laporte must weigh the damage the party would suffer from a showdown vote this month against the damage it would suffer if the vote were put off until June, when Mr. Levesque would have had a chance to enlarge his support in the party and in public opinion.

And for the men whose first concern is the survival of their party, as close to intact as possible, the choice will be complicated further by the fear that Premier Daniel Johnson might call a snap election if a Levesque defeat brought on a serious Liberal split.

In this conflict even the course of true expediency is far from clear.

Thanksgiving

Each year at Thanksgiving time Goodwill Enterprises for the Handicapped sends a sincere "Thanks-for-Giving" message to all those people whose thoughtfulness and help enable us to sustain our programs of service to Vancouver Island's handicapped people.

This is proving a good year for Goodwill. Steady support from the community enables us to extend our work-training and rehabilitation programs to more handicapped people than ever before. Some figures may be of interest. Although geographically we serve only 11.4 per cent of British Columbia's population, Goodwill currently trains and employs 27.2 per cent of the disabled persons employed in sheltered workshops such as ours in the entire province.

In 1967, too, we have an extra reason to be thankful. This month marks the 10th Anniversary of our non-profit society's formation on October 24, 1957. "An exercise in courage that has proved successful, practical and effective" as Mr. Wesley Black phrased it recently— R. W. Dudley, manager and director of rehabilitation.

Sacred Law

In the article, "Burns' Love Wholesome, Country Thing", Miss Stevenson mentions that the church was responsible for starting this one-man and one-woman thing, and that a common-law relationship was fine in its environment.

First, it must be clear to anyone who carefully reads the Bible, that marriage, (the one-man, one-woman thing as Miss Stevenson puts it), was not instituted by the "church." It was, and still is, a divinely ordained sacred relationship established by God in the Garden of Eden.

Surely Miss Stevenson must realize that the heartbreak and misery of our time is a direct result of man breaking the sacred law of marriage. — F. Blakeney, 2525 Empire.

Challenging Mr. Campbell

It is saddening to observe Vancouver's mayor, Mr. Tom Campbell, making inaccurate statements. A little inquiry would have informed him that the effective rate of interest which will have to be paid by Ottawa on fresh borrowings (bonds) will not be 6¼ per cent, but closer to 7.5 per cent.

This, by the time Ottawa administers NHA and absorbs the loan losses, it will certainly cost 8½ per cent for NHA loans. It is ridiculous to say Ottawa will make a profit. I hold no brief for the government, but their effort now is to try to make the interest rate realistic in the light of the current financial climate, a climate now quite out of control of the government of Canada.

It is not at all helpful toward the solution of a problem to put forth hasty and inaccurate statements. We must start with accurate data. — M. P. Paine, 3620 Quadra.

FROM WASHINGTON

By CHARLES BARTLETT

A Plan to Shrink Bombing Areas

AN assumption is spreading here that President Johnson intends soon, after the new officials in South Vietnam have taken their elected seats, to test the Viet Cong's state of mind with the bombing cessation which they demand as a prelude to negotiations. His refusal to be hurried into this overture served two useful purposes. It gave the South Vietnamese time to re-establish constitutional government as an initial step toward getting set for negotiations. It gave the North Vietnamese a prolonged and bitter taste of the alternative to negotiating an end to the struggle.

Bartlett

But the delay has also produced fresh complications. Mr. Johnson is crowded from both sides, from one by the military commanders who insist that a bombing cessation will be a disaster for the troops in the field and from the other by the menacing wave of dissent which has arisen against him and the war.

A bombing cessation in October or November will accordingly be met by the blunt hostility of the generals and the powerful senators who reflect their attitudes. It will also be vulnerable to an assumption by Hanoi that it comes from the President as a gesture of weakness, an acknowledgement that he cannot hold the nation to a course of belligerency.

In these circumstances Mr. Johnson's best alternative may be a proposal that was put before him quietly by a small group of House Republicans last March. Rep. Bradford Morse, of Mass., and Douglas Bailey, a political scientist whom Morse brought down from Harvard to stimulate the party's liberal wing, conceived the idea as a compromise of both sides' reluctance to be the first to pull back.

The mechanics are simple. The President would announce that he intends to stop all bombing north of the 21st parallel, a line which bisects North Vietnam just below Hanoi. If Ho Chi Minh responded with a similar gesture of de-escalation, the United States would stop bombing north of the 20th parallel. A second gesture from Hanoi would encourage the United States to stop bombing north of the 19th parallel, and so on until bombs had ceased to fall in North Vietnam and the Viet Cong had significantly curbed their agression.

But the President would announce at the outset that he intended to wait only 60 days for a gesture of reciprocity by the enemy. The advantages of the sanctuary accorded the Viet Cong in that period would be limited by continued, even intensified bombing in the 260 miles of North Vietnam that stretch south of the 21st parallel. The harbor at Haiphong would stay accessible to the American bombers.

Morse took his idea to the State Department and when officials there showed interest in it, he agreed to keep it secret as long as the administration gave it serious consideration. Two months later Morse was advised that the proposal was not gaining headway in the administration and he might as well take it into the public arena.

Stalled

Robert McNamara was attracted by the idea but the generals jumped on it. They argued that it would yield free access to supplies coming out of China, permit the concentration of Hanoi's anti-aircraft weapons in the South, and enable the enemy to rebuild his lines of communication and supply facilities.

However, the generals do not offer the President much these days. They want more men, more weapons and more targets and all they offer is the prospect of a war likely to last at least five more years. They defend the bombing in the north as crucial to the troops in the south

Ho Chi Minh seemed ready to negotiate last December and Polish intermediaries frantically warned the U.S. embassy in Warsaw against any acts of escalation while arrangements were being made. But the bombs fell in Hanoi in early December and Hanoi's conciliatory mood evaporated.

Now the opportunity is perceived to be ripening again and the prickly question is how to keep the signals clear between Washington and Hanoi. The Morse proposal, with its short, distinct steps, may prove to be the best answer.

"I'M NOT SURE, BUT I THINK HE HUNG UP!"

Looking Back

From the Times, Oct. 5, 1907.

Vancouver — The session of the provincial Liberal Association this morning passed a resolution requesting that portions of unoccupied Crown coal lands of various coal fields be reserved by statute.

The resolution states that this would enable state owned and operated coal mines to be established in future, if required, in the public interest.

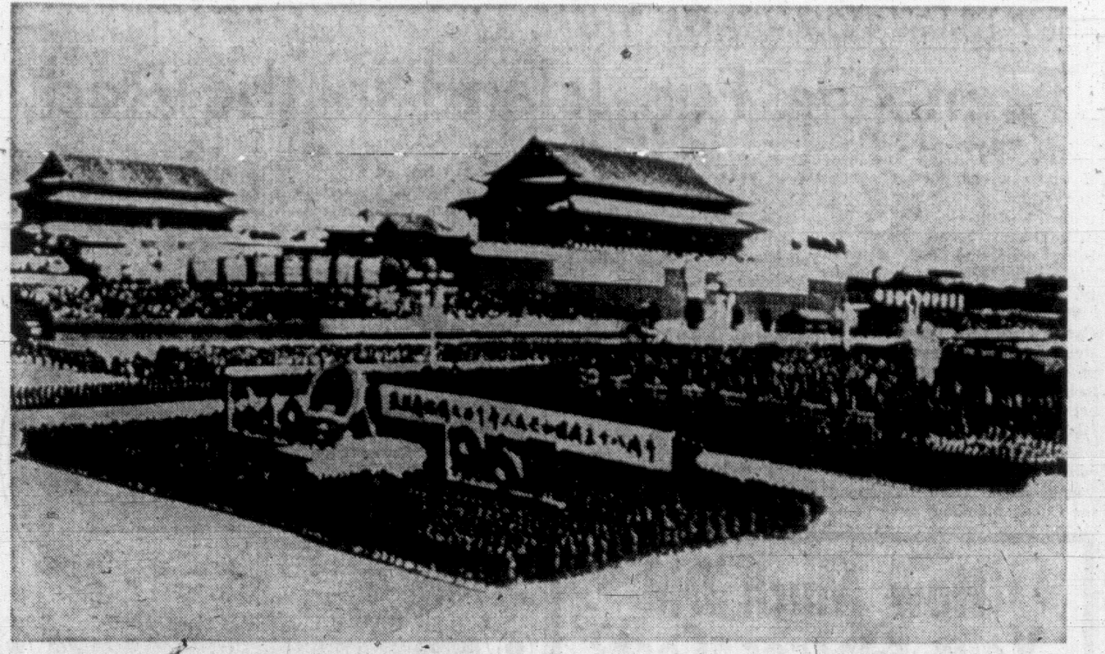
INDIVIDUALISM

"I think the more varied the society, the richer the society. There are a great number of different gifts which individuals have and I think we should cherish them all, even when they seem meaningless to us.

—Geoffrey Gorer, social anthropologist.



China mounted a tremendous display of solidarity in Peking Sunday for the celebration of the 18th anniversary of the victory of the Communist forces over the Nationalists. The photo above shows some of the thousands of marchers parading through Tienanmen Square, where they were reviewed by party leader Mao Tse-tung.

BACK TO SQUARE 1 FOR MAO?

By GUY SEARLS

Chairman Mao's latest directive to the Chinese masses represents a return almost to square one in the year-old Cultural Revolution.

Peking has ordered the people to organize themselves into revolutionary "great alliances." According to various reports from official Chinese agencies, at least 1,000 such alliances have been formed.

However, "great alliances" represent only the first stage in the program to build "revolutionary committees" which are to be the provisional organs of power in the Cultural Revolution.

One Segment

A "great alliance" is only one segment of a three-way alliance necessary for the establishment of a "revolutionary committee." The other two segments are the army and revolutionary (i.e. loyal) cadres drawn from officials in the the local administrations.

The new program to stress the "great alliances" apparently was contained in an "instruction" issued by Chairman Mao Tse-tung early in September. It amounts to an admission that the original "revolutionary committees" had failed to achieve unity on lower levels and the whole program has to be started over again.

The first "revolutionary alliances" were formed last January but the accent at that time was on achieving the higher level "revolutionary committees." Now the higher level is being virtually ignored in an attempt to put the lower stages on a firmer footing.

Power to Army

This new tactic follows a campaign to give more authority to the army in quelling the continued disturbances caused by various factions competing for power in China. The original "revolutionary alliances" broke down when those taking part resorted to an armed struggle to decide who should lead the alliances.

The army has been slow to act this summer because of unclear directives on how to decide which factions to support, since all of them claim to be "true revolutionaires."

Only in the major South China city of Canton has the army apparently been given a clear mandate to step in and stop the fighting.

The army now has the upper-hand in Canton but recent arrivals in Hong Kong from Canton say that soldiers had to kill 10 people in order to break up a mob of 3,000 which attacked a mobile propaganda unit two weeks ago.

The discussion on how to suppress the current turmoil in China has apparently given rise to more personality clashes at high levels in Peking. Reports from the capital say the Cultural Revolution Committee of the army has again been reorganized. Such old-time leaders as Hsu Hsiang-chien, the original committee chairman, and Hsiao Hua, the army's political director, have been removed.

Added to the Cultural Revolution Committee has been Yeh Tsun, the wife of Defence Minister Lin Piao, who is Mao's second-in-command. Chairman Mao's wife, Chiang Ching, already sits on the committee, which means that the wives of China's two top leaders now have an unusual influence in top military affairs.

Vietnam Debate in U.S. Now Two-Party Affair

By DAVID S. BRODER
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — It has taken the better part of two years, but the debate about United States Vietnam policy, which began in the Democratic party, has now become a major interest of the Republicans. The development is healthy for the country, but no one should be misled about the probable result.

The result is not likely to be the nomination of an all-out "dove" by the Republican convention next August or the conversion of the presidential campaign next fall into a debate between a Republican advocate of disengagement and a president who insists the struggle must go on, no matter what its cost or consequences.

No one can say such an outcome is impossible, of course, but another result is much more likely. Before speculating, however, let us look for a moment at the national advantage that is gained by shifting the Vietnam debate to the minority party.

So long as the Vietnam argument was centered among Democrats it was subject to two distortions.

First, the Democratic critics of the President's war policy were always accused of operating from personal motives, making it difficult to distinguish personal antipathies from policy differences. Sen. J. W. Fulbright was suspected of harboring grievances over presidential slights to his role as chairman of the foreign relations committee. Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, it was widely held, was out to "settle an old score" with Mr. Johnson and to serve his own ambitions in the bargain. The President, in turn, has been accused of automatically rejecting any proposal from his Democratic critics.

Second, the internal Democratic debate on Vietnam has been stunted by the political reality that the critics could force a change in policy only be defeating the President for renomination. That is a task which Kennedy, Fulbright and all but the rankest amateurs in the peace movement recognize is impossible.

Thus, the Democratic debate on Vietnam has been twisted by circumstances into an unseemly personal squabble whose outcome is a foreordained victory for the President. Mr. Johnson has further diminished its usefulness by his effort to obscure, confuse and distort the issues his intra-party critics were trying to raise.

Now, thanks to the efforts of a variety of Republicans with widely-differing viewpoints, including George Aiken, Clifford Case, Gerald Ford, Mark Hatfield, Melvin Laird, Bradford Morse, Thruston Morton, Richard Nixon, Charles Percy and George Romney, the debate has shifted to the GOP.

Each of these Republicans has taken a certain amount of crticism for "undercutting the president," "embarassing the party," or "creating doubt in Hanoi." But if this country is so weak, or its cause in Vietnam so fragile, that it cannot tolerate responsible debate within the opposition party on a major foreign policy question, then matters have indeed reached a pretty pass.

Actually, a Republican debate on Vietnam is likely to be of great use to the country, because it is free of the two major distortions that affect the Democratic argument. The Republican debate is less envenomed by personal feelings, for the simple reason that Republicans are not expected to give aid and comfort to an opposition-party president. And the outcome of the Republican debate is not pre-determined; in the open battle for the GOP nomination, Vietnam policy is a legitimate weapon for all contenders, and no one can say with certainty whose views will prevail.

However, the "doves" are unlikely to triumph, for three reasons.

First, the Republican tradition is one of staunch anti-communism. The Republican advocates of disengagement in Vietnam have not yet framed an adequate answer to those who contend that an American backdown in Vietnam would give the Communists a vital strategic victory.

Second, those who occupy the traditional power centers in the party — titular leaders Eisenhower and Goldwater, congressional leaders Dirksen and Ford, and the governors of the largest states — all favor continuing or expanding the present military effort to secure the strategic objective of a non-Communist regime in South Vietnam.

Third, the three prospective nominees whose stock has been rising in recent months — Nixon, Nelson Rockefeller and Donald Reagan — are all hard-liners on Vietnam. Those who have been slumping or standing still — Romney and Percy — are the ones who are talking of limiting the U.S. effort.

In the coming primaries, one would guess, Nixon will articulate the case for continuing the war more effectively than Romney will argue for limiting the U.S. involvement.

Thus, to see the Republican party emerging with a "dove" candidate and platform next August, one would have to imagine the successful refutation of traditional anti-Communism; a policy reversal by, or repudiation of, its most influential leaders; and a complete upset in the present odds on the prospective candidate.

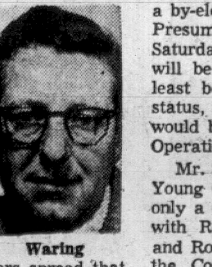
All of this may occur, of course, or even be forced on the GOP by a marked shift in public sentiment against continuing the war, a shift which Morton and others think may already be under way.

Roblin's Federal Decision Result of Bleak Necessity

By GERALD WARING

OTTAWA — Surprise! Surprise! Duff Roblin is going to enter federal politics!

Considering that (a) he had said before the Tory convention that he was definitely retiring as premier of Manitoba to enter the federal field, and (b) that if he wants to stay in party politics he has nowhere else to go, the news is less than earth-shaking.



Waring

But that's the way Mr. Roblin does things. He never lets his right foot know where his left foot is going.

After his Sept. 9 defeat at the convention he returned to Winnipeg and sulked in his teepee while rumors spread that he was changing his mind again. If the tribe didn't want him as chief, he wasn't interested in being just a plain Indian.

When they received these smoke signals in the big wigwam back east the new chief and his braves reacted with a mixture of annoyance and concern. The medicine man, Dalton Camp, was consulted. He in turn consulted the recalcitrant Indian, then reported back to the new chief, and last weekend Robert Stanfield took the long trail westward to Winnipeg to drag the wavering brave out of his teepee of humiliation.

Mr. Roblin, whose changes of mind in 1965 and since had already given him a national reputation as a floater in a sea of doubts, was described by confidants as changing his mind almost daily during the three weeks following the convention.

Roblin and the chief talked for an hour last Saturday morning, and Stanfield emerged with Roblin's promise to seek election to the Commons in a Manitoba riding. None such is vacant, but the rural riding of Marquette, held by Tory Nick Mandziuk, may be made available to him.

Assuming he is elected when in the fulness of time the government gets around to holding a by-election to accommodate him, what then? Presumably part of the bargain struck Saturday was Stanfield's promise that Roblin will be more than just a backbench MP—at least being given frontbench, shadow cabinet status, and more likely a job that in industry would be Vice-President in Charge of Western Operations.

Mr. Stanfield saw fit to recall in a speech to Young Conservatives at Clear Lake, delivered only a couple of hours after he had conferred with Roblin, that as provincial premiers he and Roblin had been "the Gold Dust Twins of the Conservative Party." One might fairly infer that as a result of the morning's meeting the Gold Dust Twins would ride again.

When you strip away the niceties, the magnanimity, the flattery and the camraderie and get down to the hard, cold facts of the situation, what happened Saturday was Roblin's submission to his conqueror. Barring some unpredictable and unlikely development such as Mr. Stanfield's sudden death, Roblin had to submit or accept the untimely termination of his political career at age 50.

That Roblin was deeply distressed by what must seem to him a bleak choice goes without saying. He had been given to believe ever since 1962 that if he chose to he could become John Diefenbaker's heir and successor. But he had a good thing going as premier of Manitoba, and Ottawa could wait.

His is the tragedy of the fence sitter, the man who waits too long, who waits in indecision until Shakespeare's "tide in the affairs of men" is at the ebb.

Quebec Can Be Fulfilled Without Ruining Canada

By MAXWELL COHEN

(This is the second of two articles on Canada's constitutional crisis by the dean of the faculty of law at McGill University.)

An internal French-speaking debate is now joined in Quebec which could have far-reaching consequences for the future of Canada.

It's primary symbol, for the moment, is Mr. Levesque's challenge to the provincial Liberal party to go the "independentiste" way—a sovereign" state of Quebec within a loose "confederal" union whose details are unknown except for their inevitable destruction of the Canada we have.

It is one of the tragedies of almost all nationalisms, in their darker aspects, that they do not really count the economic cost and do not weigh the emotions or claims of those members of the territorial (Quebec) community who may not be members of the language-community of the majority (French-speaking).

English-speaking Canadians in Quebec, who have as much right to be regarded as Quebeckers as their French-speaking neighbors, are for the most part silent and growingly fearful, except for the few who are trying desperately to articulate a position or for some others — often establishment types on the right or appeasers on the left — who are too ready to accommodate to some inevitable franchisizing of their future.

What to Do?

What can Canadians, the vigorous, moderate Canadians who say "Canada first" and Quebec fulfilled but second, who say a united country first and the provinces strong but second, do at this serious time?

They can stand up and be counted as Canadians; they can insist with voice and mass meetings and manifest goodwill that whatever the constitutional changes, the "one Canada" must be preserved and that they believe there is enough political imagination to have the quiet revolution fulfill itself without assuming it must do so at the expense of destroying Canada we know.

Here is a possible program for men of moderation inside Quebec and elsewhere in Canada:

1—There must be assembled in Montreal before many weeks have gone by representatives of every non-governmental sector in Canada — mass media, educational, welfare, religious, business, labor and agriculture, the whole lot — who share a common belief that the Canadian confederation was not meant to be a springboard for sovereign provinces opting out at the will of some activist minority.

A 'Snowball'

This should be a conference to generate a "counter-snowball" and to give the majority of Canadians moderates a chance to express their insistence upon unity and to demand of their political leaders that they accommodate all their claims to the overriding claim of a united Canada.

2—The federal government must not appear to be obvious tacticians delaying debate or waiting for academic studies to justify detailed discussion. It must give the appearance of effective leadership by encouraging the widest public dialogue now, by sponsoring it, by inviting ideas and by doing in action what it claims to be in theory, namely having the primary role in the arena of constitutional change.

3—The English-speaking community of Quebec must recognize that in some respects it is the testing ground as to whether or not Confederation is viable. For if it feels besieged through real threats, or its own inaction, or its own inadequate leadership in relation to the new dynamic majority, then this sense of ill-being and potential ill-treatment, whether rightly or wrongly conceived, will contaminate the national dialogue touching French-English and Quebec-Canada relations as a whole.

Conversely, the French-speaking majority in Quebec, and particularly moderates of all shades and parties must restate the "two-peoples" theory in such a way that it encourages the creation of a new confidence, inside Quebec, among the two language groups.

Silence on the growing issue of English-speaking confidence in a future dynamic Quebec, with a French majority, now is a mounting threat to any federal dialogue on all the Canadian-wide issues of the common future.

4—We must recognize that the real debate is not between Ottawa and Quebec but within the French-speaking family of Quebec itself. English-speaking Canadians must do everything possible to strengthen the hand of that Quebec leadership which sees the best hope of Quebec and French-speaking Canada as one that identifies with a strong federal union.

Among the instruments for strengthening the moderates' position is the full acceptance everywhere in English-speaking Canada of the role of French language and school claims or, to put it more broadly, of the very idea that we are a Canada of two great cultures and that our institutions, provincial and federal, must at every symbolic and pragmatic opportunity reflect that social and political framework.

5—Finally, there must be stressed and exposed the fictitious character of so much separatist and quasi-separatist talk about the constitution.

Absolutely nothing today in law prevents the provinces from exercising maximum economic and administrative authority, within the limits of their "resources," over all the areas that now are of such primary human concern — education, welfare, urban renewal etc.

It is a patent distortion to pretend that much of the power is not already there. But it would be unreal not to recognize that there must be some new fluid relationship between the federal and provincial governments in the matter of sharing revenues as their respective responsibilities shift and grow over the years.

Right Symbols

It would be equally unreal not to find appropriate symbols that describe the New Quebec and the "New Canada" in language that fits the mood and the times, as well as appropriate consultative institutions that express the inevitably magnified role of provincial activity.

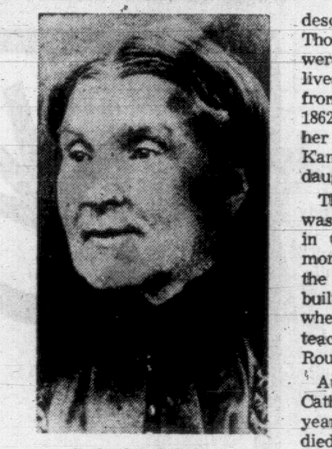
The British North America Act is not sancrosanct. It has many anachronisms and obsolescent provisions.

It has overlapping jurisdictions some of which may be inevitable and some of which can be clarified.

It has flexible rules for a federal Canada that made Canada viable for one hundred years.

By continental or other comparisons, it has been therefore, a considerable success. But there is nothing to prevent creative Canadians from proposing a better instrument against the background generally of the division of powers we have today joined with the new symbols we must have for tomorrow.

Founders of B.C.



Catherine Schubert

The first white woman to come to British Columbia overland from the east was Catherine Schubert.

Born in County Down, Ireland, in 1835, she obviously inherited a measure of Irish determination. She came to the United States when she was 15, travelling with her family and met Francis Augustus Schubert of Dresden, Saxony, in New York.

In 1860 unfriendly Indians caused them to move from St. Paul to Fort Garry, which now is Winnipeg. When news arrived in 1862 of the Cariboo gold strike they determined to head west. They joined a party from Ontario who aimed to travel overland to the gold fields.

No women were allowed, but men found themselves making an exception of Catherine. She rode a horse, a child on either side of her in a basket and the third carried by its father — or other men.

The party split up, some to descend the Fraser, some the Thompson River. Often rafts were wrecked, supplies and lives lost. The journey lasted from June 2 to October 14, 1862, and Catherine marked her safe arrival at Fort Kamloops by giving birth to a daughter.

The baby, born in a tent, was the first white child born in the interior of B.C. Two more children were born to the Schuberts after Augustus built a homestead at Lillooet where Catherine served as a teacher. They farmed also at Round Prairie.

Augustus died in 1908. Catherine lived another 10 years. She was 83 when she died. And she is remembered by all who see a monument erected in her honor at Armstrong.

'Let's Show Thanks For Confederation'

Canadians should "stop putting poultices on the boils of the Canadian body politic and see about clarifying the blood," Provincial Archivist Willard Ireland told members of the Canadian Club Wednesday.

Mr. Ireland told members at the luncheon meeting at Holyrood House that Canadians must study the causes behind Confederation and "rectify the results."

The emphasis has been placed too much on what was accomplished 100 years ago . . . rather than on the consequences of what was accomplished 100 years ago."

DON'T PANIC

Canadians should be thankful in actions rather than words for what they have, and stop panicking or putting off attempts to deal with Confederation today, he said.

Any attempt to study Canada's history was usually put off because our history books were "so damned dull." They have improved in the last 10 years, he said.

The formation of the Canadian nation was a "political gimmick" to tie the colonies together by transportation and communications, and take advantage of resources, he said. But the Fathers of Confederation could not see ahead to the needs of today in setting up a political structure.

Canadians today must find new ways of making the old system work, Mr. Ireland said.

"I just happen to believe that the genius has not left our people — if we want to generate and use it," he said.

Canadians should look to youth to build the future and stop criticizing the young so much, Mr. Ireland said.

"That just makes me flaming mad."

"They got the idea of dropping out from us . . . dropping out of the body politic," he said.

Outspoken Critic Held In Home

ATHENS (Reuters)—Helen Vlachos, Greek newspaper publisher and an outspoken critic of the military regime, has been placed under arrest, her husband said.

She is the second government critic to be placed under house arrest in two days.

Tuesday the army-backed regime placed under house arrest 64-year-old former premier Panayotis Kanellopoulos after he twice spoke out against the government in statements calling for restoration of political freedom.

Mme. Vlachos, 56, was arrested in her newspaper office last Thursday, charged with insulting the authorities and disobeying a military order, and released after questioning.

Later that day, she said she will be tried by court martial. It was reliably learned that the trial will take place this month.

Bridge Players Revoke Cards In U.K. Body

LONDON (AP)—Fifty of Britain's leading bridge players, disgruntled with their ruling authorities, have formed an association to protect their interests.

The new Master Players' Association said it aims to represent the interest and views of the leading and potentially leading players.

Sunday's move was sparked by the refusal of eight leading players to represent Britain in last month's European team championships in Dublin. Some of them felt the British Bridge League selectors had not taken sufficient trouble to choose the best team.

Hospital Vote Passes Easily On Mainland

VANCOUVER (CP) — A $51,000,000 bylaw that will provide improvements to 16 hospitals in the B.C. Lower Mainland Wednesday was passed with a 94 per cent majority.

The $51,000,000 will be spent on a four-year program drafted by the newly-created Fraser-Burrard Regional Hospital District, which submitted the bylaw.

Local hospitals will contribute 40 per cent of the $51,000,000 and the provincial government will put up the other 60 per cent.

It was the first time a single money bylaw was presented to ratepayers throughout 14 municipalities and two unorganized territories. A 60 per cent majority was needed.

Similar bylaws for hospitals, parks and other services, are likely to follow, officials said.

The bylaw passed Wednesday will add about $3.30 a year to the average property owner's tax bill.

Just under 100,000 of the 327,000 eligible property owners cast ballots.

LBJ Tops Poll

DETROIT (AP) — President Johnson easily won a weekend non-popularity poll at the University of Detroit, with students voting for "the man I'd least like to see in the White House." Johnson's 31.9 per cent was well ahead of the second-place finisher, former Alabama governor George Wallace, who got 24.3 per cent of the vote.

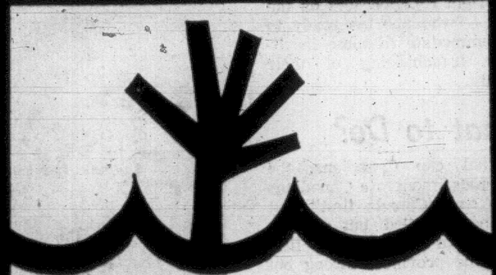
CANDIDATE for the U.S. presidency is Negro comedian Dick Gregory, who said Tuesday he would run as an independent concentrating on civil rights issues.

Master Mariners Form Group

A group of master mariners in B.C. has formed the Company of Master Mariners of Canada.

Membership will be limited to 100 captains with a record of more than five years in the merchant marine. Aim of the group is to advance the maritime industry and to act as a consulting body to governments.

It will also provide liaison with the armed services and provide members for examining boards in the merchant service.



No, Mr. Frisby . . . the path is over here. That's the fishpond. Next time, better lead Mr. Frisby down the garden path. Either that or get in touch with your electrical contractor to have him install some outdoor lighting. It's quite inexpensive, and it makes the garden a safer, much pleasanter place to be after dark.

THEY LEARN COMMUNISM THERE

Teen-Age Fun Island in the Red

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—The Isle of Pines, a lush former resort spot which the United States traded to Cuba in 1926 for the Guantanamo Naval Base, is being converted into a vast Communist teen-ager community.

The island was the scene of Castro's political prison and is steeped in pirate lore. The Isle of Pines is popularly believed to have been the setting of Robert Louis Stevenson's Treasure Island.

Since last spring, Havana radio has been reporting that young people from throughout the Cuban mainland were being transferred to the island to live and to do farm work.

Isle of Youth they call it now in Cuba. Formerly many Americans went there to retire. Tourists went there to fish.

Refugees report the island population has increased from 10,000 not including prison inmates to 50,000. The residents are largely young people and military personnel.

Fidel Castro said in a speech:

MUCH GOES TO WASTE

Only a tenth of the world's surface is suitable for agriculture.

"The Isle of Youth is being transformed into an experimental centre to put into practice the idea of a Communist society. The young people who work here must convert this region into the first Communist region of Cuba."

Saskatchewan Not Excited As Vote Near

By DON HARVEY

REGINA (CP)—When Premier Ross Thatcher's Liberals gained power from the CCF in the 1964 Saskatchewan election, their total vote exceeded that of their rivals by only 650—less than one of every 1,000 ballots cast.

Both Mr. Thatcher and CCF Leader Woodrow Lloyd profess confidence that a substantial number of voters will have changed their minds when they return to the polls next Wednesday to pass judgment on the Liberals 3½ years in office. But both parties agree the electorate is approaching voting day without excitement.

A spokesman for the Liberals, who captured 32 seats in the 1964 election to the CCF's 26 and the Conservatives' one, interpreted the quiet atmosphere as a sign of satisfaction with the performance of the Thatcher government.

2,000 SEE THATCHER

The Liberals were pleased with an estimated turnout of 2,000 to hear Mr. Thatcher in Saskatoon Tuesday night despite inclement weather.

While the Saskatoon arena can accommodate about 5,000, the temperature was 32 degrees and a strong wind was fanning a driving rain.

"In a way I can't blame them," a Liberal official said. "They can see it on television, hear it on radio or read about it next day in their daily newspaper."

Mr. Lloyd, who preceded Mr. Thatcher as premier, says the campaign never really stopped since the last election and that the electorate has become familiar with the issues.

He feels most of the voters already have made up their minds and consequently are not likely to give way to election fever.

Both parties have entered candidates in all 59 constituencies and neither professes concern over the chances of the Conservatives and Social Credit, the other parties in the field. There are 41 Conservative candidates and six Social Crediters.

FORM OPPOSITION

Conservative Leader Martin Pederson, who won his party's only seat by a 306-vote majority in 1964, is in a three-cornered fight in Arm River. Mr. Pederson says his party expects to form the opposition in the next house.

Social Credit Leader Lloyd Avram is in a four-cornered contest in Qu'Appelle-Wolsley, which Liberal cabinet minister Doug McFarlane won by 1,337 votes last time. The Social Credit party has not elected a member since 1956.

Mr. Lloyd, who had an 883-vote majority in Biggar in 1964, has Liberal and Conservative opponents this time.

Premier Thatcher, a winner by only 236 votes in a straight fight against a CCF opponent last time, also has a Conservative to contend with in Morse constituency, where the current CCF candidate is Mayor L. H. Lewry of Moose Jaw.

N.Y. Teacher Union Fined

NEW YORK (AP)—The United Federation of Teachers was fined $150,000 Wednesday and its president, Albert Shanker, sentenced to 15 days in jail and fined $250 for criminal contempt of court in conducting a strike against New York City's public school system.

The sentences, by Justice Emilio Nunez in state Supreme Court, were viewed by the union as the first application of the punitive provisions of New York state's new Taylor Law, which bars strikes by public employees.

Charges against two other union officials were dismissed by Nunez.

Driving Charges Net Fine, Jail

Richard Taylor, 21, of 2129 Lorne Terrace, was fined $40 in magistrate's court Tuesday for careless driving.

Court was told he was driver of a car involved in a rear-end collision at Government and Broughton Aug. 29.

Robert Litwinczuk, 30, of 3498 Lovat Avenue, was sentenced to one month on a charge of care and control of a motor-vehicle while impaired.

Police found him sitting in a car in the Century Inn parking lot Sept. 17. The car had damaged two other cars on the lot.

ENTHUSIASTIC WELCOME . . . . . . BY 2,000 AT MASS RALLY

Chief Scout Shook Hands With Every Cub, Scout

Nearly 2,000 cubs and scouts of the Greater Victoria region turned out to give Sir Charles MacLean, Chief Scout of the Commonwealth, an enthusiastic welcome at a mass rally at the Bay St. Armories Wednesday night.

And nearly 2,000 left hands were outstretched in the scout handshake as Sir Charles moved among the boys jamming the Armories' floor. The Chief Scout told them he would shake their hands rather than make a speech.

It took more than an hour and a half to meet every boy and at the end Sir Charles' handshake was as brisk and firm as when he had begun.

Sir Charles moved rapidly down the lines as he neared the end and shook the last hand shortly before 9 p.m.

He left several cubs wringing their hands with the firmness of his handshake.

After he completed his rounds, Jed Schroeder, 9, of the 10th Fort Victoria pack presented Sir Charles with a Cowichan Indian sweater on behalf of the region as a memento of his visit to Victoria.

A reception for Sir Charles and scout leaders in the Canadian Scottish officers' mess followed the rally.

Sir Charles leaves at 2 p.m. today for Vancouver, from where he will continue on his five-week Canadian tour.

SHAWNIGAN LUMBER UNDER NEW OWNERSHIP

An 87-year-old Victoria lumber firm has changed hands for the second time in three years.

Shawnigan Lumber Supplies, Ltd., began operating this week under direction of Michael Jiggins, president; C. A. Wanless, vice-president, and Les Crutchlow, secretary.

They bought the firm on Government from Kelly Dickson and Doug Glynn, who bought from the group that had controlled the firm from 1935 to 1964. Fred Hawes was one of these, who remained as managing director until the 1964 sale.

All three of the new owners are well connected in the lumber and building supplies industry in Victoria.

Mr. Jiggins was manager of Doman's Building Supply Centre and Mr. Crutchlow was his assistant. Mr. Wanless was sales manager at Cubbon Building Supplies.

Shawnigan Lake Lumber Co. was founded in 1880 by the Muncie family.

MARKETS

Trading Very Light

Trading was very light today on North American stock exchanges. The trend was slightly upwards.

AT TORONTO up till 2 p.m. about 2,031,000 shares had changed hands compared with 3,180,000 at the same time Wednesday.

Famous Players paced the industrial rise, up 1 to 40, Moore Corp. gained ⅝ to 33⅜, CPR and Bank of Nova Scotia ⅜ each to 63⅛ and 13⅞ respectively.

Trans-Canada Pipe lost ⅝ to 30 after the company president announced lower earnings could be expected for the balance of the year.

AT VANCOUVER gains outnumbered losses in quiet trade. Consolidated Manitoba rested at a high for the year of $1.60, up .34, after trading as high as $1.65.

Chataway rose .07 to .38, Jersey was up .05 to .30, Lytton was up .10 to .80, Pyramid climbed .15 to $4.15 and T.C. Ex was up .11 to $1.18.

On the minus side, Cascade fell .04 to $1.20, Northlode .05 to .61 and Westland .20 to $1.70.

In industrials, Sun A rose .50 to $31.50 while Woodward's A fell .25 to $16.75.

In oils, Castle was up .05 to .60 and Five Star was down .03 to .24.

AT NEW YORK brokers said the slower trading pace was due to the Jewish religious holiday.

Blue chips were particularly strong, Du Pont advanced nearly 2 points despite a company prediction of lower third-quarter earnings. Eastman Kodak added about half a point.

Mail order-retails, electronics and oils were mostly higher. Steels, farm implements and airlines were lower.

McDonnell-Douglas, with a gain of nearly 3 points, appeared headed for the top of the day's most active list.

AT MONTREAL, several issues made moderate price swings in early afternoon trading and trimmed fractional morning losses.

McAllister Towing jumped one point to 12, still reacting to a takeover offer from Sogemines Ltd., and Denison advanced ¾ to 85, after hovering close to the 84 mark earlier this week. Analysts said the stock is still reacting to news of a 10-year contract to sell 21,000,000 pounds of uranium to Japan.

Fraser Co. dipped ¾ to 22 on what one analyst said were rumors that the Price Brow. takeover offer could fall through.

Laura Secord slid ¼ to 17, reacting to Salada Food's offer for a minimum of 50 per cent of the common stock at $17.15 a share.

Among speculative mines and oils on the Canadian market, Consolidated Manitoba jumped 37 cents to $1.60, and James Bay four cents to 90 cents on volume of 125,100 shares.

$300 MILLION PACT SIGNED

TOKYO (Reuters) — Mitsui Mining and Smelting Co. and Toho Zinc Co. representing a group of six Japanese non-ferrous metal smelters, have signed a formal contract worth about $300,000,000 to import zinc and lead concentrates from Canada on a long-term basis, a sopkesman for the group said today.

Under the contract with the Anvil Mining Co. of Canada, a joint U.S.-Canadian venture, the six Japanese smelters will be supplied with 130,000 tons of lead concentrates and 240,000 tons of zinc concentrates annually during a period of eight years beginning in 1969, he said.

DEVELOPMENT PLAN IN SEATTLE

How to Live on a Golf Course

By AB KENT
Business Editor

A young Seattle developer has come up with a plan for land use that shows promise for the solution of several problems facing the housing industry and local government.

Although his particular plan is aimed at a higher-income group there seems to be no reason why it could not be tailored to fit the needs of middle or even low-income persons wishing to buy the "place of his own" that grows more elusive daily.

What the Seattle man has done is to buy a golf course, the ideally located nine-hole Glenacres Golf and Country Club in south Seattle.

Kent

But instead of slicing it up into a subdivision as has been done so devastatingly in many cities including Vancouver, this man has preserved and improved the layout.

The immediate effect is to retain an important green belt of tree-dotted space within a burgeonging suburban community, an achievement of no small importance in times when cities find themselves faced with buying developed land to turn back to planted area.

He also spent some $350,000 on remodelling and expanding the clubhouse into a modern, relaxing place to lunch, pause for a drink or go dinner-dancing. A swimming pool and new locker facilities were among the additions.

Around the perimeter of the property he plans to build a series of condominium apartment blocks.

The condominium, for which there is enabling legislation in B. C. but which no one seems interested in developing as yet, provides for multiple ownership of a single piece of land and individual ownership of parts of the building.

In other words, a 10-storey building could have one apartment per floor, each owned outright by the occupant.

This type of real estate development is especially helpful where land for high density use is at a premium, but it also could permit a person who can't afford a new house to buy a new apartment having essentially the same advantages.

In Glenacres development, besides the obvious advantage of living on the edge of a golf course—whether or not the resident was interested in golf — each owner would have membership in the club, which then becomes a kind of exclusive community centre.

That is a matter for individual taste, however, and need not be part of similar projects based on the idea.

Bringing the thought to Victoria, what better way to achieve a variety of ends — not overlooking the tax advantage to a municipality — than to make the McRae estate into such a project?

Of course, such an undertaking seems best suited to private enterprise and may not be an acceptable development if current plans to place the estate in the public domain are carried through.

Western Mines Ltd. this week acquired a new general manager with the resignation of Charles M. Campbell Jr. He is J. B. Magee, formerly with Nadina Explorations and once resident manager of Sheep Creek Mines.

It is the second major administrative shift for Western this year. Earlier, W. G. Jewitt was named president, replacing H. M. Wright.

The new mine-mill operation at Myra Falls, south end of Buttle Lake, has had lengthy pre-production and metallurgical problems, but according to Mr. Magee Wednesday the mill is operating at capacity now.

With bond prices continuing their decline, the 40-bond yield average compiled by McLeod, Young, Weir and Co. reached another record high in September.

The average hit 7.28 per cent, compared with the previous record in August of 7.05 per cent.

President Faces Suit

TORONTO (CP)—Three directors and a former vice-president of British International Finance Canada (Ltd.) of Toronto Wednesday started action in a $2,500,000 law suit against Marc Bienvenu, president of the company.

A writ issued at Osgoode Hall, names Mr. Bienvenu, Aubert Brillant, Fernand Lalonde, Bienvenu International Corp. of Montreal, York Lambton Corp. Ltd. of Toronto and British International Finance as defendants.

The plaintiffs, Peter Charlebois, William Mollard and Andrew Wofford, and William Hawkins, claim to act for themselves and other shareholders in the company.

They seek payment of $2,500,000 in BIF shares under an agreement made in March, 1967.

The writ states the shares were set aside and the defendants have refused to pay, notwithstanding demand and call.

The shares were to be invested when a $3,000,000 York Lambton debenture came due. The 180-day debenture matured last month and has not been repaid.

York Lambton directors said it is not in default but gave no details.

Foreign Firms Taking Big Bite

MONTREAL (CP) — The Shoe Manufacturers' Association of Canada said Tuesday foreign manufacturers have gained a stong grip on one-third of the Canadian footwear market.

Imports of footwear, 5.4 per cent in 1966, the association said 1951, have jumped to 49.2 per cent in 1966, aht association said as 250 exhibitors from Canada, England, France, Italy, Spain and the United States showed their products at the Shoe and Leather fair.

The association said the increase in imports has contribued to the closure of 28 factories in Canada and has been responsible for putting 3,000 Canadian shoe workers out of work since 1962.

VICTORIA — Banks buying cheques at 7¼ premium, notes 7 premium and silver 5. Selling cheques at 7⅝ premium, notes 8 premium.

PLASTIC HOMES SOON

SARNIA (CP) — By 1980 plastic houses may be an everyday matter, Roger E. Hatch, vice-president of Polymer Corp. said Tuesday.

Mr. Hatch told the 13th International Distributors conference the world will pass from the metal age to the age of polymerics by 1980.

Representatives from 11 countries attended the meeting which resumes at Montebello, Que., today.

For Tiny Tim, Water Penalty Was Worth It

By HAL MALONE

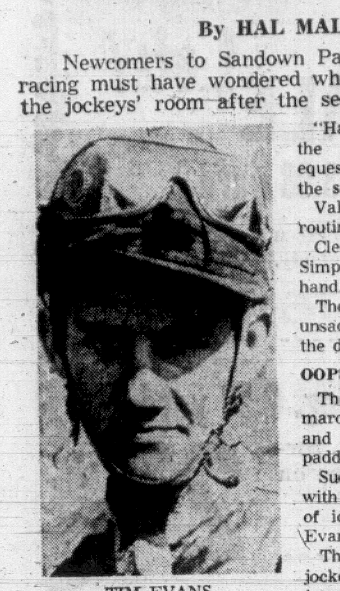
Newcomers to Sandown Park and Thoroughbred racing must have wondered what was going on near the jockeys' room after the second race Wednesday.



TIM EVANS
. . . member of the club

"Hap" Anderson, custodian of the room for unsanforized equestrians, stood casually on the steps.

Valets went about their routine chores.

Clerk of the scales Spec Simpson sat at a desk, pencil in hand.

The first batch of riders to unsaddle disappeared through the door of their quarters.

OOPS AND HELLO

Then a small figure in maroon silks with white trim and a red hat turned the paddock corner.

Suddenly the air was filled with "Abanzai" cries and pails of ice cold water caught Tim Evans fore, aft and amidships.

The "water boys" were jockeys Gene Salas, Ron Chabara and Kerry Sam. In the tradition of the track they were welcoming Tim Evans to the club.

The initiation — ice water on a perspiring body — may be frowned on by health faddists but it is as much a part of racing as the $2 ticket.

BROKE MAIDEN

Evans had just ridden his first winner — broken his maiden in the parlance of racing — and he was paying the penalty.

The win came on Salemtown, the only horse Evans has ridden. Previously he had scored a second and two thirds on the Oregon-bred gelding.

Towelling himself, Evans who is 17 and does not give the impression he will balloon into a Haystack Calhoun, said he came to the track in 1964.

"That was in Vancouver," he said. "I was born in Edmonton." He broke in under trainer Alex Jack but it was horsewoman Margaret Ellis who put him in the saddle at Sandown.

AMATEUR BOXER

In his pre-track days he was an amateur boxer — and a fair one — with the East Vancouver Optimist Club.

He fought in the Emerald Gloves and was Bronze Boy in the 80-pounds division.

Another member of the club at about the same time was Wayne Harris, the gifted jockey who was the first to congratulate Evans after his victory.

As Evans was wiping the last drops of water off his slender body, colleague Jack Phillips hollered "Like the water, Tim?"

"It was fine," Evans said, smiling.

Phillips laughed. Asked if he remembered getting the same treatment, he said, "Do I ever! I broke my maiden in the east and they soaked me. Then when I won my first race in the west they wouldn't believe I rode my first winner in the east and I got it all over again."

MUTUEL MURMURS . . . Gus Heer's improved filly Woody Nite became the first three-time winner at Sandown by winning the mile-and-three-eighths feature under a stirring ride by Phillips . . . Woody Nite is 5-for-15 and has won at odds of 10 1, 7-1 and 5½-1 . . . French Cargo was claimed for the second time, going to the Gee Gee Stable for $1,000 . . . The betting was $91,261, off $8,322 . . For the meet the handle is up $81,695 . . .

Views Hold Tyees

It's a new high school soccer season but Victoria High and Mount View are back to their old tricks.

Finalists last year they battled to a 1-1 draw Wednesday at Vic High.

In other league games, Oak Bay, getting all three goals from Glen Myles, edged Claremont 3-2 at Lochside and Mount Douglas tripped Esquimalt 3-2.

Mount View went to the front midway through the first half on Bob Walker's drive. Vic High squared it in the second half on Stu Wallace's goal.

DOUGS COME BACK

Myles scored twice in the first half for Oak Bay. Claremont knotted the score on two goals by Wayne Ruffle but a sustained Oak Bay drive was climaxed by Myles' game-winning goal.

Esquimalt had Mount Douglas in trouble, 2-0, at the half on goals by Terry Graydon. But the Mountainmen clawed back, John Lier finding the range first and Lorne Bunyan rapping in two more.

On Friday Claremont visits Mount View, Vic High hosts Esquimalt and Oak Bay entertains Mount Douglas.

Garibaldi Site Has Support Of Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mayor Tom Campbell has served notice to the Canadian Olympic Association that the city backs Garibaldi Park's bid for the 1976 Winter Olympic Games.

"The City of Vancouver wants the 1976 Winter Olympic Games for B.C.," Campbell said in a wire to James Worrall, Canadian Association president in Toronto.

"City council has committed itself to back the Garibaldi Olympic Association bid."

The mayor said he did not know whether bids will be considered at the association meeting in Toronto next week but requested to appear before it Oct. 13 or Oct. 14.

Garibaldi is a provincial park about 50 miles northwest of Vancouver.

Oak Bay Girls Stop Esquimalt

Oak Bay defeated Esquimalt 2-1 in Girls' Inter-High School Field Hockey League action on Wednesday at Oak Bay.

Val Smith and Colleen Davis scored for the winners; Stephanie Corby scored for Esquimalt.

Mount View and Mount Douglas drew 1-1 at Mount View.

JUBILATION IS SPELLED 'LOU BROCK'

Arms aloft, outfielder Lou Brock celebrates St. Louis Cardinals' 2-1 victory over Boston Red Sox in first game of world series Wednesday. Speedy outfielder had perfect four-for-four day at plate; scored all St. Louis runs.

Fly, Williams Can't . . . But New Lark Can Flee

MONTREAL (CP)—Carroll Williams, Montreal Alouettes' newest quarterback, couldn't be blamed if he sued some of his teammates for non-support today.

Missed blocks, dropped passes and assorted blitzes from Saskatchewan Roughriders' hard-charging defensive corps were the story of Williams' life Wednesday night as the defending Grey Cup champions rode to a 22-12 win over the Eastern Football Conference cellar-dwellers.

Almost every time Williams got the club moving he was either snowed under, forced to run for his life or had his intended receiver drop the ball.

In addition he threw a perfect second-quarter strike to Saskatchewan's Ted Dushinski and watched the former Saskatoon Hilltops junior star gallop 72 yards for a touchdown after the interception.

WESTERN LEADERS

The win moved the Roughies into sole possession of first place in the Western Conference—two points ahead of Calgary Stampeders who have 16 points. It marked the sixth consecutive season the Roughies have beaten the Als in Canadian Football League interlocking play.

In addition to Dushinski's major, the Roughriders picked up a touchdown from fullback George Reed, who took a handoff from quarterback Ron Lancaster at the Montreal 10 and ran through the middle for the touchdown.

Lancaster also hit flanker Hugh Campbell with a 10-yard pass at 9:23 of the fourth quarter. Jack Abendschan converted all three and added a single on a wide field goal attempt in the third period.

SUTTON SHINES

The Als picked up a 42-yard touchdown on a speedy run by newcomer Mickey Sutton in the fourth quarter and two field goals from 27 and 32 yards from the toe of Jim Long, whose convert attempt on Sutton's major was blocked.

Williams, playing his first game since injuring an ankle Aug. 11, completed nine of 24 passes for 161 yards and had interceptions by Dushinski and Bob Kosid.

Campbell caught eight passes for 126 yards.

Lancaster marched the Roughies 137 yards along the ground and gained another 183 through the air as he completed 14 of the 28 passes he threw.

Reed was the top ball carrier on both sides as he ran 86 yards on 12 carries.

LIONS, ESKS, ARGOS ADD IMPORT STRENGTH

The "have-nots" in the Canadian Football League bolstered their rosters today.

British Columbia Lions brought in Bud Owen, six-foot, 235-pound middle guard who played the last two seasons with St. Louis, of the National Football League. Len Sparks, an end obtained from Calgary in an earlier deal, also reported to the club.

Edmonton Eskimos picked up halfback Don Lisbon from Montreal Alouettes on waivers.

Toronto Argos added defensive end Skip Spruill, a 240-pounder, from Calgary.

Four Clubs Entered In New Hoop League

If basketball is your cup of tea, this could be your winter.

The hoop cup is almost running over.

With Victoria Coffee Macs due to campaign for another season the Inter-City Senior Basketball League, the Chinooks ready to take another shot at junior inter-city league honors and a new minor hoop system set for launching, four clubs are ready to add to the fun in a new city senior "B" men's league.

"I've never seen so much interest in a local senior league before," says Neil Sprinkling, president of the new loop.

Sprinkling estimates about 50 players are currently working out with the league's four clubs—Colony Inn, Farmer Construction, Labatts and a squad that has yet to decide on a name.

SUNDAY TWIN BILLS

League games are slated to start Oct. 15 at the University of Victoria gymnasium, which will be the site of doubleheaders on the second Sunday of each month. Other league games will be played Tuesday and Thursday evening at Lansdowne Junior Secondary School.

Each of the "B" clubs will play a 28-game schedule and all coaches hope to add younger players to a core of experienced performers.

All players interested in campaigning in the senior "B" league are invited to attend a registration session and four-club workout at the Lansdowne gym tonight, starting at 7:30.

IT'S BANKING ON SERIES

TORONTO (CP) — World Series viewers waiting listlessly through the commercials for the next play may be shocked into consciousness when they see that one of the advertisers is a Canadian bank.

The Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce has swung into the television sports sponsorship business as one of the series' four co-sponsors, spending an estimated $60,000 just for time and program rights on the CBC's English and French networks.

200 TICKETS . . . . . . FOUR PLAYERS

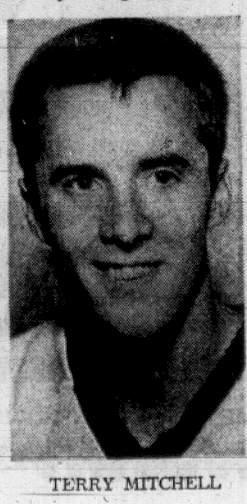
Signings Please Cats

Executives of the Victoria Cougars' Junior Hockey Club are "rather pleased" with their initial signing successes.

The "signing" includes over 200 buyers of season tickets and four players.

The Island's entry in the new British Columbia Junior Hockey League opens its season Oct. 13 in the Okanagan.

BOB WEBB



TERRY MITCHELL

Three defencemen and a forward turned in their signed contracts to coach Doug Anderson. They are Bob Webb, Greg Evans, Al McIvor and forward Terry Mitchell.

Webb, an Albertan who moved to Victoria in 1966 and played with Stockers in the Esquimalt District League last season, is a left-handed shot who is expected to be a mainstay on defence. He is in his last year of junior eligibility.

Evans, a 185-pounder attending University of Victoria, played with Esquimalt Juveniles last season while McIvor, a resident of Parksville, performed with Nanaimo's provincial championship juvenile club.

Mitchell is one of the smallest players in the Cougar camp, but Anderson feels the right-hand shot could be a big goal-producer.

Keon, 'Big M' Sizzle

By The Canadian Press

Frank Mahovlich and Dave Keon continued to cavort in mid-season form Wednesday as the Toronto Maple Leafs blasted Montreal Canadiens 6-1 in a National Hockey League exhibition game before 15,779 fans.

Mahovlich and Bob Pulford connected for two goals each and Keon assisted on each of Mahovlich's tallies. Ron Ellis and Rookie Mike Byers fired the other Toronto goals.

The goals were Pulford's first of the exhibition season.

Yvan Cournoyer scored the Montreal goal. Toronto downed Montreal last season in the Stanley Cup final.

ACES DUMPED

In other exhibitions, Pittsburgh Penguins blanked Minnesota North Stars 2-0 and Philadelphia Flyers defeated Quebec Aces of the American Hockey League 5-3.

Pittsburgh, Minnesota and Philadelphia are members of the expansion section of the NHL.

Art Stratton and Ken Schinkel shared Pittsburgh's goals in the game at Belleville, Ont., and Hank Bassen and Joe Daley split the shutout. Bassen was obtained recently from Detroit in a trade for Roy Edwards and Daley played last season with Detroit's Memphis farm club in the Central Professional Hockey League.

At Sorel, Que., Bill Sutherland, Jim Johnson, John Miszuk, Wayne Hicks and Don Blackburn scored for the Flyers. Andre Lacrois, Jean-Guy Gendron and Larry McKillop replied for the Aces.

KILLED when he was thrown from his mount at Del Mar race track Wednesday was jockey Fred Robertson, 31. His mount, Dublin Hearts, reared and threw Robertson before second race. He was pinned against the starting gate.

JOYAL, TOO!

Kings Sign Cowboy Flett

GUELPH, Ont. (CP) — Eddie Joyal signed a three-year contract Wednesday with Los Angeles Kings of the National Hockey League. Terms of the contract were not disclosed.

Los Angeles also signed Bill "Cowboy" Flett, a winger who was drafted from Toronto by Los Angeles. Kings optioned Wayne Mosdell, 23, to Memphis South Stars of the Central Professional League.

Blockbuster Brock Batters Bostonians in First Game

BOSTON (AP) — "I'm just a regular on the Cardinal club," Lou Brock told sportswriters after the first game of the world series Wednesday.

But after watching the 170-pound speedster perform, Boston Red Sox may place the St. Louis infielder in the superstar category.

Manager Dick Williams of the Red Sox said after his team's 2-1 loss to the National League champions: "Lou Brock just beat us."

Brock banged out four hits, stole two bases and scored both runs in the Cardinal victory. Brock's four hits — to all corners of the outfield — tied a major league record held by many and his two stolen bases was one under the Series record.

In the ninth inning, Brock came to bat with a chance to set a record, but was walked by Boston's relief pitcher, John Wyatt.

Brock said he was aware that he had tied a record. "I heard someone in the press box say it," he said. "But I wasn't going to swing at a bad pitch just to go for the record. I was happy to get a walk because it put a man on second."

'He Hit Four Different Pitches'—Jose

Boston starter Jose Santiago, who's 370-foot drive over the left-centre field wall accounted for the Red Sox only run, said "He (Brock) hit four different pitches for his singles."

Brock's stolen base Wednesday, in the seventh inning, was a decisive play in the one-run game. "I went in head first that time," Brock said in the dressing room.

"He (Boston's Rico Petrocelli) tagged me on the head, but I went in first with my hands." Base stealing is an art with Brock.

"All pitchers have flaws," he said. "You take just one look at a pitcher and you can tell what his flaw is. Some pitchers have flaws in their shoulders, some in their hips and some in their feet. Santiago had a flaw. I spotted it right away."

Brock stole on Santiago, on the first pitch after he singled. "I went in feet first that time," he said.

In the third inning, Brock scored the first St. Louis run from third on Roger Maris' ground ball to first baseman George Scott. In the seventh, he again scored on a ground ball by Maris.

The Boston infield was playing close in the seventh, trying to cut Brock off at the plate. But Boston's second baseman, Jerry Adair, had to dive to his left to grab Maris' ground ball. His only play was to first.

Lou Admits 'Cheating' on Winner

"Even if the ball had been hit right at Adair," Brock said, "I would have gone home. I was cheating on the play. When a left-handed hitter is up, you can cheat a little. If the ball is hit to the right side, except to the pitcher, it's going to take a heck of a throw to get the runner.

"Actually, I was halfway to the plate when Maris hit the ball."

"I still think it will go six or seven games," St. Louis manager Red Schoendienst said after the game.

Boston's Williams, who predicted his Red Sox would "win more than we lose," shook off the loss.

"It's only the first one. We've been down before and rebounded."

Bob Gibson, the St. Louis ace although he missed much of this season because of a broken leg, stuck to his forecast that the Cardinals would win in five games.

Carl Yastrzemski, Boston's triple crown winner, hitless in four appearances against Gibson, stuck to his prediction that the Red Sox would win in six games.

"I know the odds are against us, but I don't think they're a better ball club than we are," Yaz said before some post-game hitting practice.

Yastrzemski and the Red Sox today tried for a comeback behind 22-game winner Jim Lonborg.

Yastrzemski went back on the field after the first game and took 20 minutes batting practice, hoping the extra work would help today against Dick Hughes, who surprisingly won 15 games for St. Louis this year.

"My hands were slow, real slow," Yastrzemski explained.

BLACK HAWKS' BOBBY TOO MUCH . . . . . . BUT IT'S 'ONLY TEMPORARY'

Hull, Yes! Steelers Shift Game to Everett

Victoria Steelers are not afraid of a gridiron collision with Eugene Bombers but they are dodging a head-on financial clash with Bobby Hull and Chicago Black Hawks.

Steelers were scheduled to tangle with the Bombers in a Continental Football League game Saturday night at Royal Athletic Park.

That's the same night the Hawks will be attracting a sell-out crowd at Memorial Arena for a hockey exhibition against Portland Buckaroos.

Fearing the Hawks would slap the Steelers where it would hurt most — at the gate — Victoria manager-coach Don McKeta has switched the Eugene game to Everett, Wash.

Addressing a luncheon meeting of the Steeler Booster Club Wednesday before showing films of last Sunday's game at Sacramento, McKeta emphasized the club would play its remaining home games at Athletic Park as scheduled. He also said he expected to arrange another game in Victoria, possibly against Seattle Rangers, to give season ticket holders their full quota of games.

However, McKeta said, season tickets for Sunday's game would serve as passes at Everett — with two admissions for each season ticket — and still be valid for the extra Victoria game.

Bombers and Steelers will tangle at 2 p.m. Sunday in the 10,000-seat Everett stadium with some grid addicts in that city predicting crowd of about 5,000 fans.

There should be added interest for Everett fans because many of the Steelers reside, or formerly played, in the Puget Sound area.

Since the nucleus of his club is from Washington, McKeta shifted the site of Steeler training sessions to Everett after he and assistant coaches Steve Bramwell and Fred Forsberg last week took over the financially-troubled club from its former owners.

Most of his players have obtained jobs, expenses have been reduced and more frequent practice sessions are producing more cohesion in the team, the coach told the boosters.

Although final plans of his group, of which he holds about 70 per cent interest, have not been decided, McKeta says it is probable the Steelers will be incorporated and shares offered to the public.

There has been no consideration of moving the franchise to another city, McKeta said.

"I'm impressed with the potential of Victoria and we'll be able to get a much better start next season," he said. "I believe this can be a good football town."

He'll know more of his future plans when he meets with the Booster Club again next Wednesday. In the meantime, information on the boosters and the Steelers can be obtained by calling Ove Witt at 384-5632.

SAN DIEGO HERE TONIGHT

Gulls' Irate Triggerman Pulls 'Runners to a Halt

CHILLIWACK, B.C. — Len Ronson is behaving like a snubbed goal scoring champion.

The San Diego Gull winger stepped forward as one of the leading goal-scorers in the Western Hockey League last season, and it must come as a surprise to many when new clubs in the expanding National League failed to draft Ronson.

If he felt slighted, Ronson is certainly showing it in exhibition play—as Phoenix Roadrunners discovered Wednesday.

He scored four goals as the Gulls snapped Roadrunners' pre-season victory streak at three games. The basement-finishers last season, San Diego clipped Phoenix 8-1 here.

The clubs meeet again in Victoria tonight in a game that wraps up Phoenix' exhibition schedule. Game time is 8 p.m.

Gulls were much the fresher and sharper club Wednesday and earned full marks for their victory. They out-shot the Phoenix squad 43-20.

Gull goalie Bob Champoux made it look a convincing victory with a standout display. His 19 saves included several on the difficult side.

A pair of fast and freakish goals in the second period opened the floodgates on Phoenix. Centre John MacMillan started it all when he attempted to pass the puck out from behind the Phoenix goal. The puck glanced off goaltender Rick Charron's skate and bounced into the goal.

Ronson scored his first goal 44 seconds later on another freakish play. His shot skittered through a maze of legs and sticks before finally taking a sharp-angled bounce past a surprised Charron.

LAMOUREUX SCORES

Dick Lamoureux, on passes from Bob Kabel and Brian Smith, had opened the game's scoring.

Thus the first period ended 2-1 and Phoenix' hopes for a fourth straight victory during a two-minute span in the second period. Ronson pulled the trigger three times and MacMillan once, all within the span of one minute, 52 seconds.

That made it 6-1, and for Phoenix, school was out.

Alex Faulkner and Al Nicholson rounded out the San Diego total in the third period. Faulkner's goal actually was batted into the Phoenix goal by Runners' defenceman Bill Shvetz, trying to clear.

Rookie Dave Halme took over from Charron in the final period and surprised Pike with a strong performance.

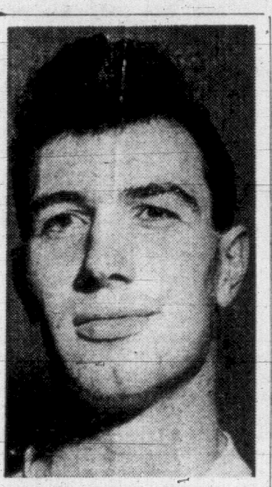
St. Andrews Course Worthy of a Warning



STEADY PLAYMAKING of Bill Hamilton is expected to play vital part in bid of Victoria O'Keefes for Pacific Coast Soccer League victory Sunday at Royal Athletic Park. Hamilton is scheduled to work at centre-half as O'Keefes tackle Vancouver Columbus at 2 p.m.

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (AP)—Doug Sanders warned 10 of his fellow Americans today:

"Watch this course of St. Andrews. Playing conditions change by the minute."

Of the field of 19 chasing first prize of $55,000 in the Alcan Golfer-of-the-Year tournament starting today, Sanders is the only American who has played the course.

Sanders played in the British Open here in 1964 and found it tough.

"It doesn't matter how much you play this course in practice," he said. "Conditions change so quickly."

Billy Casper the 4-to-1 favorite to take first prize, agreed with Sanders.

"I played this course only in practice," Casper said. "But the wind changes so quickly that it's almost impossible to chart the course correctly."

Gay Brewer, reigning United States Masters champion, was 7-to-1 second favorite with Bobby Nichols, and Sanders bracketed at 9-to-1.

The 72-hole tournament ends Sunday.

Esquimalt Joins Up-Island Forces

Teams in the former Esquimalt Hockey League, which becomes the Vancouver Island Hockey League when it opens its seventh season Friday, Oct. 13, will play interlocking games this season.

League officials have announced the four league clubs, Esquimalt Tudors' Stockers, University Vikings and Queen's Own Rifles—will play against teams from Port Alberni, Nanaimo and Powell River during the season.

On opening night, Vikings and Tudors will clash at 7:45 and Stockers will meet the Queen's Own at 9:15.

Some players will get their first test of action this Friday at 8:15 when the league-champion Tudors face an all-star squad from "The Rest."

TREATY LIKELY YEARS AWAY

UN to Debate Sea Wealth Ownership

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—The United Nations, which has refereed some colossal battles over tiny prizes, addresses itself this session to the disposition of the richest treasure house on earth the sea.

Amid the debate on Vietnam and the Middle East, the subject of the sea and its wealth evokes little outright passion. But many delegates believe the "sea-bed debates"—starting this month and ending in a treaty perhaps years away—may prove to be the long-term sleeper of the 22nd General Assembly session.

Debate will hinge on a treaty, proposed by Malta, under which the sea-bed and ocean floor beyond any country's territorial waters and continental shelf would be controlled by the UN, with exploitation of its resources devoted solely to peaceful uses and the development of poor countries.

Those resources, not yet precisely gauged, already are known to be staggering.

GIGANTIC OIL RESERVES

Under the continental shelf alone there exist more than a trillion barrels of oil — several hundred times the world's current annual consumption.

Scattered over the ocean floor are chunks of high-grade minerals—manganese, nickel, cobalt, copper, phosphorus, limestone, magnesium, potassium, boron, sulphur, aluminum and others.

Why have these untold riches gone untapped for so long? Because for centuries it was considered impossible to conduct under-sea operations beyond the relatively shallow shelves.

The science of oceanology has made impressive strides in this century, partly aided by adaptations of technology developed for exploration of outer space.

Where UN debate is expected to flourish—and perhaps wax hotter as years go by—is on the subject of jurisdiction.

The high seas, and whatever lies beneath, always have been regarded as the common property of all mankind. So they would remain, treaty proponents believe, if they were under control of this international organization. While there is legal precedent for the UN to be a property owner, there is no precedent for establishing ownership of the world's oceans. The UN's 122 members would have to agree, although not unanimously, to moving into this legal vacuum.

They also would have to consider the currently-accepted interpretations of national jurisdiction over territorial waters and continental shelves.

In 1945, the United States laid down the so-called Truman Proclamation, declaring that it owned the shelf along its ocean boundaries.

Many other nations followed suit. Chile, Ecuador and Peru claimed the shelves 200 miles out to sea.

In subsequent diplomatic manoeuvres, a generally-accepted definition of continental shelves came to be the undersea land out to a depth of 200 metres—650 feet—"or, beyond that limit, to where the depth of the waters admits of the exploitation of the natural resources."

In light of new technology, that definition appears due for reappraisal.

Another major question is that of fairness.

Continental shelves vary in width from less than one mile to more than 800 miles. Some nations, notably the Soviet Union, Chile and Peru, have been shortchanged geographically. And what about countries that are landlocked?

More than 2,000 lawyers at a Geneva conference of the UN's World Peace Through Law Centre last July, and backers of Malta's treaty proposal, believe that only under UN control can the treasures of the sea be fairly divided among the haves and have-nots to avert national conflict over the potential wealth and power.

They also suggest, in view of the rapid dwindling of land-based natural resources, that man's future lies under the water.

Labor Supports Mill Walkout

Workers 'Pushed to the Limits' By 'Absolutely Ruthless' Experts

By ROGER STONEBANKS

A sudden walkout Wednesday at B.C. Forest Products plywood mill was caused by workers being "pushed to the limits", the Victoria Labour Council was told Wednesday night.

The council voted "full support" to the mill workers in the dispute, although one delegate said "if this is an illegal strike the labor council shouldn't endorse it."

Murray Drew, president of the International Woodworkers of America in Victoria, said the union "tried everything possible to hold the lid on this" including a number of meetings with the company.

'PROFIT FIRST'

"The company is looking at the profit picture first and the welfare of employees second," he said.

"It's too bad because in B.C. Forest Products plywood there has been terrific co-operation in the past. Since the efficiency experts came in there has been a great change to the point where employees hated to go to work."

Mr. Drew, who was out of town when the walkout occurred, said the union will look into what has taken place.

He said there has been a lack of communication between the front office and the production floor, absolute frustration and "because of lack of personnel they are being pushed to the limits. There have been some production breakdowns because of pressure."

Plant committee chairman Jack Burt said "we have come to the point of no return."

'RUTHLESS'

He described the efficiency experts as "absolutely ruthless. They are in there to make money for the company.

"We finally held the crew as long as we could. The committee, of which I am chairman, had discussions last evening but we got nowhere."

Al Carle, chairman of the plant committee at the neighboring BCFP sawmill, congratulated the plywood workers on holding back. "Sooner or later the employees won't stand for it," he said.

The plywood mill employs about 400 persons at the Gorge Road plant.

Federation Hits 'Hotline' Radio Show

The B.C. Federation of Labour has written the Board of Broadcast Governors protesting comments on the hotline show of Victoria Radio Station CKDA.

The federation took the action following a letter from the Victoria Labour Counci, delegates were told Wednesday night.

The federation also sent a copy of an Aug. 15 editorial by hotline moderator Ralph Pashley to the BBG in Ottawa. Text of the editorial was not immediately available to reporters after the labor council meeting.

'TRAVESTY'

"In the past it has been our policy to ignore abuse on the radio," the federation wrote to the BBG.

But the hotline show had become a "travesty on freedom of speech" which "does not include the right to distort fact . . . on any group in society.

"Labor is not the only group to suffer such irresponsible licence."

People who telephoned the hotline to protest either found themselves shouted down or cut off the air, said the federation.

'Twiggy Look' Effort Ends With Death

HALMSTAD, Sweden (AP)—An 18-year-old Swedish girl who wanted to look like her ideal, threadlike British model Twiggy, died a living skeleton in hospital here following a self-imposed "Banting cure", doctors reported today.

The girl died of undernourishment, complicated by pneumonia, after she had become afflicted by a psychic disorder that made her refuse food. She weighed only 45 pounds at her death, said doctors who treated her in this southwest coast town.

The girl and four of her school mates who also idolized Twiggy decided last New Year's on a Banting cure of their own. The Banting cure, named for William Banting, a London undertaker who used it, consists of avoiding mealy, oily or saccharine foods.

The 18-year-old was afflicted shortly by a neurosis which made her refuse all food, even when finally brought to hospital in August.

'Little Historical Value In Svetlana's Memoirs'

LONDON (Reuters)—The Times Literary Supplement, Britain's most distinguished literary review, today blasted Svetlana Alliluyeva's memoirs, calling the book a mediocre work of "little historical value."

The review also hit out at the book's jacket comment.

After noting the wrapper's comparison of Stalin's 41-year-old daughter as a writer with Turgenev, Tolstoy, Chekhov and Pasternak, the anonymous reviewer asked sardonically: "Why not also with Homer, Dante, and Shakespeare for good measure?"

Among the book's weaknesses, the reviewer said its attempted whitewash of Stalin's excesses by blaming his deputy Lavrenti Beria, was ill-conceived and historically wrong.

The reviewer pointed out that Stalin started his purges well before Beria became the chief of the Russian secret police.

CARSON SHOULD QUIT, SAYS LABOUR COUNCIL

The Victoria Labour Council called Wednesday night for the resignation of John Carson, chairman of the Federal Civil Service Commission.

The move followed comments he made in a Toronto speech and reported in Tuesday's Victoria Times. He warned of serious possibilities of collective bargaining for civil service.

A letter carrier told council delegates Mr. Carson "shot his mouth off without thinking".

Council secretary Larry Ryan, a member of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers, accused Mr. Carson of violating regulations and said his only function is applying merit principles in work.

BY LABOUR COUNCIL

Seven-Point Plan Issued on Housing

The Victoria Labour Council adopted a seven-point housing statement Wednesday night.

And in a separate motion, delegates condemned the federal government for recently raising the National Housing Act interest rate on mortgages to 8¼ per cent from the previous 7¼ per cent.

The council's statement said signs of affluence abound in Canada but many people don't share the affluence, especially in housing.

"For hundreds of thousands of people in the low-income bracket, owning a home is now a dream beyond realization," the council said, adding that the increased interest rate "only compounds the problem.

PROPOSALS

The council proposed:

1. Subsidized housing with rentals geared to means;

2. Amalgamation of the numerous municipalities along regional lines. Small municipal governments were unable to undertake the extra costs of urban services;

3. Stop using housing as an "economic regulator." The industry's function was to provide more and better housing, not as an agency to control inflation;

4. Establish a provincial housing corporation to assist in acquisition of serviced land for new construction;

5. Life insurance companies, trust and mortgage companies and chartered banks are "no longer dependable adjuncts of the housing industry" because they lean towards more attractive commercial alternatives with their money, not in the direction of low-cost housing;

RESEARCH

6. Publicly-supported research and architectural services which are vital to improving the industry "which has been hampered for too long by obsolete technology.

"In a society in which other industries have utilized to the full the efficencies of mass production, most of the work in house construction is still done on the old-time basis. Research is needed to overcome obsolete building codes and out-of-date technology";

7. Removal of the 11 per cent tax on building materials.

During discussion, Ed Haw of the International Woodworkers of America said Canadians want housing at a decent price and not to mortgage themselves for life.

The government "should roll back the interest rate to 3 per cent, then the consumer will be able to afford a house."

'HIS', 'HERS' IN PILLS

BRIGHTON, England (CP) — It may be "his" and "hers" for contraceptive pills in a few years, an expert told a meeting of doctors Wednesday night.

Dr. Gerald Ssyer, a consulting endocrinologist, said at the Royal Institute of Health and Hygiene that a reliable birth control pill for men is on the way though it will not appear for five years.

When it arrived, he said, the wife could perhaps take her pill for a year, and the husband his the next year.

IT'S 'FREEBIES' FROM NOW ON

Hippies Shaving Beards

SAN FRANCISCO (Reuters)—The hippie movement here is dead, one of its own spokesmen says.

Instead of hippies, it now is—to coin a name—"the freebies."

Official word of the final wilting of the flower children's movement came Wednesday in an announcement by Ron Thelin, co-owner of the Psychedelic Shop, the mecca of San Francisco's hippie land.

The shop, a combination bookstore and meditation centre in the city's Haight-Ashbury District, will close its doors forever Friday, the 28-year-old hippie pioneer said.

But it will not die unsung. The store's demise will be the occasion for a three-day "death of hippie" celebration, culminating Sunday in a funeral procession.

The new thing is "to be free"—particularly to be free of hippie paraphernalia. Beads and beards are out. Even marijuana may be out.

TOPS GOING BACK ON TOO

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—It's happened: the topless in San Francisco is on the way out and burlesque is coming back.

Al Dunbar, owner of the Peppermint Tree in North Beach, birthplace of the topless five years ago, says it's "not financially popular; I guess the novelty is wearing off."

Power Lack, Apathy Hit By Trustees

VANCOUVER — School trustees from throughout British Columbia fired the first salvo of dissatisfaction at their annual convention here Wednesday — with most of the shots aimed at themselves.

An association past president told the 500 delegates that school boards have no real power and busy themselves at jobs that don't even need doing at the local level.

And a Saskatchewan educator told the convention audience at the Hotel Vancouver that it wasn't current laws or outmoded practices they had to worry about but their own apathy.

'SCAPEGOATS'

School boards exist by the grace of the provincial government to provide "an illusion of democracy and to serve as scapegoats for the Department of Education," said Richard Lester, a lawyer from Haney and a past president.

The elements of public education include curriculum, method, staffing, finance, buildings and administration, he said.

The school board is not involved in the first two, and staffing is handled by a department-appointed district superintendent.

In finance, school boards set taxes which they don't collect and which are subject to arbitration. Ratepayers must affirm by a 60-per cent vote money for schools and this too must be approved by the provincial government.

School buildings, he said, are much the same everywhere while administration is through the district superintendent who answers to the government.

School boards ought to spend their time determining local needs and urging government action.

Boards should be a "a great big political body," said Mr. Lester, that can "lean" on the provincial government.

SIMILAR THEME

A similar theme was sounded by Dr. Wilfred Tait, educational consultant to the Saskatchewan School Trustees Association.

The danger lies in trustees' "Seeming fear of the growing power of teachers' organizations and in their inability or unwillingness to combine their powers in effective action."

Frank Beinder, president of the BCSTA, said the trustees' job is a matter of leadership, finding out what is needed, telling the public about it and selling it to the provincial government.

"The day is past when peace and tranquility are the prime objectives of school boards. We must be prepared to fight for the things we believe in."

He cautioned the convention against noisy attacks on the provincial government.

"Violent reactions will not change the scene . . . The need is for patient devotion to the cause of better education."

MASSIVE FIREPOWER BREAKS SIEGE

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. military authorities reported Wednesday that massive firepower has broken the back of the month-long artillery siege of marines in the Con Thien area but the U.S. commander in Vietnam said he expects the North Vietnamese to renew assaults against marine positions south of the demilitarized zone.

Gen. William C. Westmoreland said the North Vietnamese have had a severe setback at Con Thien because of heavy casualties and adverse weather but added: "I don't think the enemy has given up his aggressive campaign."

Municipal, School Men Talk Peace

VANCOUVER — Municipal and education leaders in B.C. have at least one thing in common — money problems.

And the men who head the two factions stood on the same platform here Wednesday to say they were ready to get together and try to work at common solutions.

Frank Beinder of Trail, president of the B.C. School Trustees' Association, made the initial move at the opening of the association's annual convention in the Hotel Vancouver.

Joe Palyga, also of Trail and president of the Union of B.C. Municipalities, told the 500 delegates he had come "to bury the hatchet."

He suggested a joint committee to hold preliminary talks.

"I'm sure we are ready at any time to sit down with municipal people and study the problems," said Mr. Beinder.

Huge Debarkers Ready This Month

The world's largest floating "debarker" will go into operation later this month to service the Alberni Pacific Sawmill and Alberni Plywoood Divisions of MacMillan Bloedel Limited at Port Alberni.

The project is estimated to cost $1,450,000 and is being handled by the company's central engineering department, working closely with the mills at Port Alberni.

The barge is 138 feet long by 54 feet wide and will be linked to the shore by a 125-foot walkway which will carry conveyor belts feeding hogged fuel to the Alberni Pacific division steam plant.

TWO DEBARKERS

On board are two 60-inch debarkers, powered by electricity. In addition, there is hog equipment to grind the bark into hog fuel, driven by a 350 horsepower motor, plus two chain cut-off saws, electrically powered and hydraulically activated.

The floating "debarker" has its own lunchroom and washroom facilities.

A study of alternative methods revealed an offshore operation to be the most efficient. Logs will be fed straight from the booming ground on to two parallel jack ladders feeding the debarkers. The logs will be debarked at the rate of 400 per shift for each barker and returned to the water for selection to the right converting mill.

NO WASTE

There will be no waste problem as conveyor belts under the debarkers will carry the bark directly to the hog equipment, from where the hogged fuel will move over the walkway by conveyor belt to the steam plant.

The contract was awarded to McKay-Cormack Limited of Victoria.

BOAT, MOTOR TOP PRIZE IN DERBY

COWICHAN BAY — Fishermen will converge on this spot Saturday, Sunday and Monday for the annual Coho Derby.

Cowichan Bay Salmon Club is offering a 14-foot boat and motor as first prize in this centennial year contest. There will be two $100 cash prizes as well as smaller prizes each day.

The derby starts at dawn each day and ends at 4.30 p.m.

The fishing area includes all the waters of Cowichan Bay extending to a line drawn from Hatch Point on Vancouver Island to Cape Keppel on Salt Spring, and all the waters of Sansum Narrows from Bold Bluff to Octopus Point.

In charge of the derby arrangements is club president Danny Robertson.

Courthouse Wait About Over?

DUNCAN — Local Socred president Patrick Rogers has forecast construction of a new provincial courthouse here will resume next month.

He said, "We can expect a favorable response when the treasury board meets later this month."

Foundations of the new courthouse were laid three years ago.

Mr. Rogers defended the delay by saying "It has been caused by social services taking precedence.

"The needs of all the people must be considered before projects such as this are undertaken."

Third Offence Nets Jail Term

SHAWNIGAN LAKE — His third offence of driving while suspended sent George Hall Morgan, 37, of Brentwood Bay, to jail for 3½ months Wednesday.

In court here he pleaded guilty to driving while suspended, careless driving and consuming liquor in a public place.

Morgan was checked near Mill Bay Saturday night and had a bottle of beer in his hand at the time.

Lights Installed

A total of 163 lights have been installed at View Royal, completing a street lighting program started last June.

The program approved last spring at the annual meeting of the fire district, will cost ratepayers a 1½ mill increase in taxes.

Sports Fishing Under Review

OTTAWA (CP) — The need for better methods of evaluating the ecomomic importance of tidal sport fishing in British Columbia was emphasized at a meeting of federal and provincial fisheries officials in Ottawa this week.

The conference, headed by deputy fisheries minister A. W. H. Needler and attended by D. B. Turner, deputy minister of recreation and conservation in British Columbia, also proposed amendments to regulations governing the canning of sport fish.

Federal fish inspection regulations were reviewed and agreement reached on complementary provincial regulations.

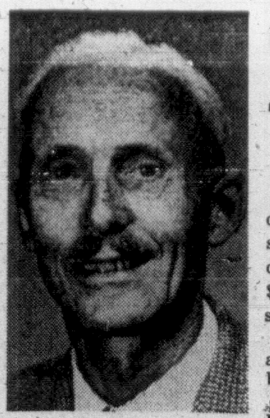
Council Gives Assurance To Build Safe Walk-Way



REEVE MORTON
. . . cement too costly

NORTH COWICHAN — A delegation of parents was not scared off its purpose Wednesday by mention of a cost of $55,000 to build a cement sidewalk on Lakes Road.

They stuck to their demand and municipal council agreed to build a raised gravel footpath.

Council was faced by a 142-name petition from parents whose children will attend the new Roome Road elementary school when it opens in November.

The petition said the children must be provided with a safe walk on the narrow road which is used by a large proportion of Duncan workers going to Crofton pulp mill.

Ormond Springford in a letter to council said that not to build a sidewalk would "invite taxpayers' anger and court disaster."

He wrote as the father of a boy who suffered brain damage as the result of a car accident in the area.

Mr. Springford said, "We would not wish it on anyone else's child.

"Council should not risk lives at the expense of building a sidewalk."

Reeve Donald Morton intimated a cement sidewalk on Lakes Road from Beverly to Herd Road would cost $55,000.

From Beverly to Roome Road junction would cost $16,000 and from Roome Road to Stamps Road intersection would cost $30,000.

Council policy is that it pay half the cost and adjacent property owners the other half.

Reeve Morton said, "The property owners would probably defeat a referendum."

He said, "If we did find some way of paying the entire sum out of general revenue we would have a succession of claims for cement sidewalks throughout the municipality."

A gravel footpath will cost only 10 per cent of the cost of a cement sidewalk, and Reeve Morton said the work could be done more quickly.

Coun. George Whittaker said school board representatives at a joint meeting agreed to recommend these students be transported by bus until a pathway is provided.

The board Monday night divided on the question of providing a bus and referred the matter to committee.

Council decided to build a gravel footpath from Beverly Street to Roome Road.

At the same time a survey will be carried out with a view to acquiring land and widening Lakes Road between Roome and Stamps.

Coun. Whittaker said the Stamps to Herd section of Lakes Road will be considered in next year's public works budget.

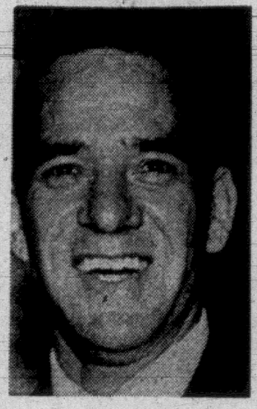
ENCOURAGE SPORTS

N. Cowichan to Hire Recreation Director

NORTH COWICHAN—Happiness for youth leaders is a thing called a recreation director.

Coun. John Cannon said Wednesday appointment of a director would take a lot of unhappiness out of the lives of the volunteers who run the various youth sports in the district.

He said, "Many of them at present are disheartened by the lack of co-ordination in allocating facilities."



CANNON
. . . end unhappiness

Council approved the recommendation of the joint city and municipal recreation commissions that a director be appointed.

It will be allowed for in North Cowichan's 1968 budget.

Reeve Donald Morton said he didn't think council was overreaching itself in agreeing to a director for the city and south end of the municipality in addition to a manager for Fullers Lake Arena.

Commission Chairman Coun. Dennis Hogan said lack of a director was one reason for a decline in recent years of such sports as basketball and badminton.

Reeve Morton said the commissions could not speak regionally until it is known which of the component parts of the newly formed regional district will vote for recreational purposes.

He said, "If, in the interval, the city and municipality budget for a director's salary, the unorganized areas can't back out on the grounds we haven't committed ourselves.

"I don't see how we can not go along with this idea even though recreation is going to cost us more and more money."

Sewer Bylaw Passed

NORTH COWICHAN — Municipal council Wednesday gave three readings to a bylaw to install a sewer system as a local improvement.

Reeve Donald Morton said, "It's a relief to get to this stage when the engineer can get down to drawing up specifications."

He was referring to the defeat of three earlier sewer bylaws.

Total estimated cost of the system is $470,000 and council took powers to temporarily borrow $450,000.

Reeve Morton said the question of whether or not the municipality will have joint use of the city treatment lagoon is still being considered by the respective engineers.

The new system will serve a large portion of the municipality bordering the north and west boundaries of the city of Duncan.

Opponents of the earlier bylaws claimed it would be cheaper to join the city and avoid duplication of services.

Sport Streams Threatened

DUNCAN — Biologist I. L. Withler has told Fish and Game Club members here a flood control plan poses a serious threat to the future of the Cowichan River is a sports stream.

He said proposed channeling of the Cowichan and Koksilah rivers would seriously reduce the fishing resources.

Mr. Withler said the game and wildlife branch, for which he works, is opposing the Water Rights Branch master plan for Cowichan Lake, the Cowichan and Koksilah Rivers and Somenos Creek.

He said, "The plan turns the rivers into chutes and there would be incalculable loss to the aesthetic properties."

Counter proposals are now being prepared by the wildlife branch. Federal fisheries officers said they will be organizing a protest meeting of those affected by the flood control plan.

President of Cowchan Fish and Game Club, Arnie Williams, said the $2,000,000 plan would finish the Cowichan as a salmon river.

Another member suggested the water rights branch was pressing the plan for the benefit of a rumored industrial complex coming to the Cowichan Bay district.

He alleged this was the reason for the city of Duncan wishing to extend its boundaries south.

. . . SHARP

those of managing our prosperity," said Mr. Sharp.

Canada has had a continuing upward trend in the economy over more than six years. There is no suggestion whatever of any downward turn in the near future, he said.

INTEREST RATES

The problem of managing prosperity and dealing with pockets of poverty remained "a very difficult one." It is unexplored territory, said the minister.

He had discussed there problems with the ministers of finance of other prosperous countries at the meetings of the International Monetary Fund in Rio de Janeiro last week.

He found that high interest rates were one of the main preoccupations of all the ministers of finance attending those meetings.

Mr. Sharp's speech aroused immediately speculation that Canada is in for a severe dose of "deflationary" measures such as Prime Minister Harold Wilson imposed on the United Kingdom.

Under the "austerity" program for the British that the Labor government invoked, rising unemployment was deliberately brought about as a government policy. The British also froze wages and prices, but the federal government in Canada does not have that power in peacetime.

The finance minister said that if inflation continued in Canada to send prices and costs soaring the Liberal government would be foreed to take additional steps to try and bring about "stability with prosperity." It has already embarked on a slashing operation for proposed government spending, cutting millions out of the government's estimated expenditures. But Ottawa needed the co-operation of the provinces and private business and industry and labor.

PRICES, COSTS

"The kind of restraint that I am urging is restraint in the field of prices and costs. Our objective is to have a steady expansion. The problem that we face, the U.S. faces and the problem the Europeans face is: how do you combine prosperity with stability?" said Mr. Sharp.

"We are determined in our present review to screen out obsolete expenditure programs that cannot be justified in present circumstances," Mr. Sharp said.

Revenue Minister E. J. Benson, he said, would report to the Commons later in the budget debate, about the efforts made by the government to cut expenditures. The knife was being wielded on everything believed to have low priority.

Already the Treasury Board has eliminated $650,000,000 from the total amount requested by departments and agencies, he said.

Mr. Sharp said the government's objective for the next fiscal year is to reduce substantially the budget deficit below the level of the current fiscal year — $740,000,000. He said he was talking about the government's objectives in terms of budgetary policy, not money.

AIM FOR BALANCE

"From both a financial and economic point of view I believe this will be necessary next year unless there is a major change in the economic prospects for that year. We will aim to produce at least a balance in the federal government's revenues and expenditures in terms of our national economic accounts. Such action is necessary to exercise the fiscal restraint on the economy required to check the inflationary price and cost increases now taking place," he said.

He doubted however that even the most determined action on the part of Ottawa would be sufficient in itself to arrest the kinds of inflationary price and costs increases now taking place. He was confident that Ottawa would be able to secure the co-operation of the provincial governments in a similar effort.

. . . BONNER

vincial governments stall on opting into the national medicare scheme.

"Our position on medicare was established a dozen or more years ago and the proposal of a provincial medicare scheme made a couple of years ago was made specially without reliance on any other government.

"In fact, we said at that time the suggestion of waiting for a national scheme—and these delays were suggested by the NDP and Liberals here—was tantamount to suggesting there be no medicare scheme at all.

"Very frankly, I don't think we ever really believed the federal government would ever carry their proposal out."

However, Mr. Bonner said a formal position on how B.C. will react to Mr. Sharp's veiled hints could only be enunciated by Pemier Bennett, now on a European trip.

Trade and Industry Minister Ralph Loffmark said he agreed with Mr. Sharp's call for balancing the budget.

"What he said is eminently sound and necessary but I only hope that he digs his heels in and means what he says."

Computer Study Due In Saanich

Saanich council is expected to take action later this month which coul lead to the introduction of a computer system at the municipal hall.

The municipal finance committee decided Tuesday night to recommend that council call for estimates from consultants for a computer feasibility study.

Coun. Leslie Passmore said the feeling was that it would be desirable to have some idea of what other consultants could do for Saanich and what their fee would be.

Since Saanich calls for tenders on other phases of municipal business, it was "only fair" to seek estimates from computer consultants.

$7,500 FEE

Just over a month ago, a preliminary study by a chartered accountancy company recommended a complete study and said this would take 300 man hours. Its fee would be a maximum of $7,500.

A representative of the company told councillors the introduction of a computer system will not displace municipal employees.

"It changes the nature of certain positions rather than actually creating any net displacement," he said.

The preliminary study looked into the methods and procedures followed by the general accounting, tax assessment, tax collection and water billing departments.

DUPLICATION

At an early stage, the company said, "it became clear that a certain amount of duplication exists in the maintenance and updating of records used by all departments."

Preparation of tax rolls, assessment records and notices, tax and water bills and other accounting and costing records by computer appeared to be economically feasible.

Reconsideration Pledged on Grant To Commission

Saanich will further reconsider a request for a grant to the Greater Victoria Industrial Commission when planning is completed on a light industrial zone or an over-all plan is ready.

Finance committee Tuesday night heard representations from the commission, an offshoot of the Greater Victoria Chamber of Commerce, seeking a reversal of an earlier decision not to give a grant.

Last year Saanich gave $451.27 to the commission.

Coun. Alan Newberry said a number of commercial applications get turned down at public hearings.

"We are becoming labelled as an unprogressive municipality and it is simply because we don't have areas zoned and set aside for specific purposes yet," he said.

Municipal planners are working on a light industrial area at Royal Oak where Eaton's will build a $300,000 warehouse and small retail store.

Murder Trial To Open Fall Assizes

The trial of James Frederick Redlin, 37, charged with capital murder, will open the fall assizes at Victoria Law Courts on Monday, Oct. 16, at 10:30 a.m.

A millwright from Coombs, near Parksville, he is charged with the fatal shooting of Mrs. Lavina Nicholson, 56, last May 9.

The shooting is alleged to have occurred in the rear living quarters of a roadside grocery operated by Mrs. Nicholson and her husband, Harold, near Sooke.

At the preliminary police court hearing, 17 witnesses were called before Redlin was committed for trial.

Chiropractors Oppose Fluoridation

NANAIMO — Delegates to the 34th annual convention of the Chiropractors Association of B.C. condemned fluoridation of public water supplies.

They also called on the provincial government to extend chiropractic care to welfare recipients in resolutions passed over the weekend.

Dr. William Hartwick of Vancouver was elected president of the association.

Dr. Hartwick succeeds Dr. R. W. Beattie of Vancouver.

Other officers elected were Dr. W. W. Errico of North Vancouver as first vice-president and Dr. Ernest Meidersma and Dr. Norman Schneider, both of Vancouver, as board members.

Today I'm going to bow to a gale of requests — which in columnist's terms means two letters and a phone call — and deal out some more impressions of Montreal.

First, please note that the friendly, lively city by the big river is by no means all Expo and glittering St. Catherine's Street, Place de Ville and the go-go joints that crowd "The Main".

There are also the parks; and of these, the one that family Montreal loves best is the tract that mounts to the summit of Ile Ste. Helene. The world fair surges to its very edge, but beyond, Expo might never have been.

We wandered into this preserve of green grass and welcome shade on a Sunday noon, found a spot at the foot of an elm and sat down to eat our box lunches. Instantly, a grey-uniformed attendant materialized. It was forbidden to picnic here, he told us, but we would find tables over there.

And so we did: acres of trestle tables, each spotlessly clean and — cause and effect, I suppose — flanked by its own trash basket.

We ate our lunch in a completely happy atmosphere of picnicking families, scampering squirrels, and the mellow chiming of the carillon atop the island's fortress-like water-tower.

Then, as we were about to leave, one of the park's mounted police came clip-clopping along a black-topped path.

Win raised her camera. The policemen reined his gleaming mount. Man and horse posed nobly for the length of a shutter-click, then continued their patrol.

It may interest you to know that this large park is also car and hoodlum-free. Cause and effect again?

In the back of the bus rolling down to Montreal from lovely Ottawa, the pack-toting Toronto boy on his wander year was engaged in fierce argument with a young French Canadian.

Their voices were raised, they were fighting another round of that still-unsettled Battle of the Plains, and it seemed that they must next minute come to blows.

The argument raged all the way down to the tangle of curving, looping concrete overpasses that cause bus-drivers to call the Ottawa-Montreal trip 'the spaghetti run.' There, both fell silent, but only for long enough to catch their breath.

"Well, said English Canadian, "I really enjoyed our talk." And the French Canadian, "Here is my address and phone number. If you get into any trouble within a hundred miles, of Montreal, call me."

An exchange that the Separatistes might ponder equally with the Bulldog Club.

Preville is one of the swarm of pugnaciously independent communities that flourish almost in the shadow of downtown Montreal. About 300 families live there in neat brick or brick-and-frame houses, each with its well-tended lawn and garden.

Like the others, Preville has its own mayor and council, but being new and small, must still rely on its neighbor, St. Lambert, for rented fire and police protection.

I was walking with my Preville friend and host while he aired his handsome collie when we observed a cloud of dark smoke staining the blue sky.

We stopped to peer at it; and out to her lawn popped an incensed housewife.

She and my friend conversed briskly, each interchanging French and English as the thought demanded. It was an outrage, they agreed, that St. Lambert should have the impudence to burn its refuse so near the Preville border. Further, they decided that should someone get up a petition to council both would sign it.

All of which leads me to suspect that despite past, present and future alarms, Confederation may manage to survive.

Drowning Victim Intoxicated Rules Nanaimo Coroner

Coroner Russ Inkster has ruled that a man who drowned at sea off Nanaimo Saturday fell overboard from his boat while intoxicated.

He was inquiring into the death of Andreas Schueller, 44, of Burnaby, who was dragged along by the boat for four hours before being pulled out of the water.

Schueller's wife Barbara and a friend, Elizabeth Austin of West Vancouver, tried to get him back in the boat but one of his feet was entagled in a line and he couldn't get aboard.

NO INQUEST

Mr. Inkster said he has decided it is not necessary to hold an inquest into the death.

He said an inquiry has shown that Schueller was responsible for his own death by not exercising the due care and attention expected of someone in charge of a boat.

Mr. Inkster cited two examples of this: Schueller's life jacket was not fully inflated and he had a blood alcohol content of .27 per cent.

The coroner concluded Schueller's death was "due to drowning as a result of falling overboard while in a state of intoxication."

ROUGH SEAS

He fell overboard off Entrance Island lighthouse. The women in the boat managed to slow it down and attracted the attention of a tug with an SOS message but the tug could not come alongside and help because of rough seas.

A Coast Guard cutter finally managed to take Schueller out of the sea. He was prounounced dead on arrival at Nanaimo General Hospital.

Marijuana Trafficker Jailed Year

Ricky Kardera, 18, of CFB Esquimalt, was sentenced in magistrate's court today to one year definite and one year indefinite for possession and trafficking of marijuana.

Kardera was charged Aug. 3 after police arrested him at the parking lot outside the main gate of the Esquimalt base.

The arrest had been arranged by fellow sailors who asked Kardera to obtain the "stuff" and then notified authorities.

Defence counsel Lloyd McKenzie made a strong plea that Kardera be placed on probation.

He said "of the drugs prohibited by the criminal code, marijuana is the least of them.

'SET UP'

"Many authorities believe liquor has just as deleterious effects as marijuana.

"The amount of marijuana involved is very insignificant. The thing was set up, it was not trafficking on any scale.

Counsel criticized the report of the probation officer, calling it "too negative."

He read the court a citation Kardera received a few months ago for saving a heart attack victim's life by mouth-to-mouth respiration until medical help arrived.

"Why was this incident not in the report?" he asked.

LAW 'AS IT IS'

Magistrate Ostler said he would not involve himself in the debate about the marijuana law.

"It is not for me to discuss the controversy which surrounds this drug. I can only uphold the law as it is."

The magistrate told the accused "my own inclination would be to give you probation, but I must consider the deterrent and the fact that this law is being increasingly broken."

Magistrate Ostler refered to the increase in the use of marijuana by young people as "alarming."

Thieves 'Clean Out' Laundromat

Thieves broke into four businesses in the Victoria area overnight.

Intruders forced their way into the Pink Elephant laundromat, 1441 Haultain St., and broke open 16 washing machines and a soap dispenser.

They stole an estimated $75, almost all in 25 cent pieces.

A cigarette machine was rifled by burglars who broke into Chef Antony's cafe at 312 Cook.

The Green Lantern Gift Shop, 1541 Fort St., was also entered, but nothing was taken.

At press time, police were investigating a fourth break-in at Jimmy Little's, 2017 Quadra St.

Mayor Chides Pair For 'Pushing' Centre

Fear of losing a proposed convention centre site was expressed to aldermen today by convention site chairman Ald. Percy Frampton.

But at the same meeting Mayor Hugh Stephen chided those who would "galvanize us into a decision" simply for the sake of getting a centre established in Victoria.

He reiterated to council finance committee essentially what he told Victoria Chamber of Commerce directors August 11, that full consideration must be given to alternative sites before a decision is taken.

"I deplore the feeling 'gotta get it done, gotta get it done. Doesn't matter whether it's a wrong decision. Gotta get it done.' That's wrong.

"We shouldn't be galvanized into a decision," the mayor said.

ALTERNATE PLANS

Ald. Frampton said Oxford Leasehold, a firm interested in a $14 to $17-million development opposite city hall, was considering alternate plans that might exclude a convention centre.

"It bothers me that we may lose this site," he told the committee.

But Oxford representatives will be in Victoria for another meeting with the alderman's committee early next week, he said, and a report will be made to council Thursday.

RESENTS SUGGESTION

The mayor resented a suggestion by Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow that the committee studying convention centre proposals was not acting to keep abreast of various alternatives.

City manager Dennis Young remarked, "We're not doing nothing."

"I'm 14 years on council and I don't know anything about what's going on," Ald. Edgelow complained. He said he was getting pressure from businessmen for more action.

"This is ridiculous," Mayor Stephen said.

"You know there is an urban renewal study; that's all I know," he said, referring to a proposed urban redevelopment project, to include a convention centre on the Inner Harbor.

LOST 'OTHER TWO'

He made clear that until the urban renewal study is completed council could not consider a final site for the convention centre.

FRIENDLY WORD FOR ALL

'Chief' Cracks Books With Solarium Cubs

Despite the nearly two-hour task of shaking 2,000 hands at a rally of cubs and scouts at the Bay Street Armories Wednesday night, Sir Charles was fresh and cheerful as he moved among the boys — most of them in wheelchairs or on crutches — and talked to each one.

He had a bright-eyed smile and friendly word as he shook each boy's hand in the traditional left-handed manner. They were in uniform for the occasion.

Sir Charles kept the boys entertained with remarks about his travels and he also studied some of their books with them.

One of the boys said he was glad to see the Chief Scout "because we got out of school."

After talking to the cubs for half an hour, Sir Charles walked outside with them to look at flower beds that the boys tend as part of their work towards proficiency badges.

He was accompanied on the visit by Greater Victoria region scout officials and his aide, Peter Cooke, Commonwealth secretary from the Scout Association offices in London.

Later in the morning Sir Charles visited City Hall. He was guest at a luncheon hosted by the Saltire Society at Holyrood House before leaving for Vancouver.

From there he will continue on his five-week tour of Canada, going to the east coast and finishing at Ottawa.

"HEY! HE LIKES THE SAME BOOKS WE DO," is the reaction of Clifford, Michael and Miles, Cubs of the Solarium Pack, to the visit of Chief Scout Sir Charles MacLean today. (Times photo.)

Head-On Collision Kills City Salesman

Vehicle On Wrong Side of Road

A 24-year-old Victoria man was killed in a head-on collision on a road southwest of Nanaimo Wednesday.

Dead is Charles Hayward (Ian) Butt. He had been working as the Port Alberni manager of a vacuum cleaner company.

He was apparently on his way to MacKay Lake to do some fishing between business appointments when the accident occurred.

Nanaimo RCMP said Butt's car went round a curve on the wrong side of the road. It was raining and the road was wet at the time.

A B.C. Telephone truck was going in the opposite direction on the curve and swerved to the left to avoid Butt's car just at the time when Butt pulled back into his own lane.

The driver of the truck, Roderick McDowell of Duncan, suffered a facial cut but was treated in hospital for shock.

Police said it is unlikely there will be an inquest into the accident.

Butt is survived by his wife Anne; his mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Hayward Butt, 1116 Colville; his grandmother, Mrs. Mary A. Butt, 1179 Esquimalt; and an uncle, R. S. Butt of Victoria.

Magistrate To Set Bail At $10,000

Magistrate Ostler will set bail at $10,000 Tuesday when he proposes to commit Leslie Millin, 55, of Vancouver, for trial on fraud charges.

Millin, said to be an ordained Baptist minister, is charged with three counts of fraud arising out of the multi-million dollar Chateau Victoria development.

The project was to provide suites and recreational facilities for older people on property near Royal Roads. Construction never started.

Allen Smith, a consulting engineer and vice-president of BHP Investments Ltd., the principal firm involved, was the final crown witness at the hearing. He testified a combined bid from two companies to build the entire complex was $5,800,000. A second bid submitted later to build only part of the scheme was $2,900,000.

Neither bid was accepted.

Ask The Times

Q. What do the words Britain and Britannica mean? M.C.

A. According to Shipley's dictionary of word origins, Britain comes from the Celtic word Brython which means tattooed. Britannica comes from the French Britannique which is the adjectival form of Britain.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

No Sign Of Break In Walkout

Meanwhile 35 workmen left their jobs Wednesday at the Van Isle Moulding and Millwork Ltd. plant at 5117 El Monte in Saanich.

In the BCFP dispute, efficiency experts brought in by the company from the U.S., are reported by labor spokesmen to be the cause of workers' dissatisfaction. (See story Page 13).

A spokesman for mill manager T. D. R. Humphreys said at noon today there has been no communication from workers.

In the unrelated dispute, Peter Brotherson, president of Van-Isle, said he received verbal notice 48 hours before his men walked off at the 7 a.m. shift, leaving only key personnel at the plant east of Elk Lake.

The workers, members of the International Woodworkers of America, wanted "more money and several other things," said the president.

"There are a few peculiarities going on which I can't discuss right now," he said this morning. No approach had been made by employees to him.

The last written contract expired in June last year and since then Van-Isle has been paying its men according to terms drawn up on an annual basis by Forest Industrial Relations and agreed to by the union.

Book Rental Money Taken

Text book rental money totaling $515.50 was taken from the safe of S. J. Willis Junior Secondary School Sept. 27.

The safe, in the school office, is kept locked after hours. It is open during school hours.

Police are investigating.

FASHION MODELS AND PRIZE FIGHTERS FACE THE SAME PROBLEMS

By PAT DUFOUR

Wednesday evening I watched a fashion show, and it was more like sitting in a ring, waiting my turn to have Cassius Clay pummel me to pieces.

On-stage, the scene was much as ever as Pam Middleton, Audrey Kraeling, Pat Wilson, Pat Morrison, Nicci Gaston and Pearl Willock showed styles from Miss Frith's at the Christian Education Building under the sponsorship of the Esquimalt United Church Women. Their smiles rivalled those in toothpaste advertisements, their seamless stockings remained unwrinkled and their pivots were worthy of a ballerina.

Back-stage was a different matter. Clay would have tossed his championship belt away for the footwork sported by the six models as they hustled in and out of eight outfits apiece . . . all in the space of 1½ hours.

This was my first backstage glimpse of a fashion show and it left me feeling as if Win Sinclair was the greatest 'front man' in the world as he commentated in relaxed fashion, knowing that those perfect creatures had appeared on-stage after physical and mental pressures rarely rivalled in a training camp.

Dorothy Way, Marjorie Haggerty and Gene Smith proved the most nimble of 'seconds' as they whipped costumes off, dashed up zippers, chose accessories in seconds and sent their charges off with an almost superfluous "take a deep breath and smile!"

Some couturiers, I found, like to provide obstacle courses for women brave and strong enough to model. They dream up alluring outfits which require the fastening of 31 tiny buttons, produce decolletages that force a swift changing of bras and create pant suits in which you should bend with a modicum of care, providing you have the time.

If you think you have trouble keeping up with the ups and downs of hemlines, take pity on a model. I never before suspected that some of those sophisticated women that make me green with envy as they glide down a runway have, in actual fact, an extra bulge around their middle in order to obtain just the right height of a hemline.

Talking of bulges, there was one crisis last night when a model asked her 'second', just as she was whizzing out "is it all right, I forgot to put my girdle back on?" Luckily, it was. A model's setting-up exercises behind stage don't allow for the gathering of extra inches.

HARD ON NERVES

The mental tension rises as models badger their helpers, looking for a lost earring, misplaced glove and a lipstick that doesn't shriek in protest as its wearer shrugs herself out of a delicate pink negligee into a sizzling number that's hot with tangerine, avacado and pumpkin.

There are rewards. Whoever gave a wolf whistle as one model appeared last night has made a friend for life. The model has no idea who it was but her ego is still muttering thanks.

As the audience tapped their toes to the music of a Hi-C group from the church during intermission they had no idea of the hustle and bustle the zany beat was hiding. I doubt that even the convener, Mrs. C. A. Kelly, and her helpers, Mrs. T. Flannagan, Miss Mary Ward, Mrs. J. Owens and Mrs. A. Cuthbert were in on the secret. They were too busy preparing the refreshments that would help make the evening a success and raise $250 for their funds.

And, I almost forgot, in between trying to remain unobtrusive in the change room, I also had a chance to confirm that this season's fashions are the most exciting ever.

They've gone way up, in the shape of space helmets any astronaut would give his wife for Christmas, and way out, in colors and styles that make you wonder if the creator received his inspiration during a 'trip'.

I even had time to notice a few details, such as the mix-and-match hats that come complete with zippers in their crowns so that the wearer can switch with the brims of other accommodating chapeaux.

I've also discovered the antidote for my aversion to succumbing to crash diets when the need is vital. Providing I can stand the pace, I can always sign up as a volunteer model!

Minister's Daughter Is Married

Several Victorians and former Victorians travelled to Montreal recently to attend the wedding of Miss Sandra Jean Turner and Mr. Gwerfyl Richards in Dorval United Church.

Parents of the principals are Dr. David B. Turner, 933 Foul Bay Road, the late Mrs. Turner, and Mr. and Mrs. Trevor Richards of Glamorgan, South Wales. The provincial deputy minister of recreation and conservation gave his daughter in marriage.

Other Victorians at the ceremony were Dr. and Mrs. G. B. B. Buffam, the bride's brother, Mr. Robert Turner; Mr. and Mrs. R. Straith. Former Victorians attending were Miss Lois Robbins and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Buffam, all of Montreal, and Mr. and Mrs. T. Moulds of Ottawa. The bride's aunts, Mrs. W. Donnan, Edmonton, and Mrs. J. Coulter, New Westminster, were also at the service.

The bride was a picture in an A-line afternoon dress of white brocade which she wore with a white satin pill box, trimmed with a bouffant veil. Her shoes and gloves toned with her ensemble. For floral complement she carried a single white orchid.

Rev. P. W. Jones officiated at the afternoon ceremony. Miss Arlee Gale travelled from Victoria to attend the bride. She chose an afternoon dress of turquoise silk. The groom's cousin, Idwall Richards, travelled from Ottawa to be his best man.

Dr. Buffam proposed the toast to the bride's happiness at the reception which followed in the Skyline Hotel at Dorval.

Following the reception, the couple left on a honeymoon trip to Wales. The bride was wearing a knit dressmaker suit of grey and white stripes, a wide-brimmed winter white hat of felt and black patent accessories.

On their return to Canada, the newlyweds will make their home in Victoria.

ASK ANDY

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a World Book Atlas.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Brendalea Hubbard, age 10, of Victoria, B.C., for her question:

How does topaz differ from corundum?

Topaz is a glassy crystal, tinted with lemon or sunbeam colors. The earth has several recipes for making topaz from different ingredients. The value of the topaz depends upon the mineral ingredients nature uses to make it. The most precious topaz is made from a mineral called corundum.

Nature's gem stones are made from the same minerals used to make the ordinary rocks in the ground. Carbon atoms can be arranged to make soft, sooty graphite or hard, glassy diamonds. The gem stones are everyday atoms and molecules, arranged in compact formations to form glassy crystals. Traces of other minerals may tint the crystals with color, adding beauty and value. Ages ago, yellow tinted crystals found in the ground were named topaz. This was long before gem admirers knew that nature's jewels were made from ordinary atoms and molecules.

Now we know that nature has at least three recipes for making yellow crystals. We still call all of them topaz and though they may look alike to us, an expert can tell the difference. False topaz, or citrine, is made from silica, the plentiful mineral used to make sand and quartz. Its molecules can be crowded together in crystal formation and tinted with traces of color. Specks of decay may be frozen inside the glassy prison to add tints of marigold or lemonade. But this handsome yellow topaz is rated only as a semi-precious gem.

Precious Stones

Precious topaz is made from a different mineral. Its molecules contain atoms of aluminum and fluorine, silicon and oxygen. When packed together, these molecules form a harder, brighter crystal than the quartz crystals of citrine. This mineral crystal may be glassy clear or watery blue, tinted with brown or ghostly pink. The yellow and yellow-brown types are called topaz and jewelers rate them as precious gem stones.

But nature has a recipe for making a yellow crystal that is even more precious than precious topaz. Jewelers call it Oriental topaz and it is made form the mineral called corundum. The molecules of corundum are packages of ordinary aluminum and oxygen atoms. When arranged in crystal formation, they form a gem that is much harder and brighter than either precious topaz or citrine topaz. In nature, the hardest of all stones is the diamond. Corundum rates second in hardness but some of its beautiful crystals are priced above the value of diamonds.

'PURITAN FLOWER CHILDREN'

New-Style Hippies Forsake Love Street for Suburbs

By TERRY ROBERTS

NORTH VANCOUVER, B.C. (CP) — A new strain of hippies is flowering in affluent North Vancouver — divorcing itself from the psychedelic drug aura of Vancouver's Love Street.

The puritan flower children have set up housekeeping in the Lynn Valley residential area on the slopes of Grouse Mountain about eight miles from the Fourth Avenue district — nicknamed Love Street — where hippies and teeny-boppers abound.

Why did they leave the big scene?

"Fourth Avenue is too commercial," says Richard McConville, 23, a spokesman for the group that numbers up to 20 as adherents come and go.

"It's not a place to live, but a place to go.

"Their whole bag is dope. We're above that. Ours is cultural."

The North Vancouver core numbers about eight and includes about three girls. Ages range from about 17 to the mid-20s.

The group indicated some of its members have tried LSD, marijuana and the other so-called "head" drugs, but say none is used in their North Vancouver haven.

"That stuff's just a crutch," says Gerald Giampa, 17. "We don't need it.

"Fourth Avenue pushes it too much. And they're always trying to organize love-ins in school yards and everywhere."

A difference also lies in neighbors.

NO DRUG PEDLARS

The aged houses of the Kitsilano district encompassing Love Street are likely to contain other hippies bedding down en masse. Kitsilano also harbors merchants who cater to hippies.

The North Vancouver puritans also sleep communally, but their neighbors have homes in the $20,000 bracket. And there are no specialized merchants or hangouts for "acid heads" — users of such drugs as LSD.

McConville and Giampa say Love Street hippies draw unemployment insurance and welfare, a subject which brought the wrath of civic officials upon Fourth Avenue groups and resulted in a ruling that hippies must register for employment before collecting welfare.

The puritan hippies say it is such antics and publicity—"We feel like we're in a zoo sometimes" — that result in charges from straight people that the flower children are "leeching and sucking from society."

"Nobody here taks unmployment," says McConville. "We are not sucking on society."

Hippes generally consider dropping out of society "cool," but in North Vancouver the scene ironically is taknig on a respectable tinge.

RESTORE OLD HOUSE

It shows in their restoring a run-down house to the satisfaction of municipal council, which gave them four months to make the condemned dwelling livable.

They got the three-room house "under an agreement" with its 81-year-old owner, recuperating in a veterans' hospital.

Money for their existence and house repairs, which include building a sewer to tie in with the municipal system, comes from household members and friends who work for a few days or weeks.

"We are living on next to nothing," says Giampa.

"Our costs run about $3 a month for electricity," says McConville.

Food costs vary, they say, but are usually low. Their larder contained a 100-pound bag of rice and green tea.

McConville says money all goes into sort of a collective pot — "I guess it's really socialism."

The four-month deadline followed complaints from neighbors that the flower children were an odious addition to the area.

Brendalea Sets Sights On Atlas

A 10-year-old girl who is fond of reading Ask Andy questions in The Times, has won a 20-volume set of World Book Encyclopedia.

But Brendalea Hubbard, 1410 Hillside, submitted several questions before she picked a winner. It is answered in the column at left.

Brendalea is now going to try for a World Book Atlas.

I was thrilled to hear that I had won the prize," she said.

A pupil at Oakland School, Brendalea likes music and art. She also reads a lot, especially fiction. She bowls and is a firstclass swimmer.

STRONG FENCES A MUST

Ranchers Invited To Bid on Buffalo

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada again may become the home where the buffalo roam. The national and historic parks branch of the northern development department is advertising nationally for tenders to sell some of their buffalo herds for commercial ranching.

"It should be a reasonably profitable business," said J. I. Nicol, acting branch director.

"We have a constant stream of inquiries from people wanting buffalo meat from our herds. We've never been able to supply the demand and especially this year with Expo 67 and the Centennial clambakes."

It is the first time the branch has launched a program to sell the buffalo on the hoof. In the past, meat was sold from the buffalo slaughtered in herd management.

CONTROLLED HERDS

A few private herds are in existence but the main surviving descendants of the thousands of Buffalo that once ranged the western plains live in controlled herds at Elk Island National Park, near Edmonton, and Wood Buffalo National Park, on the Alberta-Northwest Territories border.

The herds are kept mainly as scientific and natural history exhibits. A few have been sold before to zoos.

Mr. Nicol said the buffalo being put up for tender will come from the disease-free herds at Elk Island.

The department placed ads in Canadian newspapers about 10 days ago calling for tenders at a minimum price per animal of $300.

Mr. Nicol said buffalo are hardier than beef cattle and require roughly the same range. The main problem in raising them for meat is the need for strong fences.

"An electric fence is no good," he said. "They'll charge an electric fence and get a good jolt as they go through but they'll break through all right.

BE CAREFUL

"Of course, you have to be more careful herding them than cattle, especially if there are bulls around."

For a start, the branch plans to sell one herd of 22 cows and three bulls.

Based on the experience of herd management, department officers figure they will be able to judge reasonably well how successful the buyer can be when they know what experience and facilities he'll have.

"It's going to take a long time to develop commerical ranching of buffalo," one official said.

One reason is that, given a good year, the 25-animal herd should produce about 16 calves a year, which means something less than that could be marketed.

8 CARD OF THANKS

The gratitude in our hearts can never be fully expressed, but we want our friends, relatives and neighbors to know how much their kind words and expressions of sympathy have meant to us during our recent time of sorrow in the sad loss of our husband and father, William T. Moore. Special thanks to Canon J. Rogers.—Mrs. Anna Moore and Family.

9 IN MEMORIAM

DEY—In loving memory of my husband, Frank Charles Dey, who passed away in New Westminster Oct. 5, 1966.

Without you, grief's a leaden
weight,
A pendulum, hung where my heart
should be;
To tick away the lonely hours of life,
Since death took you away from me.
—Ever remembered by his wife
Edna.

DOBBIE—In loving memory of our dear Mom and Nana, Ethel Beatrice, who left us so suddenly Oct. 5, 1966.

God saw the road was getting rough
And the hills were hard to climb,
So he closed her weary eyelids
And whispered "Peace be thine."
And while she lies in peaceful
sleep
Her memory we will always keep.
—So sadly missed by her loving daughter Kay, son-in-law Red and family.

DOBBIE—In loving memory of our dear wife, mother and grandmother, Ethel Beatrice, who passed away Oct. 5, 1966.

Time speeds on, one year has passed
Since death its gloom, its shadow cast
Within our home, where all
seemed bright,
And took from us a shining light.
We miss that light, and ever will,
Her vacant place there's none to fill.
Down here we mourn, but not in vain,
For up in heaven we will meet again.
—So sadly missed by her loving husband Alex and family.

BRIDGE LESSON

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Today's column is sort of a milestone in bridge terminology. We are showing an old play but are giving it a specific name which it should have received years ago.

A certain play by declarer is called the obligatory finesse because this particular finesse can win and can't lose. We are calling a certain defender's play the obligatory falsecard because it can win and can't lose.

South ducks the first spade but has to win the continuation. He can count seven tricks only but has chances for more in every suit except spades. The best chance is in hearts so South leads the deuce of hearts and finesses dummy's jack after West plays the five.

South can now count eight sure tricks. He plays out dummy's king of hearts and West must drop the queen. Since the jack has been played the queen and ten become equals but South knows that West holds the queen. He does not know who holds the ten.

Without the use of this obligatory falsecard by West, South would surely drop the queen later on and make his ninth trick. South might still drop the ten but he might not.

The play would continue with South leading a low diamond from dummy and ducking in his own hand. East's ten would hold the trick and East would lead another spade. Then South would lead a diamond to his ace and another diamond back to dummy's king. East would show out and the chances are that South would reason that since West was long in diamonds he would be short in hearts. Then West would finesse against the ten of hearts and West would take his ten of hearts plus enough tricks to set three no-trump.

Andy Stephen Looks at TV

Take a close look at the series products on television now and you can come up with a single formula for success.

The idea is to have someone run for their lives or chase something from episode to episode.

Jay North's newest NBC-TV series is Maya. It is a kid's adventure series in which two teen-aged boys team up with an elephant in an attempt to find a father, a great white hunter reported to have been killed by a man-eating tiger in India.

Stephen

Over at the other network, ABC-TV, Walter Brennan has come back on the scene as a father of a legendary gunfighter. In the "Guns of Will Sonnett," Brennan tries to find out the truth about his gunslinging offspring.

The fledgling network has another series in its second season, The Invaders. Here a man has found that creatures from way-out-beyond have landed on earth and he is intent on telling his fellow-man about it. They won't listen.

So far it has been a story he can't prove but because the series has started to lag in interest he'll have others back his claim.

Then, of course, NBC-TV has had Ben Gazzara running for his life with a terminal illness. His time is almost up from the series point of view but as long as people watch, he'll run.

The silent movie days and the first talkies doted on the chase in the serialized cliff-hanging Saturday afternoon clinkers. The people were fascinated by it and film factories cranked the product out to satiate the demand.

All television did was modernize the theme. ABC-TV's The Fugitive was proof that the home viewer relished the chase. When the program finished its successful four-year run last month, ABC had over 75 per cent of the viewing audience sitting in.

GOVERNMENT URGES

Centennial Theme For Thanksgiving

Saturday and Sunday will be observed throughout British Columbia as days of thanksgiving for Canada's centenary.

A B.C. government order to this effect has been signed by Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes.

It urges that all religious denominations in B.C. shall give thanks for "the blessings of nature and the peace and prosperity with which this province and our nation has been so abundantly endowed."

A mass service of thanksgiving will be held in the Memorial Arena Sunday at 7:30 p.m. Rev. Dr. Samuel Parsons, president of Greater Victoria Council of Churches, will preside and the address will be given by Rev. A. G. Faraday, command chaplain Maritime Pacific.

The service will open with a procession of Victoria's various racial groups, led by Helen and Henry Hunter, representing native Indian tribes.

An entirely different kind of thanksgiving observance is planned by the Victoria committee of Canadian Aid for Vietnam Civilians.

It is described as a thanksgiving non-feast and will be held in the Pendray Hall of Metropolitan United Church on Saturday at 7 p.m.

"We shall eat a symbolic supper of rice and tea to give us a sense of identification with the people of Vietnam," said Clare Yarwood, president of the Victoria committee.

"While thanksgiving holidays are associated with feasting and rejoicing it seems appropriate to take a little time to think also of the pointless suffering of all those unhappy people in Vietnam.

"And we can express our concern by sending gifts of medicine and other comforts to them."

After supper, Dr. Henry Mayer of Redwood City, California, will give an illustrated talk on his recent visit to Vietnam.

Claude T. Crosby will give a report on the Vancouver Medical Aid Committee.

PARENTS HUNT DRUG PUSHER

PALOS VERDES, Calif. (AP)—Alarmed parents in the exclusive Palos Verdes area near Los Angeles plan to pay for a sheriff's deputy to find out who is supplying marijuana to their children.

The number of narcotics arrests, among teen-agers especially, has grown sharply. There have been 70 such arrests in the area in the first six months of this year.

N.W.T. Official Aboard Plane Down in North

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — A spokesman for Northern Mountain Airlines Ltd. said Wednesday night he is convinced that wreckage spotted in the Northwest Territories is one of his company's planes and it was carrying Bill Berg, newly-elected territorial councillor for Mackenzie River, N.W.T.

Ed Macpherson, manager of Northern Mountain, said there were four men aboard the Beaver aircraft, which left Fort Simpson, N. W. T., Saturday piloted by Robert Shepherd, 41, of Fort Simpson.

Mr. Macpherson said the plane was scheduled to pick up Mr. Berg, about 28, a game outfitter, at Little Dal Lake, 190 miles northwest of Fort Simpson, and two unidentified Indian guides from the district.

When the plane failed to return Monday, the air force was notified. A Hercules search aircraft Tuesday reported sighting wreckage on the side of an unnamed mountain peak, about 12 miles west of the lake.

RCMP were to leave Fort Simpson today in an attempt to land a plane near the crash site. An air force parachute rescue team was delayed at Fort Nelson, B.C., by bad weather.

2 Heads, Lawyer Needed Here

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY I've been married 13 years and have three children. My husband has asked me for a divorce, and he has gone to room at his girl friend's house. He wants to take the children there for week-ends. Do you think I should let them go? He came to get them for the day and he had this girl in the car with him. What do you think of flaunting that girl in front of me and the children?

He has asked me for a "peaceful" divorce. He doesn't want me to mention her in the divorce and he's asked me to go easy on him when I ask for alimony and support money. He also expects me to help with the bills, but he still wants to claim the children as exemptions on his taxes. I've worked all the years we were married. He worked only off and on. He's unemployed right now. What advice can you give? Two heads are better than one.

NEEDS HELP

DEAR NEEDS: Two heads are better than one, provided they aren't on the same person. Don't allow your children to week-end with their father and his girl friend. Tell the boob there ain't no Santa Claus, and let your lawyer work out the best financial arrangements possible.

DEAR ABBY I would like your opinion on mouth-to-mouth kissing. My husband and his mother kiss each other on the mouth and sometimes it is so mushy, you would think they were sweethearts, not mother and son. Not only that, but my husband kisses our children on the mouth—even our 14-year-old son!

I wouldn't think of kissing our children on the mouth, Abby. I kiss them on the cheek and teach them to return my kisses the same way. I think this communicates enough affection between parent and child. Who is right, my husband or me? We have had some hot arguments over this.

INQUIRING

DEAR INQUIRING I vote for you. All mouth-to-mouth kissing is somewhat hazardous from a hygienic point of view. But a kiss between lovers somehow justifies that risk.

DEAR ABBY I am desperate and actually sick from worrying about something you will probably think is a trivial matter.

My son will have his ninth birthday soon, and I have decided against giving him a birthday party this year for the simple reason that I do not know how to keep the mothers away.

Last year I had more uninvited guests at my son's birthday party than invited ones. This is what I mean

A mother "brings" her child to the birthday party, and she'll also bring along one or two of her younger children saying she couldn't leave them home. Then she just stays. (Most of these children live within a mile of us.)

Abby, this means extra ice cream and cake, plus plates, cups and napkins, which I really wouldn't mind so much, but it's impossible to put on a birthday party for children and try to entertain adults at the same time. What can I do? If I say the party is for children only, some of the mothers might get mad and refuse to let their children come. If you, or other mothers have any ideas on how to work this out, I would be very grateful.

BAFFLED

DEAR BAFFLED If you have friends who drive, perhaps as a favor to you they would collect and deliver home those children whose mothers would pose a problem.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been married for seven years, and although we love each other very much, I have one big problem. My husband does not want any children. He told me before we were married that he didn't want a family, but I was sure I could change his mind after we were married a while.

What is wrong with him, Abby, to think this way? He says in his opinion it is a sin to bring children into the kind of world we now have. What can I do?

CHILDLESS

DEAR CHILDLESS: Your husband is entitled to his opinion. And since he expressed the same views before you married, you don't have a legitimate complaint. Unless you can change his mind, you will have to remain childless.

DEAR ABBY: About that girl who thought her boy friend should get a job as a policeman because he was "good with guns:" What we need more than people who are "good with guns," are people who are good with people.

M.M., ATLANTA

DEAR ABBY: My brother married about 10 years ago and moved to the west coast. That marriage ended in divorce, which was unfortunate for his three children. Soon afterwards, another marriage, and another batch of children. Then another divorce. This news came when my husband was quite ill, so I decided not to tell him anything about it

That was a year ago. Today I received a letter from my brother—bubbling with enthusiasm. He's coming to visit us with his new "girl friend." He knew we had only one spare room, but could we get one of our neighbors to accommodate his friend? What do I do now? Insofar as my husband is concerned, my brother is still married to Number Two.

My brother says in his letter that his latest is a living doll, 25 years younger than he, but misunderstood by her husband! My brother is now 63, has had a lot of unhappiness in his life and I hesitate to contribute to it, but I can't have him here with a lady who's married to someone else. What should I do?

PERPLEXED

DEAR PERPLEXED: Write to your brother and tell him your position. And I suggest that you put your husband up to date on Brother's latest caper. You may have unexpected company.

Troubled? Write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. For a personal reply, enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Have Sewing Trouble? New Books a Big Help

By Penny Saver

Sewing is not one of my better talents as I have found out many times. The latest catastrophe was a dress. Everything went well until it was time to put in the zipper. Somehow I managed to get a piece of skirt under the zipper when I was putting it in. After taking the stitching out and getting ready to start again I was out of patience and ready to throw the dress away when a neighbor phoned. She was going downtown to do some shopping and wanted to know if I would like to go with her. Happy to find an excuse to leave the sewing for a short time I agreed.

For the not-so-skillful seamstress the books I found would be a great help. There is a book for almost every variety of sewing you would do. Have trouble making mandarin collars? Buy a book on how to make collars. You want to make a belt and don't know how? I found a book entirely on how to make one for a dress or a skirt. Most helpful to the home sewer is a book on how to make your own patterns. Each book sells at 29 cents.

If you have trouble with needles that are hard to thread you will like the new self-threading needles. These needles are the same size as regular basting and embroidery needles except that they have two eyes. To thread the needle is easy. Hold the thread between the thumb and index finger, lengthwise along the needle, then gently force the thread into the upper eye. A package of 12 needles of different sizes is priced at 26 cents.

One thing I have always had trouble with was leather soles that slipped on cement and pavement as soon as it started to rain. The rubber soles I found are the answer to this problem. To put them on is simple. Before anything can be done the sole of the shoe must be completely dry and when dry should be roughened with the enclosed scraper. Apply two coats of cement to the shoe bottom and the rubber sole, wait for 20 or 30 minutes before applying rubber sole to the sole of the shoe. Make sure the sole is one-quarter inch from the edge of the shoe and press down firmly. The cost is only 33 cents for a pair of soles.

If you would like to know where I found these itmes give me a call at 382-3131.

WHY GROW OLD?

Facial Sauna Provides Moisture for Complexion

Lowman

The very damp climate of England has long been given credit for the beauty of the British complexion. We know that moisture is "youthifying" to the skin while arid air dries it out and ages it. Thus, the many moisturizers on the market!

The facial sauna is a comparatively new idea along the same line. Many women are inquiring about it. This is literally a steam bath for the face.

Most of you have at some time or other given your face a steam bath by leaning over a bowl of hot water with a towel over your head. This is the same principle except that it is much more pleasant. The facial sauna provides steam for your complexion at the right temperature and without any trouble to you.

The skin responds well to warm, moise heat. This increases the circulation in the skin. It opens the pores, making it easier to adequately cleanse the face. Waste materials, dead cells and dirt are more easily removed after a facial steam bath.

If you have blackheads, steaming will be beneficial before trying to remove them. When you do this, use one of the little extractors for this purpose and press down gently. The area should be swabbed with alcohol before and afterwards.

Creams may be absorbed more efficiently after steaming. However, it is a moot question as to how much cream is ever actually absorbed by the epidermis. Certainly, creams are very helpful because they keep the outer or horny surface of the skin soft. They fight weathering and thus help the cells hold their moisture.

Some women have unusually fragile capillaries. These may tend to break thus blemishing the complexion. Women with this problem should take care not to apply too much heat to the face. The sauna facial is, in my opinion, not for them. These same women are advised to avoid foods which are hot, either in temperature or seasoning. Alcohol is also prohibited because it expands the blood vessels.

If you would like to have my leaflet "Your Outer Coating" send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for it to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

FLOWER GIRLS SHOULD NURSE

PENTICTON (CP) — Female "flower children" who want to live in a world of peace and love should turn their thoughts to a career in nursing, Mary Richmond, director of nursing at Vancouver General Hospital said Wednesday.

Miss Richmond was addressing the 50th annual conference of the British Columbia Hospitals' Association.

"I believe that today, when there are so many vocations open to women, those who choose nursing, choose it because they believe this is a way through which they can help sick people in a world that very much needs kindly ministrations," she said.

Oak Bay Secondary Leads Area

Oak Bay Senior Secondary School is the leading contributor in a campaign among Greater Victoria schools to share Canada's wealth during Centennial year.

"Project 100" is a birthday idea in reverse, with Canada's "have" sutdents marking the Centennial with presents to "have not" students in other parts of the world.

The gifts are travelling classrooms, worth $15,000 each and equipped with every modern aid to education. They are being bought by donations from schools throughout the province.

The first two will go to Guyana and Tanzania and others will be sent to India, Pakistan, Zambia and Hong Kong when funds permit.

"There is more than $40,000 on hand now," L. J. Wallace, general chairman of the B.C. centennial committee reports. He said a concentrated drive will try and push the total to $100,000 before the campaign ends Dec. 31.

Among Greater Victoria schools, Oak Bay Senior Secondary has contributed $1,139.54. Others, in order and all in the elementary division, are Doncaster, Oaklands, Margaret Jenkins and Tolmie.

Pearkes Hails Variety Club Charity Work

No organization has done more for handicapped children than the Variety Club of Canada and Variety International said Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes of British Columbia.

Overall, Variety has raised more than $10,000,000 for children's charities and, in Canada last year, the club brought in $70,000 by means of a Telethon TV broadcast.

This Saturday and Sunday the club will hold its second annual Telethon —a 17-hour, all-star show at the Queen Elizabeth Theatre, Vancouver.

It will be telecast in the Victoria-Vancouver Island area over Channel 6, throughout the Lower Mainland over Channel 8 and across Canada over other stations.

VIEWERS CALL

Viewers are invited to call their local TV station, make personal requests for favorite items and make donations to the Variety Club's training centre for handicapped children at Ladner.

Among the artists will be Louis (Satch-mo) Armstrong, Barry Morse, Dal Richards and Lorraine MacAllister, Irene Butler, Rudolph Boyce, Tom Northcote, and Bill Kenney, the famous Inkspot.

"I can think of no more worthy cause," said the lieutenant-governor, who helped to establish the Variety Club in Western Canada.

"Most of us are identified in some way or another with entertainment, and the Variety Club has mobilized entertainment in the service of charity.

"I am proud to be associated with this year's Telethon."

Mr. Pearkes was guest of honor at a luncheon in the Union Club given by the Variety Club of Western Canada.

Admiral Kenneth Adams, a former commodore of the Royal Canadian Navy at Naden, welcomed him as "a true friend" of Variety.

Mr. Pearkes said he had been interested in Variety ever since its earliest day in Vancouver.

"Every boy loves a circus and Variety goes back to the earliest origins of the circus."

Mr. Pearkes said it is significant that, instead of a president, the Variety Club has a Chief Barker. And its lodges throughout the world are known as Tents.

"I understand we are soon to have a Pup Tent in Victoria, and this it as it should be. The objects of Variety have touched my heart, as I am sure they will touch the hearts of many others."

Cache in Garage

MONTREAL (CP) — Police said Wednesday a report by a woman that her garage had been broken into led to the discovery of a $350,000 burglar's cache of stolen bonds, jewelry and other items.

Workers in North Join IWA Strike

VANCOUVER (CP) — Five hundred northern interior B.C. timber workers left their jobs Wednesday night in defiance of an International Woodworkers of America edict that attempted to contain strike action to the southern half of the interior.

The men set up picket lines at three mills owned by Noranda Mines Ltd.'s sawmill and woods division in Prince George. They represent a quarter of the 2,000 IWA members in the northern interior.

A spokesman for the Prince George workers said they were dissatisfied with the way negotiations with the companies were proceeding.

IWA executives here earlier Wednesday had ordered a delay in strike action pending the outcome of wage talks with northern interior companies set for next week.

There was no immediate comment from IWA headquarters.

Meanwhile, in the southern interior about 3,800 workers were on strike against timber firms.

About 500 began unsanctioned picketing Tuesday night and another 3,300 joined them Wednesday.

Crest Should Have Salmon On It—Chief

An Indian chief today proposed a "salmon" as one of the symbols to decorate Central Saanich proposed municipal crest.

In making the proposal, Chief Ed Underwood of the East Saanich Reserve, expressed the hope the designers would not neglect the symbols of the Coast Salich people who occupied the Saanich Peninsula.

Central Saanich council Monday approved appointment of a committee to select a suitable crest for the municipality.

Reaction has been favorable with suggestions ranging from daffodils to strawberries as symbols.

The chief selected the fish because, he said, the Saanich waters in olden-times was one of the great "salmon food baskets" of the Pacific Coast.

"The people were dependent on the salmon for survival — and so were the early white settlers," he said.

The fish ranked high in the eyes of all Indians, he said.

"We looked upon them as people — the salmon people — life reincarnated," he said.

Arrival of the first salmon to spawn in the rivers and creeks, he said, was marked with a ceremony and ritual.

When a member of a family spotted the first salmon, it was speared and handled with reverence when brought to shore.

It was cut up, cooked and shared between members of the family. The bones were then all picked up and thrown back into the sea or river.

"This was done to ensure that the salmon people would return the next year," said the chief.

He said the arrival of each salmon specie at different times of year was greeted in the same manner.

The chief said Indians have always been conscious of the need for conservation — the ritual and ceremony was in fact a reminder.

"One other reason for having the salmon on the crest," he added, "would be to remind us of a great specie which once numbered in the billions, and which now is in the process of being exterminated."

BEATLES SAY NO TO $1 MILLION

LONDON (AP)—The Beatles are not interested in an offer of $1,000,000 for one day's work in the United States, a spokesman said Wednesday.

The reason: It would mean appearing personally at the 55,000-seat Shea Stadium in New York.

"The money doesn't matter," the spokesman said. "It is simply impossible to put across in any stadium or hall the kind of music the Beatles are playing these days."

New Yorkers to Judge Vancouver Play Friday Night

By DAVID PIKE

NEW YORK (CP) — They're starting to get nervous.

Nicol and the Mirvishes, Kaplan and Willis, and the rest of them. They're not getting nail-biting nervous. But nervous is nervous when you've got a play opening on Broadway.

The play is called A Minor Adjustment, a situation comedy farce by Vancouver humorist Eric Nicol.

The title may go down as one of the major understatements of the Broadway season. The play originally was supposed to have opened on Broadway late last year as Like Father Like Fun. But the critics murdered it in Toronto, and Nicol has been doing a chopping-and-pruning job on it ever since.

And now, finally, unless somebody burns down the Brooks Atkinson Theatre in the meantime, it will open on Broadway Friday night. The New York critics will be there. It is said that the New York critics can wave a magic wand and make everything nice if they like a play.

That is why Eric Nicol is a bit nervous. But he has lived with the play for so long he is probably less nervous at this culminative stage than Ed and Robert Mirvish, the play's Canadian producers who have backed this production with $100,000 of their own and borrowed money.

Henry Kaplan, the play's director from Toronto who staged the smash Broadway comedy hit Any Wednesday several seasons back, is wound up and waiting for the reviews.

Austin Willis, another Torontonian, has a lot riding on A Minor Adjustment. As the play's co-star, with American William Redfield, a hit would certainly boost his reputation.

Let's go back about 1½ years, to Vancouver. There we find Nicol, a happy, contented father of three who writes three amusing syndicated columns a week. His play, Like Father Like Fun, is running at the 675-seat Vancouver Playhouse.

Along comes Ed Mirvish, Toronto's discount-store king and patron of the arts. Ha!

As his author - brother Robert Mirvish recalled: "You know, Ed's pretty radical in the way he does things, and he decided we'd just go ahead and buy the play and we'd do it on a big scale for Broadway."

So the Mirvishes show it in Montreal and Toronto—Nice reception in Montreal, disaster in Toronto, although the public liked it. Alas, no Broadway in 1966.

PLAY TAKES FORM

Nicol, 47-year-old author of a dozen books, three of which have received Stephen Leacock humor awards, is rewriting madly. A call goes out to Kaplan—Help! Nicol and Kaplan hit it right off and a working rapport is established. The play begins to take Broadway-bound form.

A character is thrown out. Now there are five. Two revolving turntables and many set changes are tossed out. Now there is but one set. The play's duration is whittled to about two hours.

FACTS OF LIFE

Essentially, the action revolves around the efforts of a British Columbia pulp-and-paper tycoon to salvage his goody-goody son from a predetermined dull life. To this end, he orders his public-relations chief, a gay blade with the girls, to find the son a knowing young thing who will introduce the lad to sex and thus mature him.

"A CHAOTIC ADVENTURE in the philosophy of love, western politics and the insanity of life itself," is the way Canadian Art Theatre director John Stark, describes Henry Miller's play, "Just Wild About Harry". The unsubsidized professional Mainland company gave the North American premiere of the startling play at Vancouver's Metro Theatre in August and will bring it to the McPherson Playhouse Friday and Saturday with a matinee on Saturday. In this scene, John Destry-Adams as Harry, talks to the prostitute, played by Australian actress, Nancy Failles.

RECTORY DEATH INQUEST

Canon Denounces Verdict, Says Bishops Knew of Cult

RARE GOLDEN EDITION of old London Sun now rests in city archives, a gift to Mayor Hugh Stephen as commemoration of Queen Victoria's coronation, June 28, 1838. Gilt ink was used for type and reproduction of a large medallion bearing the queen's head appears on the front page. The mayor, who received the paper from G. H. Ghewy, formerly of Toronto, felt the city archives should make a place for it. Mounted and framed the paper will hang near the queen's portrait in the council chamber anteroom.

TORONTO (CP) — Canon G. Moore Smith Wednesday denounced the verdict of a coroner's jury that found he and his wife Violet negligent in the death of an 18-year-old girl.

The jury ruled that Canon and Mrs. Smith neglected their ward, Katherine Globe, as she lay dying of meningitis in a bedroom at St. Matthias' Anglican Church rectory June 20 and 21.

Canon Smith, in a statement issued by his lawyers, charged the bishops of the Anglican church had known about the practices of a spirit healing group at the church for two years and "had done nothing about it."

His lawyer, Gerald M. Soloway, charged there was an ecclesiastical war being fought between Canon Smith and the bishops. He said the inquest became the battlefield for an issue which should have been fought in an ecclesiastical court.

Later in the day, the Anglican bishop of Toronto said he is taking immediate action to insure that practices of spirit healing at the church are ended.

Rt. Rev. George Snell said he will meet with Canon Smith today.

He said the spirit healing group at the church was not known to the bishops until a short time before Miss Globe's death at which time "a strong warning was given by me to Canon Smith."

"While the inquest was being conducted, it was not possible for me to take any action other than to forbid the meeting of the group, which I did on Aug. 14. Now that the inquest is concluded, I am taking immediate action to insure that the practices disclosed at the inquest do not continue."

In breaking down its verdict, the coroner's jury recommended that further investigations be held into the faith healing group at St. Mathias' and into other similar groups.

The jury suggested further investigation was necessary to "prevent a comparable situation occurring in the future."

Dr. H. B. Cotnam, Ontario supervising coroner, who conducted the inquest, said there was nothing in the evidence to indicate that a similar death could not occur at the church again.

JUDGMENT CLOUDED

The jury said the Smith's judgment was so clouded by religious beliefs that they failed to provide adequate care for the dying girl or call a doctor. They said that the girl — who had moaned on her death bed for two days—was obviously in need of medical attention.

Crown Attorney Lloyd Graburn said neither of the Smiths will be charged in a criminal court. "This is the end of it."

Dr. Cotnam, in his charge to the jury, said of Miss Globe that "no one checked her basic needs—those of fluids, food, bowels or even clean bed clothing.

"The group professes the spirit of teaching all love and attention but the fact is nobody went near her for four hours no matter what they thought was wrong with her."

Medical evidence showed Miss Globe had suffered from a combination of severe ear infection, meningitis and a brain abcess.

Attorney - General Arthur Wishart, speaking from his Sault Ste. Marie home, said he is requesting a transcript of the inquest.

"I want to find out exactly what went on. But I don't know if this is a situation where the attorney - general should step in and investigate religious groups. My impression would be that the jury meant for church authorities to investigate."

BABY DEATH PROBE

Inquest Told Story Of Indian Hardship

LETHBRIDGE, Alta. (CP)—A story of hardship and deprivation contributing to the death of a baby on the nearby Peigan Indian reserve was unfolded here Tuesday before a six-man coroners' jury.

The jury, after hearing evidence from about 20 persons in its inquest into the May 12 death of 14-month-old Rommana Mae Crow Shoe, brought down a series of major recommendations designed to improve welfare and other social services on the reserve.

The jury concluded that Rommana Mae died from the effects of malnutrition and dysentery and suggested that the surviving children of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Crow Shoe be taken from the parents immediately and made wards of the government until conditions in the home are improved.

Bernadette Crow Shoe, 16, oldest of the couple's children, told the inquiry that the family often was short of food and fuel—had had no electrical appliances since power was cutoff as long ago as 1962 for non-payment of tolls, and had so little in the way of eating utensils that family members had to take turns at the table.

SEVEN TO A BED

She said the house had no screens and is always full of flies in the summer. Seven children slept fully clothed in one bed, with only a single blanket, and the oldest boy slept on the floor.

Bernadette said conditions in the home had not improved since Rommana Mae's death. She said she had seen the Indian agent in charge of welfare on the reserve at her home only once.

The coroner's jury made the following recommendations:

—That a federal-provincial government commission be established to investigate welfare and social services on Indian reserves, and that immediate improvements be made in working relationships between federal and provincial welfare officials on reserves.

—That a qualified welfare officer and trained Indian personnel be employed to improve welfare services on the Peigan reserve.

—That Peigan parents and the band council accept more responsibility for the education of their children, and that an adult education program covering a variety of subjects be instituted on the reserve.

FEAR WHITES

Morris McDougal, chief of the Peigan band, said at the inquest that Indians are treated so badly by whites that they are afraid to associate with them and uneasy about bringing the Indian's problems to them.

Earlier in the inquiry Roger Dickson, Peigan reserve development officer, said under questioning that last year's budget allotted the reserve was inadequate compared with that given in previous years.

Mervyn Mattern of Lethbridge, assistant supervisor in Lethbridge for Indian affairs, testified there was one Indian agent working for the department on the reserve. In reply to a question, he admitted that this was inadequate.

He also said under questioning that welfare services offered by the Indian affairs department were totally inadequate to meet the needs of the Peigan reserve.

Ex-Magistrate Jailed On Theft Charges

HANEY, B.C. (CP)—A former magistrate was jailed for two years Tuesday after he pleaded guilty to four charges of theft and misuse of clients' money totalling $25,000 in this Fraser Valley community.

Sentence was pronounced by Magistrate A. M. Guinet of Chilliwack in the same courtroom where Theodore Krell, 45, used to preside when he was a magistrate in 1958.

Krell was disbarred by the B.C. Law Society in 1966.

October Sweet Peas Are Worth a Fling

By HILDA BEASTALL

Life becomes more interesting when we are willing to take a few calculated risks.

The sowing of sweet peas in October is a gamble which repays the effort in nine years out of 10.

Hilda

Sweet peas are a flower crop which likes to grow in cool and humid weather of early spring and be ready to bloom as the days and nights become warmer in May and June.

By making a sowing outdoors now, we can have an extensive root system built up over winter, and the milder days of February and March will see the vines begin to elongate.

Growth will be sturdy and able to withstand the rigors of spring weather.

First pickings of long-stemmed sweet peas can be had as early as Mother's Day from an October sowing outdoors.

The site needs to be sheltered from north and east, preferably on the south side of a building or fence.

Dig a trench 15 to 18 inches deep, making sure it will be well drained during heavy winter rains. Mix in at the bottom some stony rubble, broken brick or broken clay pots, when working with a heavy clay.

Over this put a good layer of well rotted compost or old manure. Top off with six to eight inches of good soil, leaving the trench depressed about three inches when finished.

Into this sow the sweet pea seeds about two inches deep if the soil is heavy, three inches or more if sandy or gravelly. Work a little soil around the plants as they grow. This will give protection and a deep cool root run.

Be sure to erect the string or netting for support before the plants are ready to climb.

GEORGIA STRAIT STILL SUSPENDED

Judgment Deferred on Hippie Court Bid

VANCOUVER (CP) — Judgment was deferred Wednesday on an application to the B.C. Supreme Court by the hippie newspaper Georgia Straight to have suspension of its business licence declared unlawful.

Mr. Justice Thomas Dohm was told by defence counsel John Laxton that publishers of the paper were not told why their licence was suspended by city licence inspector Milt Harrell and were not given an opportunity to state their case.

Harrell suspended the licence effective 12:01 a.m. Saturday after a complaint from Mayor Tom Campbell, who described the publication as "a filthy, perverted paper that should not be sold to our children."

Corporation counsel Russell Baker said any citizen in Vancouver had the right to put information before the licencing inspector.

"And if any citizen can do that, why can't the mayor?" he asked.

Baker said if the newspaper's appeal is upheld every licence inspector in B.C. would be unsure of his powers.

Marijuana Prosecutions Rise Sharply

OTTAWA (CP) — Solicitor-General Pennell says the number of prosecutions involving marijuana has risen to 489 in the first six months of this year from 162 in all of 1965.

He said Wednesday night in an interview that control of marijuana is becoming an increasingly difficult problem as far as law enforcement is concerned.

He said attempts are being made to step up law enforcement and that in Toronto there now are consultations between the RCMP and municipal authorities on the problem.

He said an educational program might be undertaken on the effects of the drug.

Mr. Pennell said more and more cases involving marijuana are falling in the age group of 17 to 30.

In the Commons Wednesday, P. B. Rynard, Conservative MP for Simcoe East, asked whether the federal government has been requested to assist the efforts of Toronto municipal and school officials "to combat the increasing efforts of international drug syndicates to push the use of marijuana in Canadian schools."

Prime Minister Pearson promised to look into the question.

Resistance Mopped Up In Nigeria

LAGOS (Reuters) — Federal Nigerian soldiers today mopped up pockets of resistance in the secessionist capital of Enugu, captured Tuesday after two months of civil war.

There was no word yet on the whereabouts of the federal government's most wanted man—bearded Biafran leader Lt.-Col. Odumegwu Ojukwu.

Meanwhile, federal troops were warned not to harm civilians, altough they were told to treat anyone resisting as an enemy soldier.

The war, marked by confusing claims and counter-claims by both sides, was not over yet. Speculation here was that the Biafran regime moved its headquarters south from Enugu, possibly to Umuhai, 80 miles away, to continue the fight.

CHEER NIGERIA

In the streets of the federal capital, Lagos, people cheered when Radio Nigeria broke the news of Enugu's capture.

Early in August, secessionist troops swept across the Niger River in a lightning attack on the former Midwestern Region and announced the formation of an independent government there.

The self-proclaimed republic of Benin lasted only a month as federal troops—reinforced by jets supplied by Russia—recaptured the Midwestern capital, Benin, and pushed on toward Enugu.

Sept. 25, federal troops plunged through thick jungle on the banks of the Niger River, and the next day announced they were within artillery range of Enugu.

Tuesday night, the city fell.

Bomb Halt Pleas Joined By Holland

UNITED NATIONS (Reuters) —The Netherlands joined Tuesday the rising chorus of UN member states demanding unconditional cessation of American bombing in North Vietnam.

Foreign Minister Joseph Luns said the Dutch people are "now so deeply worried about the war in Vietnam that they felt the need to give a solemn expression to their apprehensions."

In a policy speech to the General Assembly, he said his government believes the present situation must not be allowed to continue.

"It has therefore appealed to all parties to the conflict to break through the existing vicious circle and adopt a policy leading to peace by accepting, as a first step, to go to the conference table," Luns said.

'Heed Or Pay' —Sharp

By VICTOR J. MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Canadians were faced today with an appeal from Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp to work with the government to hold down costs and prices or face the alternative of a stiff rise in taxes.

Inflationary pressures are rapidly gaining momentum again in the country. Prices and costs are soaring. The federal government has embarked on a determined campaign to curb the increases. It needs the help of business, industry and labor to exercise "restraint," said the minister.

He bluntly warned that if inflationary pressures continue at their present rate the government will have to step in and forcibly bring about deflation. He implied that tax increases would be Ottawa's weapon.

Later in a television interview he acknowledged that higher taxes were the implication but said he hesitated to attach such a threat to his appeal for cooperation in combatting inflation.

MAJOR SPEECH

In a wide-ranging major speech on the economy of the country during the resumed budget debate Wednesday Mr. Sharp said if Canadians cannot collectively and individually restrain costs and prices a "cooling-off period" would be imposed.

The budget debate continued today. A vote on the New Democratic Party amendment, which constitutes a want-of-confidence vote, will take place tonight.

The minister outlined his proposed actions as follows

1—Holding down the budget deficit to his already forecast $740,000,000 and the government limiting its demands on the capital market.

2—Already slashed from the estimated expenditures of the governmental departments has been $650,000,000. The slashing will continue, he promised, to try to achieve balance in national accounts in 1968-69.

3—Ottawa will ask for the continued co-operation of the provinces and municipalities in the anti-inflation drive.

4—The federal government is appealing to industrial and labor organizations to organize a campaign to hold down increases in costs and prices, exercising restraint and curbing demands for wage raises.

TOUGH LANGUAGE

Mr. Sharp's appeal and warning to Canadians was couched in some of the toughest language he has used since assuming office. It drew jibes from opposition members that the government had been "free spending", but Mr. Sharp snapped back that it was slashing estimated expenditures. He urged the opposition to assist by not demanding bigger spending programs.

He revised upwards his forecast of growth in the Gross National Product from 6⅔ per cent to 7 per cent or slightly more. He admitted that this implied an undesirable increase in prices.

He forecast next year consumer demands will increase more strongly than this year. But government demands for goods and services would go up less this year.

Later in a TV interview talking about cutting back expenditures Mr. Sharp invited the provincial governments to postpone implementation of medicare. He acknowledged that if the provinces go ahead with medicare, scheduled for July 1, higher taxes will result.

"The problem that we face — and this is the first time in our history that we have ever faced any problem like this — are

U.S. ASTRONAUT KILLED IN SMALL PLANE CRASH

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — An astronaut died today in the crash of a T-38 jet plane near Tallahassee, Fla., the Manned Spacecraft Centre said. His name was not at once disclosed.

The plane was returning to Houston from Cape Kennedy, Fla.

MASKED RAIDERS GET $1.5 MILLION

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Five armed bandits raided the palatial seaside estate of Willis Harrington du Pont early today, bound the family and servants, and looted the house of a $1,500,000 Russian coin collection and some $34,000 worth of jewelry and cash.

Du Pont said the bandits told him they would hold the rare coin collection for $200,000 ransom. He at first estimated the worth of the collection at $500,000 but later increased the value.

Du Pont, 31, said the bandits entered the two-storey house shortly after midnight. "They woke us up, tied us and started ransacking the house," he said. "I think they were basically after cash."

OPENED SAFE

Du Pont said the robbers discovered his coin collection after they found 1,000 silver dollars in his safe, which he said he opened for them after being threatened.

Du Pont told police he and his family were herded into an upstaris bedroom while the masked bandits rummaged the house.

Police said du Pont, his wife Miren, 29, and their four-year-old son, Victor, were upstairs when the bandits entered the mansion, which has nine bedrooms and 19 baths. The robbers bound the family and brought in the butler, Hans Hein, 55, and his wife, Rosa, 50.

The bandits left a $10,000 bill on the floor of the bedroom.

Du Pont said it had been in the safe with the silver dollars and he didn't know if the bandits left it through carelessness or because it would be hard to cash.

During their looting of the huge estate which fronts on Biscayne Bay in the Coconut Grove area, the bandits took a roast from a refrigerator and consumed it, along with soft drinks.

'MOMENTOUS STEP'

Key Policy Shift Begins Real Constitution Reform

By PETER NEWMAN

OTTAWA — The long painful process of fundamentally reworking Canada's constitution — the legal framework within which we live and govern ourselves — has begun in earnest.

Newman

Confirmation of this momentous step came today in a service club speech delivered in Quebec City by Maurice Sauve, the federal minister of forestry and one of Quebec's senior representatives in the federal cabinet.

In his speech, which was read and approved beforehand both by Prime Minister Pearson and Justice Minister Trudeau, Sauve invited the provinces to open all of their constitutional problems to negotiation with Ottawa "even, if desired, the most sensitive such as the future status of Quebec in the Canadian Confederation."

NEW POSITION

What makes Sauve's speech so important is that it's a marked departure from Ottawa's previous staunchly held position that constitutional changes should proceed in orderly progression from the relatively uncomplicated matter of winning approval for provincial adoption of a bill of rights, to the more fundamental questions of Canada's future existence.

Now, accorddin to Sauve, there no longer are any "constitutional subjects which can be declared axiomatically beyond the bounds of discussion."

He came back to this point over and over again in his speech ("It is not the policy of the federal government to place any restrictions on the extent or subject matter of a constitutional conference"). He even attacked the British North America Act as being "in many ways old-fashioned, misleading, ambiguous and incomplete."

NO CONTRADICTION

Only a month ago, in Quebec City during a press conference that followed his address to the Canadian Bar Association, Justice Minister Trudeau declared that Ottawa was not prepared to negotiate the question of the fundamental relationship between Quebec and the rest of the country.

The sauve speech contradicts none of Trudeau's contentions, but it takes the great Confederation debate considerably closer to the moment of truth.

Paul Getting Tune-Up After Oil Change

BOURNEMOUTH, England (AP)—Little Paul Pennington thinks he's an automobile, so when he came home feeling ill Wednesday his mother took him to the local garage for an oil check.

Yep—two-year-old Paul had topped himself up with a pint of upper cylinder lubricant.

Now he's in hospital getting drained and the doctors said he should be ticking over smoothly again in a couple of days.

Where Paul found the oil nobody knows. But his engine was in a pretty sticky state when he got home after a spin around the block.

"He just stood at the door covered in oil from head to foot," said Mrs. Anne Pennington, 24. "It was dripping from his mouth. He said he had a tummy ache and wanted to go to sleep.

"I rushed him to the garage because I wanted to find out whether the oil was poisonous. I didn't want to make a fuss if it was harmless. The garage people took one look at Paul and called an ambulance."

Doctors at Christchurch Hospital quickly reassured her that Paul is cranking back to health without the oil.

"What a relief," sighed Mrs. Pennington. "You never know what's going to happen when your son is a car."

SHARP OPENS DOOR

Another Delay For Medicare?

By VICTOR J. MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Medicare means higher taxes.

That was the message loud and clear that Finance Minister Sharp conveyed outside the Commons after his speech Wednesday night on the state of the economy.

Elaborating on the government's plans to cut down unnecessary expenditures and do away with absolete programs, the minister said during a nation-wide television program the government had made good progress in cutting expenditures and it might be possible to avoid a tax increase.

"But so much depends upon, for instance, the progress, or at least the intentions of the provinces with respect to medicare, which is a great uncertainty," Mr. Sharp said.

SERIOUS PROBLEMS

The finance minister opened the door wide for the provincial governemnts to indicate they do not want to proceed on July 1, 1968 with the implementation of medicare. He said the provincial governments have a very serious financial program.

"I think it might be a very useful thing to do to sit down with the provinces and talk about this common problem of how best we can bring into effect the medicare program that parliament wants, that I personally want, and that I think would be very good," said Mr. Sharp.

He noted that one province, Saskatchewan already has a medicare program in effect. It was introduced by the former CCF administration in 1962. Under the federal medicare plan if a province agrees to go ahead with medicare Ottawa will pay one-half the costs. The starting date was to have been July 1, 1967, but that was postponed one year because of the inflationary pressures at work in the economy last year.

It was suggested to Mr. Sharp that in view of his urgent appeal to business, industry and labor to exercise restraint to try to bring down rising cotst and prices, he must feel that postponing the effective date of medicare again would be a good move.

The provinces could take the government off the hook of its commitment to proceed, with medicare by unanimously agreeing to set back medicare.

Mr. Sharp replied that "if the provinces felt they could assume their share of the burden . . . I would consider that had high priority."

Mr. Sharp said the federal government is under some obligation to assist Saskatchewan which has complied with the requirements of the medicare legislation.

Mr. Sharp said that if the other provinces decided they do not want to proceed immediately with medicare, "we would have no objection. We're not going to blackmail them into it."

Bonner Hits 'Gross Errors' Of Liberals

Attorney-General Robert Bonner said Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp's proposed cutbacks admit the government has made a shambles of the economy.

Mr. Bonner added bitterly that it was largely the fault of Liberal partisanship which was being repeated by Mr. Sharp.

"It's evident that the financial policies of the national government have been in gross error for the past two or three years," he said in commenting on Mr. Sharp's Commons speech.

He recalled his complaint three years ago that the national medicare plan was revealed at a federal-provincial conference in 1963 "as nothing but window dressing for the Liberal (election) compaign that was impending.

'SHOCKING'

"The most shocking statement, if Mr. Sharp has been correctly reported, is that although they now admit it was a mistake, they are nevertheless making an exception for Saskatchewan—which just happens to be in the midst of an election where the Liberal party has troubles of its own."

(He was referring to Mr. Sharp's statement that if there is a delay in implementing the national medicare plan next year, Saskatchewan would still be entitled to the appropriate federal sharing of costs because it already has a suitable medicare plan in operation.)

"This statement demonstrates again that the Liberals have national policies which have been selectively applied, but seldom to this province's benefit," Mr. Bonner said.

"If the public of this province is not sufficiently alive to our (Socred Cabinet) view in this regard, then I suppose they have the democratic right to suffer further at the hands of this Ottawa administration."

"Three years ago I deplored Dominion-provincial conferences which have been called for the sake of Liberal party propaganda.

"That was the case in that (1963) conference and it is the case in the present proposed constitutional conference as well."

However, Mr. Bonner hinted that the B.C. government will respond to Mr. Sharpe's hint he would be happy to see the pro-

NEW COMPUTER AIDS CHINA SPACE PLANS

HONG KONG — China today announced the successful production of an advanced transistorized computer and said it would speed up the nation's development in atomic science, rocketry and space travel.

The announcement by Peking radio said the computer was developed by scientists at the Chinese academy of sciences (Academica Sinica). It called development of the advanced computer the most significant industrial and scientific achievement ever made by China.

PETERSON

Eight Point Plan

By JOHN MIKA
Times Legislative Reporter

Education Minister Leslie Peterson today revealed a massive shift in government policy towards school financing and administration is under way which shake things up even more than the Chant royal commission report did to classroom programs in 1960.

In a series of announcements and warnings during his 6,000-word speech to the annual B.C. School Trustees Association convention in Vancouver:

- He feels schools should be in operation on a year-round basis with some of their facilities — such as libraries, business machines and industrial training machines — available to the community on a round-the-clock basis if need be;
- To revamp the "antiquated" system of idle schools for two months each year. A wide-ranging study of the length of the school year, daily hours and holidays will be launched soon;
- A serious argument is under way with Ottawa over jurisdiction and financing of manpower training and the province is prepared to undertake the costs of going it alone in adult education if the quarrel can't be resolved;
- Henceforth all non-shareable costs in school referendums will have to be financed by school boards themselves floating loans directly on the money market — which would almost rule out any possibility of Greater Victoria School Board repeating last year's $742,000 referendum for several new schools which did not get departmental approval;

MILL RATES

- The government is considering making school trustees directly responsible for fixing school mill rates instead of municipal councils although one specially-devised tax notice and collection system would continue;
- A study will be made aimed at standardizing all school construction to cut building unit costs and if it comes up with an answer all other government departments may copy it for their building programs;
- The present system of teacher salary grants to school boards may be revised drastically;
- A study for wholesale changes to the teacher certification system is under way to enable the province to deal rationally with the need for mass importation of qualified teachers and self-improvement programs for native teachers as a method of meeting the needs of a galloping school population.

And studded throughout the speech were warnings that it is essential to reduce per-pupil costs or the whole financial

Lonborg Blanks Cardinals

BOSTON (UPI) — Lanky Jim Lonborg pitched a masterful one-hitter and Carl Yastrzemski drove in four runs with a pair of homers today to give the Boston Red Sox a 5-0 victory over the St. Louis Cards in the second game of the World Series and tie the series at one game each.

The series now moves to St. Louis for the third game Saturday.

Lonborg, who pitched the American league pennant-winning game for Boston last Sunday, came close to becoming the second pitcher in history to hurl a no-hitter in the series. Don Larsen of the New York Yankees did it in 1956 with a perfect game.

Lonborg's bid for a no-hitter was ended with two out in the eighth inning when Julian Javier of the Cardinals lashed a line-drive double into the left field corner of Fenway Park.

ONE OTHER RUNNER

Lonborg allowed only one other runner, on a walk.

Yastrzemski, the American league's "triple crown" batting champion, supplied Boston's first run with a base-empty homer in the fourth inning off starter Dick Hughes and then crashed a three-run homer in the seventh into a light rain off reliever Joe Hoerner after Jose Tartabull had walked and Dalton Jones had singled.

The Sox picked up another run, an unearned one, in the sixth inning. With one out Hughes walked both George Scott and Reggie Smith and the bases became loaded when third baseman Mike Shannon, fumbled Jerry Adair's hard grounder for an error.

Ron Willis relieved Hughes at that point but Rico Petrocelli drove in Boston's second run with a sacrifice fly to centre before Willis fanned Lonborg to end the inning.

FIRST RACE—Some interesting shuffling in post positions among the speed horses here. Ready Freddy moves inside; Coquahalla and Cocoa Silk go outside. Only Coquahalla seems dogged but with the other two pushing him early he could have his hands full. Western Shadow may be able to tuck in behind the leaders, waiting until they run themselves dizzy before making his thrust. My Madronna has a good late run but needs clear sailing. Conibhai has a look despite the outside . . . WESTERN SHADOW, My Madronna, Coquahalla.

SECOND RACE — Concise Answer may run out of excuses here. He's been all around the money but something always pops up ahead of him. His style demands stout navigating but he'll seldom find an easier spot. Lady of Kent came to life in her last and will be a better price than Concise Answer. The rest dont inspire much' confidence; Yansco, Takavich, Miss Mystic and Easy Anna have shown brief speed at times—very brief and infrequently . . . CONCISE ANSWER, Lady of Kent, Takavich.

THIRD RACE — Mister Hawk and El Tajo drew ideal posts for their getaway styles. The former has run porly on off tracks which contradicts the concept that Dark Hawk horses like mud. But he obviously prefers sprints and is stubborn. Serenade in Red goes either way—in front or from out of it — and should be tighter today. Inconnu and Short Circuit were Derby nominees and would probably appreciate the Derby distance more than this sprint. But they close crisply and the rider switch to Harris may be meaningful to Short Circuit's chances. Peace-Man steps up but he was beaten by a good one and has won more money than anything here . . . SHORT CIRCUIT, Peace-Man, Inconnu.

FOURTH RACE — If Parisienne Pixie can draw clear—as she might—the others will have to roll up their sleeves if they want the pot. Mobil Maid can also ramble but Frazier may have to use up a lot of fuel from the outside. Sikanni Chief should improve and is in good hands but meets tougher. Velvet Morn has had traffic problems but she can sizzle late. Dark Susan belongs. Jayie finished strongly and may be better than his form indicates. Chase trys everything, off his Aug. 5 sprint he's in business . . . PARISIENNE PIXIE, Velvet Morn, Sikanni Chief.

FIFTH RACE—It will be interesting to see who elects to go for the lead since most of these like to wait-and-see. Heather W is 1-2-1 and looks like the one to whip. Wonder Cross and Shadows Sake come from out of it; the latter may have needed her last and may be rougher today. Haigla made a bold move sprinting and then hung; his best puts him close. Jayleen is the mudlark but she's been sprinting. Fleet Brother didn't care for the slop; off his June 2 route try he's a possibility at a price . . . HEATHER W, Shadows Sake, Jayleen.

SIXTH RACE — Murrayville may open up on these but whether Phillips can coax him the distance is problematical. Hi-Ma-Dan sheds five pounds and seems to take a new lease on life at Sandown. Tuffins knocks hard in this class and hasn't been overraced. Grand Idea gets Harris but doesn't seem as keen as he was earlier. Royal Kimbo should like the going and the boy trys hard. Famous Bayboy is the local Silky Sullivan; he gets so far back you need high-powered lenses to find him. But his late run is something—and looks even better if the pace is staggering . . . HI-MA-DAN, Famous Bayboy, Tuffins.

SEVENTH RACE—Swan Lady loves the drippy going, the track and is quick away. Miss Cye C leaves the gate like a scared rabbit but doesn't seem partial to mud. Trusteen has met better and switches to Frazier who gets a lot of run out of them. Hay Billy can lay close and is all heart where it counts—near the finish. But Copper Prince may be the one to fear. Shields should be able to save ground and may come on when it matters. In a harem-scarum finish . . . COPPER PRINCE, Swan Lady, Hay Billy.

EIGHTH RACE—With a race over the track and no Murrayville here, Malheur Kitten may lead them home. Penuelo has early lick and has met better but there's no works shown and he hasn't had a race in a month. Baby Joe may be the most reliable and moves from the outside to the rail. Inner Guard and Speedy Session have some late run and it may be significant that Harris is staying with the former. Souzem is overdue. In a grab-bag . . . MALHEUR KITTEN, Baby Joe, Inner Guard.

What Sauve is saying, in effect, is that the cumbersome and dead-slow orderly progress of constitutional reform, is no longer enough.

At another level, the Sauve declaration is Ottawa's first constructive response to the Robarts Confederation of Tomorrow Conference, planned for Toronto in late November.

The format of constitutional negotiation suggested by Sauve is "a continuing committee of ministers from both the federal and provincial governments, meeting frequently and regularly, working on an agreed agenda."

Although he never makes the comparison, this sounds very much like the tax structure committee, set up at the federal-provincial conference in Quebec City in the winter of 1964.

NEGOTIABLE

The Sauve initiative is based on a new conviction adopted in recent days by the Pearson government: that if Canadian nationhood is to be saved, Ottawa must not appear to be grudging in its constitutional negotiations. Suddenly everything has become negotiable.

It was to help resolve this very situation that the Royal Commission on Bilingualism and Biculturalism was established in the spring of 1963. It is a matter of cold fury to the politicians who now have to deal with these problems, that more than four years and $8,000,000 later, the commission's recommendations are still no available.

The federal ministers from Quebec are determined to erase the image, held so long in their home province, that the central government is capable only of responding to the initiatives of others. For once, they are all working together instead of expending energy fighting each other.

TO PUSH VIEW

All of the French Canadian ministers in the federal cabinet — and it's an impressive roll call — Marchand, Trudeau, Sauve, Pepin, Chretien, Cote and Cadieux — are planning to take part in a concentrated series of speeches and appearances in Quebec over the next six months to push the federal point of view. The whole operation is being carefully coordinated by Marc Lalonde in the prime minister's office.

As Maurice Sauve said in his Quebec City speech: "The issue is survival. Survival of Canada as a country, and the survival of the culture of French Canada."

Soviet Arms

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union has offered to replace the arms Jordan and other Arab states lost in the six-day war with Israel last June, it was announced today.

The statement came in a joint communique issued after King Hussein of Jordan ended military aid talks and flew home. There was no immediate indication Hussin had accepted the offers during two days of talks with President Nikolai Podgorny and Defence Minister Andrei Grechko.

ROYAL TRIP UNDER WAY

LONDON (CP) — Princess Margaret and Lord Snowdon flew to Canada today for a week's visit that will take them to Toronto and Montreal.

The trip is billed as a private visit. The princess toured Canada in 1958.

structure of the school system would be undermined by runaway inflation.

On the school year and better use of buildings, he had this to say:

"It is my view that we must find ways and means of ensuring a better and more complete use of school plants.

"I refer not only to buildings but to libraries and the very expensive equipment that we now use in our schools such as business machines and industrial education equipment.

"I see no reason why these should not be used in the evenings as well as throughout the day.

"Indeed, if the demand in a community exists, they should be available on an around-the-clock basis.

ANTIQUATED SYSTEM

"I believe that new developments in education have made the existing prodecure of 10 months of school and two months of summer holiday antiquated.

"In my view, school plants are too costly to be left vacant for one-sixth of the year.

"The traditional reasons for summer holidays rather than holidays at other times of the year are probably disappearing. In any case, the problem bears examination."

As a result, he said, an advisory committee is being set up by his department which would include teachers, trustees and parents for a full examination of the matter.

While these measures would help reduce costs through more effective use of buildings, Mr. Peterson emphasized that building costs must be curbed too by attacking the main sources of rapid increases — "customized" school plans and the jurisdictional gap which permits boards to launch programs without direct responsibility for finding the money.

PER PUPIL COSTS

He pointed out that the cost of building a classroom has risen from $22,000 to $33,000 in the past five years and that the per-pupil costs of school operation have skyrocketed again to $41.51 and $44.82 in the past two years after having been held down to $4.81 in 1960 and only $2.24 in 1961 when the government put strong pressure on school boards to apply brakes to their spending.

Although increases in labor and material costs have raised construction prices, greater productivity also has tended to offset those factors.

"What is adding mostly to costs is not these general factors but the special items that are demanded," he told the trustees who have ordered them.

"For example, there seems to be a general tendency to design schools that incorporate unproven experimental features."

When one baord introduces such a feature, others seem to copy for the sake of prestige, he suggested.

CUSTOM-BUILT

"Another tendency is to 'customize' buildings by introducing innovations which may be more aesthetically pleasing or architecturally interesting than educationally significant."

The study towards standardized construction is a direct result of these tendencies, he revealed.

"The sale of debentures for non-shareable expenditures by the school district capital financing authority has been discontinued; the authority limiting its bond sales to provide for essential, and therefore shareable projects at this time.

"Approval for non-shareable expenditures will be given only with the proviso that the school board concerned arrange for the financing of them through the sale of school district debentures without any provincial guarantee."

On the rising costs of school operating budgets, Mr. Peterson emphasized:

"We cannot justify the annual increases in the cost of education each pupil which have occurred in the past two years."

He said the rate rose twenty-told in the past two years and are not warranted.

"The taxpayer has every right to question such increases and ask if, in actual fact, maximum value is being obtained for every school dollar spent," he said.

'HASN'T WORKED'

He said it has been a government objective to give school boards as much financial autonomy as possible while providing as much provincial grants as possible but implied it hasn't worked too well.

He said school boards are the only government level "where the preparation of the budget is divorced from the revenue process.

"Understandably, therefore, there is less restraint to hold budgetted expenditures within the limits of the revenue funds available.

He concluded this portion of his speech with the warning that while current approval powers of municipal councils over school budgets may be withdrawn as trustees have frequently demanded:

"Elimination of this provision will probably mean that each board will have to shoulder the responsibility for setting the local school mill rate."

SERIOUS IMPLICATIONS

Mr. Peterson said the current quarrel with Ottawa over sudden termination last year of its sharing in vocational and technical school costs "has not only serious financial but also education implications."

He said the federal cutoff has thrown the whole vocational program into uncertainty but the B.C. government has decided to continue its same financial support to school district vocational programs in the hope of a new agreement being worked out shortly.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Mainly cloudy skies held temperatures to around 50 above even in the Cariboo Wednesday night. The only exception was the Kootenays where clearing allowed temperatures there to drop to freezing early this morning. The storm off the B.C. coast for the past several days is weakening and rising pressures are expected to bring clearing skies to southern B.C. later today and to northern areas Friday. Temperatures also will show a gradual upward trend Friday.

SHAWNIGAN LUMBER UNDER NEW OWNERSHIP

An 87-year-old Victoria lumber firm has changed hands for the second time in three years.

Shawnigan Lumber Supplies, Ltd., began operating this week under direction of Michael Jiggins, president; C. A. Wanless, vice-president, and Les Crutchlow, secretary.

They bought the firm on Government from Kelly Dickson and Doug Glynn, who bought from the group that had controlled the firm from 1935 to 1964. Fred Hawes was one of these, who remained as managing director until the 1964 sale.

All three of the new owners are well connected in the lumber and building supplies industry in Victoria.

Mr. Jiggins was manager of Doman's Building Supply Centre and Mr. Crutchlow was his assistant. Mr. Wanless was sales manager at Cubbon Building Supplies.

Shawnigan Lake Lumber Co. was founded in 1880 by the Muncie family.

Blue chips were particularly strong, Du Pont advanced nearly 2 points despite a company prediction of lower third-quarter earnings. Eastman Kodak added about half a point.

Mail order-retails, electronics and oils were mostly higher. Steels, farm implements and airlines were lower.

McDonnell-Douglas, with a gain of nearly 3 points, appeared headed for the top of the day's most active list.

AT MONTREAL, several issues made moderate price swings in early afternoon trading and trimmed fractional morning losses.

McAllister Towing jumped one point to 12, still reacting to a takeover offer from Sogemines Ltd., and Denison advanced ¾ to 85, after hovering close to the 84 mark earlier this week. Analysts said the stock is still reacting to news of a 10-year contract to sell 21,000,000 pounds of uranium to Japan.

Fraser Co. dipped ¾ to 22 on what one analyst said were rumors that the Price Brow. takeover offer could fall through.

Laura Secord slid ¼ to 17, reacting to Salada Food's offer for a minimum of 50 per cent of the common stock at $17.15 a share.

Among speculative mines and oils on the Canadian market, Consolidated Manitoba jumped 37 cents to $1.60, and James Bay four cents to 90 cents on volume of 125,100 shares.

$300 MILLION PACT SIGNED

TOKYO (Reuters) — Mitsui Mining and Smelting Co. and Toho Zinc Co. representing a group of six Japanese non-ferrous metal smelters, have signed a formal contract worth about $300,000,000 to import zinc and lead concentrates from Canada on a long-term basis, a sopkesman for the group said today.

Under the contract with the Anvil Mining Co. of Canada, a joint U.S.-Canadian venture, the six Japanese smelters will be supplied with 130,000 tons of lead concentrates and 240,000 tons of zinc concentrates annually during a period of eight years beginning in 1969, he said.

Today I'm going to bow to a gale of requests — which in columnist's terms means two letters and a phone call — and deal out some more impressions of Montreal.

First, please note that the friendly, lively city in by the big river is by no means all Expo and glittering St. Catherine's Street, Place de Ville and the go-go joints that crowd "The Main".

There are also the parks; and of these, the one that family Montreal loves best is the tract that mounts to the summit of Ile Ste. Helene. The world fair surges to its very edge, but beyond, Expo might never have been.

We wandered into this preserve of green grass and welcome shade on a Sunday noon, found a spot at the foot of an elm and sat down to eat our box lunches. Instantly, a grey-uniformed attendant materialized. It was forbidden to picnic here, he told us, but we would find tables over there.

And so we did: acres of trestle tables, each spotlessly clean and — cause and effect, I suppose — flanked by its own trash basket.

We ate our lunch in a completely happy atmosphere of picnicking families, scampering squirrels, and the mellow chiming of the carillon atop the island's fortress-like water-tower.

Then, as we were about to leave, one of the park's mounted police came clip-clopping along a black-topped path.

Win raised her camera. The policemen reined his gleaming mount. Man and horse posed nobly for the length of a shutter-click, then continued their patrol.

It may interest you to know that this large park is also car and hoodlum-free. Cause and effect again?

In the back of the bus rolling down to Montreal from lovely Ottawa, the pack-toting Toronto boy on his wander year was engaged in fierce argument with a young French Canadian.

Their voices were raised, they were fighting another round of that still-unsettled Battle of the Plains, and it seemed that they must next minute come to blows.

The argument raged all the way down to the tangle of curving, looping concrete overpasses that cause bus-drivers to call the Ottawa-Montreal trip 'the spaghetti run.' There, both fell silent, but only for long enough to catch their breath.

"Well, said English Canadian, "I really enjoyed our talk." And the French Canadian, "Here is my address and phone number. If you get into any trouble within a hundred miles of Montreal, call me."

An exchange that the Separatistes might ponder equally with the Bulldog Club.

Preville is one of the swarm of pugnaciously independent communities that flourish almost in the shadow of downtown Montreal. About 300 families live there in neat brick or brick-and-frame houses, each with its well-tended lawn and garden.

Like the others, Preville has its own mayor and council, but being new and small, must still rely on its neighbor, St. Lambert, for rented fire and police protection.

I was walking with my Preville friend and host while he aired his handsome collie when we observed a cloud of dark smoke staining the blue sky.

We stopped to peer at it; and out to her lawn popped an incensed housewife.

She and my friend conversed briskly, each interchanging French and English as the thought demanded. It was an outrage, they agreed, that St. Lambert should have the impudence to burn its refuse so near the Preville border. Further, they decided that should someone get up a petition to council both would sign it.

All of which leads me to suspect that despite past, present and future alarms, Confederation may manage to survive.

Coroner Russ Inkster has ruled that a man who drowned at sea off Nanaimo Saturday fell overboard from his boat while intoxicated.

He was inquiring into the death of Andreas Schueller, 44, of Burnaby, who was dragged along by the boat for four hours before being pulled out of the water.

Schueller's wife Barbara and a friend, Elizabeth Austin of West Vancouver, tried to get him back in the boat but one of his feet was entagled in a line and he couldn't get aboard.

NO INQUEST

Mr. Inkster said he has decided it is not necessary to hold an inquest into the death.

He said an inquiry has shown that Schueller was responsible for his own death by not exercising the due care and attention expected of someone in charge of a boat.

Mr. Inkster cited two examples of this: Schueller's life jacket was not fully inflated and he had a blood alcohol content of .27 per cent.

The coroner concluded Schueller's death was "due to drowning as a result of falling overboard while in a state of intoxication."

ROUGH SEAS

He fell overboard off Entrance Island lighthouse. The women in the boat managed to slow it down and attracted the attention of a tug with an SOS message but the tug could not come alongside and help because of rough seas.

A Coast Guard cutter finally managed to take Schueller out of the sea. He was prounounced dead on arrival at Nanaimo General Hospital.

Marijuana Trafficker Jailed Year

Ricky Kardera, 18, of CFB Esquimalt, was sentenced in magistrate's court today to one year definite and one year indefinite for possession and trafficking of marijuana.

Kardera was charged Aug. 3 after police arrested him at the parking lot outside the main gate of the Esquimalt base.

The arrest had been arranged by fellow sailors who asked Kardera to obtain the "stuff" and then notified authorities.

Defence counsel Lloyd McKenzie made a strong plea that Kardera be placed on probation.

He said "of the drugs prohibited by the criminal code, marijuana is the least of them.

'SET UP'

"Many authorities believe liquor has just as deleterious effects as marijuana.

"The amount of marijuana involved is very insignificant. The thing was set up, it was not trafficking on any scale.

Counsel criticized the report of the probation officer, calling it "too negative."

He read the court a citation Kardera received a few months ago for saving a heart attack victim's life by mouth-to-mouth respiration until medical help arrived.

"Why was this incident not in the report?" he asked.

LAW 'AS IT IS'

Magistrate Ostler said he would not involve himself in the debate about the marijuana law.

"It is not for me to discuss the controversy which surrounds this drug. I can only uphold the law as it is."

The magistrate told the accused "my own inclination would be to give you probation, but I must consider the deterrent and the fact that this law is being increasingly broken."

Magistrate Ostler refered to the increase in the use of marijuana by young people as "alarming."

Thieves 'Clean Out' Laundromat

Thieves broke into four businesses in the Victoria area overnight.

Intruders forced their way into the Pink Elephant laundromat, 1441 Haultain St., and broke open 16 washing machines and a soap dispenser.

They stole an estimated $75, almost all in 25 cent pieces.

A cigarette machine was rifled by burglars who broke into Chef Antony's cafe at 312 Cook.

The Green Lantern Gift Shop, 1541 Fort St., was also entered, but nothing was taken.

At press time, police were investigating a fourth break-in at Jimmy Little's, 2017 Quadra St.

Mayor Chides Pair For 'Pushing' Centre

Fear of losing a proposed convention centre site was expressed to aldermen today by convention site chairman Ald. Percy Frampton.

But at the same meeting Mayor Hugh Stephen chided those who would "galvanize us into a decision" simply for the sake of getting a centre established in Victoria.

He reiterated to council finance committee essentially what he told Victoria Chamber of Commerce directors August 11, that full consideration must be given to alternative sites before a decision is taken.

"I deplore the feeling 'gotta get it done, gotta get it done. Doesn't matter whether it's a wrong decision. Gotta get it done.' That's wrong.

"We shouldn't be galvanized into a decision," the mayor said.

ALTERNATE PLANS

Ald. Frampton said Oxford Leasehold, a firm interested in a $14 to $17-million development opposite city hall, was considering alternate plans that might exclude a convention centre.

"It bothers me that we may lose this site," he told the committee.

But Oxford representatives will be in Victoria for another meeting with the alderman's committee early next week, he said, and a report will be made to council Thursday.

RESENTS SUGGESTION

The mayor resented a suggestion by Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow that the committee studying convention centre proposals was not acting to keep abreast of various alternatives.

City manager Dennis Young remarked, "We're not doing nothing."

"I'm 14 years on council and I don't know anything about what's going on," Ald. Edgelow complained. He said he was getting pressure from businessmen for more action.

"This is ridiculous," Mayor Stephen said.

"You know there is an urban renewal study; that's all I know," he said, referring to a proposed urban redevelopment project to include a convention centre on the Inner Harbor.

LOST 'OTHER TWO'

He made clear that until the urban renewal study is completed council could not cinsider a final site for the convention centre.

FRIENDLY WORD FOR ALL

Despite the nearly two-hour task of shaking 2,000 hands at a rally of cubs and scouts at the Bay Street Armories Wednesday night, Sir Charles was fresh and cheerful as he moved among the boys — most of them in wheelchairs or on crutches — and talked to each one.

He had a bright-eyed smile and friendly word as he shook each boy's hand in the traditional left-handed manner. They were in uniform for the occasion.

Sir Charles kept the boys entertained with remarks about his travels and he also studied some of their books with them.

One of the boys said he was glad to see the Chief Scout "because we got out of school."

After talking to the cubs for half an hour, Sir Charles walked outside with them to look at flower beds that the boys tend as part of their work towards proficiency badges.

He was accompanied on the visit by Greater Victoria region scout officials and his aide, Peter Cooke, Commonwealth secretary from the Scout Association offices in London.

Later in the morning Sir Charles visited City Hall. He was guest at a luncheon hosted by the Saltire Society at Holyrood House before leaving for Vancouver.

From there he will continue on his five-week tour of Canada, going to the east coast and finishing at Ottawa.

"HEY! HE LIKES THE SAME BOOKS WE DO," is the reaction of Clifford, Michael and Miles, Cubs of the Solarium Pack, to the visit of Chief Scout Sir Charles MacLean today. (Times photo.)

Head-On Collision Kills City Salesman

Vehicle On Wrong Side of Road

A 24-year-old Victoria man was killed in a head-on collision on a road southwest of Nanaimo Wednesday.

Dead is Charles Hayward (Ian) Butt. He had been working as the Port Alberni manager of a vacuum cleaner company.

He was apparently on his way to MacKay Lake to do some fishing between business appointments when the accident occurred.

Nanaimo RCMP said Butt's car went round a curve on the wrong side of the road. It was raining and the road was wet at the time.

A B.C. Telephone truck was going in the opposite direction on the curve and swerved to the left to avoid Butt's car just at the time when Butt pulled back into his own lane.

The driver of the truck, Roderick McDowell of Duncan, suffered a facial cut but was treated in hospital for shock.

Police said it is unlikely there will be an inquest into the accident.

Butt is survived by his wife Anne; his mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Hayward Butt, 1116 Colville; his grandmother, Mrs. Mary A. Butt, 1179 Esquimalt; and an uncle, R. S. Butt of Victoria.

Magistrate To Set Bail At $10,000

Magistrate Ostler will set bail at $10,000 Tuesday when he proposes to commit Leslie Millin, -55, of Vancouver, for trial on fraud charges.

Millin, said to be an ordained Baptist minister, is charged with three counts of fraud arising out of the multi-million dollar Chateau Victoria development.

The project was to provide suites and recreational facilities for older people on property near Royal Roads. Construction never started.

Allen Smith, a consulting engineer and vice-president of BHP Investments Ltd., the principal firm involved, was the final crown witness at the hearing. He testified a combined bid from two companies to build the entire complex was $5,800,000. A second bid submitted later to build only part of the scheme was $2,900,000.

Neither bid was accepted.

Rhodes Scholar Applications Close This Month

Male students, preferably in their third or final year of university work, unmarried and between 18 and 24 are eligible. Application forms and particulars may be obtained from university registrars or from Michael Brown, 7th floor, 602 West Hastings St. in Vancouver.

Ask The Times

Q. What do the words Britain and Britannica mean? M.C.

A. According to Shipley's dictionary of word origins, Britain comes from the Celtic word Brython which means tattooed. Britannica comes from the French Britannique which is the adjectival form of Britain.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

No Sign Of Break In Walkout

Meanwhile 35 workmen left their jobs Wednesday at the Van Isle Moulding and Millwork Ltd. plant at 5117 El Monte in Saanich.

In the BCFP dispute, efficiency experts brought in by the company from the U.S., are reported by labor spokesmen to be the cause of workers' dissatisfaction. (See story Page 13).

A spokesman for mill manager T. D. R. Humphreys said at noon today there has been no communication from workers.

In the unrelated dispute, Peter Brotherson, president of Van-Isle, said he received verbal notice 48 hours befor his men walked off at the 7 a.m. shift, leaving only key personnel at the plant east of Elk Lake.

The workers, members of the International Woodowrkers of America, wanted "more money and several other things," said the president.

"There are a few peculiarities going on which I can't discuss right now," he said this morning. No approach had been made by employees to him.

The last written contract expired in June last year and since then Van-Isle has been paying its men according to terms drawn up on an annual basis by Forest Industrial Relations and agreed to by the union.

Book Rental Money Taken

Text book rental money totaling $515.50 was taken from the safe of S. J. Willis Junior Secondary School Sept. 27.

The safe, in the school office, is kept locked after hours. It is open during school hours.

Police are investigating.

8 CARD OF THANKS

The gratitude in our hearts can never be fully expressed, but we want our friends, relatives and neighbors to know how much their kind words and expressions of sympathy have meant to us during our recent time of sorrow in the sad loss of our husband and father, William T. Moore. Special thanks to Canon J. Rogers.—Mrs. Anna Moore and Family.

9 IN MEMORIAM

DEY—In loving memory of my husband, Frank Charles Dey, who passed away in New Westminster Oct. 5, 1966.

Without you, grief's a leaden
weight,
A pendulum, hung where my heart
should be;
To tick away the lonely hours of
life,
Since death took you away from me.

—Ever remembered by his wife Edna.

DOBBIE—In loving memory of our dear Mom and Nana, Ethel Beatrice, who left us so suddenly Oct. 5, 1966.

God saw the road was getting rough
And the hills were hard to climb,
So he closed her weary eyelids
And whispered "Peace be thine."
And while she lies in peaceful
sleep
Her memory we will always keep.

—So sadly missed by her loving daughter Kay, son-in-law Red and family.

DOBBIE—In loving memory of our dear wife, mother and grandmother, Ethel Beatrice, who passed away Oct. 5, 1966.

Time speeds on, one year has passed
Since death its gloom, its shadow
cast
Within our home, where all
seemed bright,
And took from us a shining light.
We miss that light, and ever will,
Her vacant place there's none to fill.
Down here we mourn, but not in vain,
For up in heaven we will meet again.

—So sadly missed by her loving husband Alex and family.

BRIDGE LESSON

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Today's column is sort of a milestone in bridge terminology. We are showing an old play but are giving it a specific name which it should have received years ago.

A certain play by declarer is called the obligatory finesse because this particular finesse can win and can't lose. We are calling a certain defender's play the obligatory falsecard because it can win and can't lose.

♣ A 9 3 2

West	North	East	South
			1 N.T.
Pass	2 N.T.	Pass	3 N.T.
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead—♠ Q

South ducks the first spade but has to win the continuation. He can count seven tricks only but has chances for more in every suit except spades. The best chance is in hearts so South leads the deuce of hearts and finesses dummy's jack after West plays the five.

South can now count eight sure tricks. He plays out dummy's king of hearts and West must drop the queen. Since the jack has been played the queen and ten become equals but South knows that West holds the queen. He does not know who holds the ten.

Without the use of this obligatory falsecard by West, South would surely drop the queen later on and make his ninth trick. South might still drop the ten but he might not.

The play would continue with South leading a low diamond from dummy and ducking in his own hand. East's ten would hold the trick and East would lead another spade. Then South would lead a diamond to his ace and another diamond back to dummy's king. East would show out and the chances are that South would reason that since West was long in diamonds he would be short in hearts. Then West would finesse against the ten of hearts and West would take his ten of hearts plus enough tricks to set three no-trump.

FIRST RACE—Some interesting shuffling in post positions among the speed horses here. Ready Freddy moves inside; Coquahalla and Cocoa Silk go outside. Only Coquahalla seems dogged but with the other two pushing him early he could have his hands full. Western Shadow may be able to tuck in behind the leaders, waiting until they run themselves dizzy before making his thrust. My Madronna has a good late run but needs clear sailing. Conibhai has a look despite the outside . . . WESTERN SHADOW, My Madronna, Coquahalla.

SECOND RACE — Concise Answer may run out of excuses here. He's been all around the money but something always pops up ahead of him. His style demands stout navigating but he'll seldom find an easier spot. Lady of Kent came to life in her last and will be a better price than Concise Answer. The rest dont inspire much' confidence; Yansco, Takavich, Miss Mystic and Easy Anna have shown brief speed at times—very brief and infrequently . . . CONCISE ANSWER, Lady of Kent, Takavich.

THIRD RACE — Mister Hawk and El Tajo drew ideal posts for their getaway styles. The former has run porly on off tracks which contradicts the concept that Dark Hawk horses like mud. But he obviously prefers sprints and is stubborn. Serenade in Red goes either way—in front or from out of it — and should be tighter today. Inconnu and Short Circuit were Derby nominees and would probably appreciate the Derby distance more than this sprint. But they close crisply and the rider switch to Harris may be meaningful to Short Circuit's chances. Peace-Man steps up but he was beaten by a good one and has won more money than anything here . . . SHORT CIRCUIT, Peace-Man, Inconnu.

FOURTH RACE — If Parisienne Pixie can draw clear—as she might—the others will have to roll up their sleeves if they want the pot. Mobil Maid can also ramble but Frazier may have to use up a lot of fuel from the outside. Sikanni Chief should improve and is in good hands but meets tougher. Velvet Morn has had traffic problems but she can sizzle late. Dark Susan belongs. Jayle finished strongly and may be better than his form indicates. Chase trys everything, off his Aug. 5 sprint he's in business . . . PARISIENNE PIXIE, Velvet Morn, Sikanni Chief.

FIFTH RACE—It will be interesting to see who elects to go for the lead since most of these like to wait-and-see. Heather W is 1-2-1 and looks like the one to whip. Wonder Cross and Shadows Sake come from out of it; the latter may have needed her last and may be rougher today. Haigla made a bold move sprinting and then hung; his best puts him close. Jayleen is the mudlark but she's been sprinting. Fleet Brother didn't care for the slop; off his June 2 route try he's a possibility at a price . . . HEATHER W, Shadows Sake, Jayleen.

SIXTH RACE — Murrayville may open up on these but whether Phillips can coax him the distance is problematical. Hi-Ma-Dan sheds five pounds and seems to take a new lease on life at Sandown. Tuffins knocks hard in this class and hasn't been overraced. Grand Idea gets Harris but doesn't seem as keen as he was earlier. Royal Kimbo should like the going and the boy trys hard. Famous Bayboy is the local Silky Sullivan; he gets so far back you need high-powered lenses to find him. But his late run is something—and looks even better if the pace is staggering . . . HI-MA-DAN, Famous Bayboy, Tuffins.

SEVENTH RACE—Swan Lady loves the drippy going, the track and is quick away. Miss Cye C leaves the gate like a scared rabbit but doesn't seem partial to mud. Trusteen has met better and switches to Frazier who gets a lot of run out of them. Hay Billy can lay close and is all heart where it counts —near the finish. But Copper Prince may be the one to fear. Shields should be able to save ground and may come on when it matters. In a harem-scarum finish . . . COPPER PRINCE, Swan Lady, Hay Billy.

EIGHTH RACE—With a race over the track and no Murrayville here, Malheur Kitten may lead them home. Penuelo has early lick and has met better but there's no works shown and he hasn't had a race in a month. Baby Joe may be the most reliable and moves from the outside to the rail. Inner Guard and Speedy Session have some late run and it may be significant that Harris is staying with the former. Souzem is overdue. In a grab-bag . . . MALHEUR KITTEN, Baby Joe, Inner Guard.

ROYAL TRIP UNDER WAY

LONDON (CP) — Princess Margaret and Lord Snowdon flew to Canada today for a week's visit that will take them to Toronto and Montreal.

The trip is billed as a private visit. The princess toured Canada in 1958.

. . . KEY POLICY

What Sauve is saying, in effect, is that the cumbersome and dead-slow orderly progress of constitutional reform, is no longer enough.

At another level, the Sauve declaration is Ottawa's first constructive response to the Robarts Confederation of Tomorrow Conference, planned for Toronto in late November.

The format of constitutional negotiation suggested by Sauve is "a continuing committee of ministers from both the federal and provincial governments, meeting frequently and regularly, working on an agreed agenda."

Although he never makes the comparison, this sounds very much like the tax structure committee, set up at the federal-provincial conference in Quebec City in the winter of 1964.

NEGOTIABLE

The Sauve initiative is based on a new conviction adopted in recent days by the Pearson government: that if Canadian nationhood is to be saved, Ottawa must not appear to be grudging in its constitutional negotiations. Suddenly everything has become negotiable.

It was to help resolve this very situation that the Royal Commission on Bilingualism and Biculturalism was established in the spring of 1963. It is a matter of cold fury to the politicians who now have to deal with these problems, that more than four years and $8,000,000 later, the commission's recommendations are still no available.

The federal ministers from Quebec are determined to erase the image, held so long in their home province, that the central government is capable only of responding to the initiatives of others. For once, they are all working together instead of expending energy fighting each other.

TO PUSH VIEW

All of the French Canadian ministers in the federal cabinet — and it's an impressive roll call — Marchand, Trudeau, Sauve, Pepin, Chretien, Cote and Cadieux — are planning to take part in a concentrated series of speeches and appearances in Quebec over the next six months to push the federal point of view. The whole operation is being carefully coordinated by Marc Lalonde in the prime minister's office.

As Maurice Sauve said in his Quebec City speech: "The issue is survival. Survival of Canada as a country, and the survival of the culture of French Canada."

Soviet Arms

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union has offered to replace the arms Jordan and other Arab states lost in the six-day war with Israel last June, it was announced today.

The statement came in a joint communique issued after King Hussein of Jordan ended military aid talks and flew home. There was no immediate indication Hussin had accepted the offers during two days of talks with President Nikolai Podgorny and Defence Minister Andrei Grechko.

structure of the school system would be undermined by runaway inflation.

On the school year and better use of buildings, he had this to say:

"It is my view that we must find ways and means of ensuring a better and more complete use of school plants.

"I refer not only to buildings but to libraries and the very expensive equipment that we now use in our schools such as business machines and industrial education equipment.

"I see no reason why these should not be used in the evenings as well as throughout the day.

"Indeed, if the demand in a community exists, they should be available on an around-the-clock basis.

ANTIQUATED SYSTEM

"I believe that new developments in education have made the existing prodecure of 10 months of school and two months of summer holiday antiquated.

"In my view, school plants are too costly to be left vacant for one-sixth of the year.

"The traditional reasons for summer holidays rather than holidays at other times of the year are probably disappearing. In any case, the problem bears examination."

As a result, he said, an advisory committee is being set up by his department which would include teachers, trustees and parents for a full examination of the matter.

While these measures would help reduce costs through more effective use of buildings, Mr. Peterson emphasized that building costs must be curbed too by attacking the main sources of rapid increases — "customized" school plans and the jurisdictional gap which permits boards to launch programs without direct responsibility for finding the money.

PER PUPIL COSTS

He pointed out that the cost of building a classroom has risen from $22,000 to $33,000 in the past five years and that the per-pupil costs of school operation have skyrocketed again to $41.51 and $44.82 in the past two years after having been held down to $4.81 in 1960 and only $2.24 in 1961 when the government put strong pressure on school boards to apply brakes to their spending.

Although increases in labor and material costs have raised construction prices, greater productivity also has tended to offset those factors.

"What is adding mostly to costs is not these general factors but the special items that are demanded," he told the trustees who have ordered them.

"For example, there seems to be a general tendency to design schools that incorporate unproven experimental features."

When one baord introduces such a feature, others seem to copy for the sake of prestige, he suggested.

CUSTOM-BUILT

"Another tendency is to 'customize' buildings by introducing innovations which may be more aesthetically pleasing or architecturally interesting than educationally significant."

The study towards standardized construction is a direct result of these tendencies, he revealed.

"The sale of debentures for non-shareable expenditures by the school district capital financing authority has been discontinued; the authority limiting its bond sales to provide, for essential, and therefore shareable projects at this time.

"Approval for non-shareable expenditures will be given only with the proviso that the school board concerned arrange for the financing of them through the sale of school district debentures without any provincial guarantee."

On the rising costs of school operating budgets, Mr. Peterson emphasized:

"We cannot justify the annual increases in the cost of education each pupil which have occurred in the past two years."

He said the rate rose twenty-told in the past two years and are not warranted.

"The taxpayer has every right to question such increases and ask if, in actual fact, maximum value is being obtained for every school dollar spent," he said.

'HASN'T WORKED'

He said it has been a government objective to give school boards as much financial autonomy as possible while providing as much provincial grants as possible but implied it hasn't worked too well.

He said school boards are the only government level "where the preparation of the budget is divorced from the revenue process.

"Understandably, therefore, there is less restraint to hold budgetted expenditures within the limits of the revenue funds available.

He concluded this portion of his speech with the warning that while current approval powers of municipal councils over school budgets may be withdrawn as trustees have frequently demanded:

"Elimination of this provision will probably mean that each board will have to shoulder the responsibility for setting the local school mill rate."

SERIOUS IMPLICATIONS

Mr. Peterson said the current quarrel with Ottawa over sudden termination last year of its sharing in vocational and technical school costs "has not only serious financial but also education implications."

He said the federal cutoff has thrown the whole vocational program into uncertainty but the B.C. government has decided to continue its same financial support to school district vocational programs in the hope of a new agreement being worked out shortly.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Mainly cloudy skies held temperatures to around 50 above even in the Cariboo Wednesday night. The only exception was the Kootenays where clearing allowed temperatures there to drop to freezing early this morning. The storm off the B.C. coast for the past several days is weakening and rising pressures are expected to bring clearing skies to southern B.C. later today and to northern areas Friday. Temperatures also will show a gradual upward trend Friday.

SHAWNIGAN LUMBER UNDER NEW OWNERSHIP

An 87-year-old Victoria lumber firm has changed hands for the second time in three years.

Shawnigan Lumber Supplies, Ltd., began operating this week under direction of Michael Jiggins, president; C. A. Wanless, vice-president, and Les Crutchlow, secretary.

They bought the firm on Government from Kelly Dickson and Doug Glynn, who bought from the group that had controlled the firm from 1935 to 1964. Fred Hawes was one of these, who remained as managing director until the 1964 sale.

All three of the new owners are well connected in the lumber and building supplies industry in Victoria.

Mr. Jiggins was manager of Doman's Building Supply Centre and Mr. Crutchlow was his assistant. Mr. Wanless was sales manager at Cubbon Building Supplies.

Shawnigan Lake Lumber Co. was founded in 1880 by the Muncie family.

Canon Denounces Verdict, Says Bishops Knew of Cult

RARE GOLDEN EDITION of old London Sun now rests in city archives, a gift to Mayor Hugh Stephen as commemoration of Queen Victoria's coronation, June 28, 1838. Gilt ink was used for type and reproduction of a large medallion bearing the queen's head appears on the front page. The mayor, who received the paper from G. H. Ghewy, formerly of Toronto, felt the city archives should make a place for it. Mounted and framed the paper will hang near the queen's portrait in the council chamber anteroom.

TORONTO (CP) — Canon G. Moore Smith Wednesday denounced the verdict of a coroner's jury that found he and his wife Violet negligent in the death of an 18-year-old girl.

The jury ruled that Canon and Mrs. Smith neglected their ward, Katherine Globe, as she lay dying of meningitis in a bedroom at St. Matthias' Anglican Church rectory June 20 and 21.

Canon Smith, in a statement issued by his lawyers, charged the bishops of the Anglican church had known about the practices of a spirit healing group at the church for two years and "had done nothing about it."

His lawyer, Gerald M. Soloway, charged there was an ecclesiastical war being fought between Canon Smith and the bishops. He said the inquest became the battlefield for an issue which should have been fought in an ecclesiastical court.

Later in the day, the Anglican bishop of Toronto said he is taking immediate action to insure that practices of spirit healing at the church are ended.

Rt. Rev. George Snell said he will meet with Canon Smith today.

He said the spirit healing group at the church was not known to the bishops until a short time before Miss Globe's death at which time "a strong warning was given by me to Canon Smith."

"While the inquest was being conducted, it was not possible for me to take any action other than to forbid the meeting of the group, which I did on Aug. 14. Now that the inquest is concluded, I am taking immediate action to insure that the practices disclosed at the inquest do not continue."

In breaking down its verdict, the coroner's jury recommended that further investigations be held into the faith healing group at St. Mathias' and into other similar groups.

The jury suggested further investigation was necessary to "prevent a comparable situation occurring in the future."

Dr. H. B. Cotnam, Ontario supervising coroner, who conducted the inquest, said there was nothing in the evidence to indicate that a similar death could not occur at the church again.

JUDGMENT CLOUDED

The jury said the Smith's judgment was so clouded by religious beliefs that they failed to provide adequate care for the dying girl or call a doctor. They said that the girl — who had moaned on her death bed for two days—was obviously in need of medical attention.

Crown Attorney Lloyd Graburn said neither of the Smiths will be charged in a criminal court. "This is the end of it."

Dr. Cotnam, in his charge to the jury, said of Miss Globe that "no one checked her basic needs—those of fluids, food, bowels or even clean bed clothing.

"The group professes the spirit of teaching all love and attention but the fact is nobody went near her for four hours no matter what they thought was wrong with her."

Medical evidence showed Miss Globe had suffered from a combination of severe ear infection, meningitis and a brain abcess.

Attorney - General Arthur Wishart, speaking from his Sault Ste. Marie home, said he is requesting a transcript of the inquest.

"I want to find out exactly what went on. But I don't know if this is a situation where the attorney - general should step in and investigate religious groups. My impression would be that the jury meant for church authorities to investigate."

BABY DEATH PROBE

Inquest Told Story Of Indian Hardship

LETHBRIDGE, Alta. (CP)—A story of hardship and deprivation contributing to the death of a baby on the nearby Peigan Indian reserve was unfolded here Tuesday before a six-man coroners' jury.

The jury, after hearing evidence from about 20 persons in its inquest into the May 12 death of 14-month-old Rommana Mae Crow Shoe, brought down a series of major recommendations designed to improve welfare and other social services on the reserve.

The jury concluded that Rommana Mae died from the effects of malnutrition and dysentery and suggested that the surviving children of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Crow Shoe be taken from the parents immediately and made wards of the government until conditions in the home are improved.

Bernadette Crow Shoe, 16, oldest of the couple's children, told the inquiry that the family often was short of food and fuel—had had no electrical appliances since power was cutoff as long ago as 1962 for non-payment of tolls, and had so little in the way of eating utensils that family members had to take turns at the table.

SEVEN TO A BED

She said the house had no screens and is always full of flies in the summer. Seven children slept fully clothed in one bed, with only a single blanket, and the oldest boy slept on the floor.

Bernadette said conditions in the home had not improved since Rommana Mae's death. She said she had seen the Indian agent in charge of welfare on the reserve at her home only once.

The coroner's jury made the following recommendations:

—That a federal-provincial government commission be established to investigate welfare and social services on Indian reserves, and that immediate improvements be made in working relationships between federal and provincial welfare officials on reserves.

—That a qualified welfare officer and trained Indian personnel be employed to improve welfare services on the Peigan reserve.

—That Peigan parents and the band council accept more responsibility for the education of their children, and that an adult education program covering a variety of subjects be instituted on the reserve.

FEAR WHITES

Morris McDougal, chief of the Peigan band, said at the inquest that Indians are treated so badly by whites that they are afraid to associate with them and uneasy about bringing the Indian's problems to them.

Earlier in the inquiry Roger Dickson, Peigan reserve development officer, said under questioning that last year's budget allotted the reserve was inadequate compared with that given in previous years.

Mervyn Mattern of Lethbridge, assistant supervisor in Lethbridge for Indian affairs, testified there was one Indian agent working for the department on the reserve. In reply to a question, he admitted that this was inadequate.

He also said under questioning that welfare services offered by the Indian affairs department were totally inadequate to meet the needs of the Peigan reserve.

Ex-Magistrate Jailed On Theft Charges

HANEY, B.C. (CP)—A former magistrate was jailed for two years Tuesday after he pleaded guilty to four charges of theft and misuse of clients' money totalling $25,000 in this Fraser Valley community.

Sentence was pronounced by Magistrate A. M. Guinet of Chilliwack in the same courtroom where Theodore Krell, 45, used to preside when he was a magistrate in 1958.

Krell was disbarred by the B.C. Law Society in 1966.

October Sweet Peas Are Worth a Fling

By HILDA BEASTALL

Life becomes more interesting when we are willing to take a few calculated risks.

Hilda

The sowing of sweet peas in October is a gamble which repays the effort in nine years out of 10.

Sweet peas are a flower crop which likes to grow in cool and humid weather of early spring and be ready to bloom as the days and nights become warmer in May and June.

By making a sowing outdoors now, we can have an extensive root system built up over winter, and the milder days of February and March will see the vines begin to elongate.

Growth will be sturdy and able to withstand the rigors of spring weather.

First pickings of long-stemmed sweet peas can be had as early as Mother's Day from an October sowing outdoors.

The site needs to be sheltered from north and east, preferably on the south side of a building or fence.

Dig a trench 15 to 18 inches deep, making sure it will be well drained during heavy winter rains. Mix in at the bottom some stony rubble, broken brick or broken clay pots, when working with a heavy clay.

Over this put a good layer of well rotted compost or old manure. Top off with six to eight inches of good soil, leaving the trench depressed about three inches when finished.

Into this sow the sweet pea seeds about two inches deep if the soil is heavy, three inches or more if sandy or gravelly. Work a little soil around the plants as they grow. This will give protection and a deep cool root run.

Be sure to erect the string or netting for support before the plants are ready to climb.

Judgment Deferred on Hippie Court Bid

VANCOUVER (CP) — Judgment was deferred Wednesday on an application to the B.C. Supreme Court by the hippie newspaper Georgia Straight to have suspension of its business licence declared unlawful.

Mr. Justice Thomas Dohm was told by defence counsel John Laxton that publishers of the paper were not told why their licence was suspended by city licence inspector Milt Harrell and were not given an opportunity to state their case.

Harrell suspended the licence effective 12:01 a.m. Saturday after a complaint from Mayor Tom Campbell, who described the publication as "a filthy, perverted paper that should not be sold to our children."

Corporation counsel Russell Baker said any citizen in Vancouver had the right to put information before the licencing inspector.

"And if any citizen can do that, why can't the mayor?" he asked.

Baker said if the newspaper's appeal is upheld every licence inspector in B.C. would be unsure of his powers.

School Changes Coming

By JOHN MIKA
Times Legislative Reporter

Education Minister Leslie Peterson today revealed a massive shift in government policy towards school financing and administration is under way which shake things up even more than the Chant royal commission report did to classroom programs in 1960.

In a series of announcements and warnings during his 6,000-word speech to the annual B.C. School Trustees Association convention in Vancouver:

- He feels schools should be in operation on a year-round basis with some of their facilities — such as libraries, business machines and industrial training machines — available to the community on a round-the-clock basis if need be;
- To revamp the "antiquated" system of idle schools for two months each year. A wide-ranging study of the length of the school year, daily hours and holidays will be launched soon;
- A serious argument is under way with Ottawa over jurisdiction and financing of manpower training and the province is prepared to undertake the costs of going it alone in adult education if the quarrel can't be resolved;
- Henceforth all non-shareable costs in school referendums will have to be financed by school boards themselves floating loans directly on the money market — which would almost rule out any possibility of Greater Victoria School Board repeating last year's $742,000 referendum for several new schools which did not get departmental approval;

MILL RATES

- The government is considering making school trustees directly responsible for fixing school mill rates instead of municipal councils although one specially-devised tax notice and collection system would continue;
- A study will be made aimed at standardizing all school construction to cut building unit costs and if it comes up with an answer all other government departments may copy it for their building programs;
- The present system of teacher salary grants to school boards may be revised drastically;
- A study for wholesale changes to the teacher certification system is under way to enable the province to deal rationally with the need for mass importation of qualified teachers and self-improvement programs for native teachers as a method of meeting the needs of a galloping school population.

And studded throughout the speech were warnings that it is essential to reduce per-pupil costs or the whole financial

Analyst's Comments

By HAL MALONE

FIRST RACE—Some interesting shuffling in post positions among the speed horses here. Ready Freddy moves inside; Coquahalla and Cocoa Silk go outside. Only Coquahalla seems dogged but with the other two pushing him early he could have his hands full. Western Shadow may be able to tuck in behind the leaders, waiting until they run themselves dizzy before making his thrust. My Madronna has a good late run but needs clear sailing. Conibhai has a look despite the outside . . . WESTERN SHADOW, My Madronna, Coquahalla.

SECOND RACE — Concise Answer may run out of excuses here. He's been all around the money but something always pops up ahead of him. His style demands stout navigating but he'll seldom find an easier spot. Lady of Kent came to life in her last and will be a better price than Concise Answer. The rest dont inspire much' confidence; Yansco, Takavich, Miss Mystic and Easy Anna have shown brief speed at times—very brief and infrequently . . . CONCISE ANSWER, Lady of Kent, Takavich.

THIRD RACE — Mister Hawk and El Tajo drew ideal posts for their getaway styles. The former has run porly on off tracks which contradicts the concept that Dark Hawk horses like mud. But he obviously prefers sprints and is stubborn. Serenade in Red goes either way—in front or from out of it — and should be tighter today. Inconnu and Short Circuit were Derby nominees and would probably appreciate the Derby distance more than this sprint. But they close crisply and the rider switch to Harris may be meaningful to Short Circuit's chances. Peace-Man steps up but he was beaten by a good one and has won more money than anything here . . . SHORT CIRCUIT, Peace-Man, Inconnu.

FOURTH RACE — If Parisienne Pixie can draw clear—as she might—the others will have to roll up their sleeves if they want the pot. Mobil Maid can also ramble but Frazier may have to use up a lot of fuel from the outside. Sikanni Chief should improve and is in good hands but meets tougher. Velvet Morn has had traffic problems but she can sizzle late. Dark Susan belongs. Jayie finished strongly and may be better than his form indicates. Chase trys everything, off his Aug. 5 sprint he's in business . . . PARISIENNE PIXIE, Velvet Morn, Sikanni Chief.

FIFTH RACE—It will be interesting to see who elects to go for the lead since most of these like to wait-and-see. Heather W is 1-2-1 and looks like the one to whip. Wonder Cross and Shadows Sake come from out of it; the latter may have needed her last and may be rougher today. Haigla made a bold move sprinting and then hung; his best puts him close. Jayleen is the mudlark but she's been sprinting. Fleet Brother didn't care for the slop; off his June 2 route try he's a possibility at a price . . . HEATHER W, Shadows Sake, Jayleen.

SIXTH RACE — Murrayville may open up on these but whether Phillips can coax him the distance is problematical. Hi-Ma-Dan sheds five pounds and seems to take a new lease on life at Sandown. Tuffins knocks hard in this class and hasn't been overraced. Grand Idea gets Harris but doesn't seem as keen as he was earlier. Royal Kimbo should like the going and the boy trys hard. Famous Bayboy is the local Silky Sullivan; he gets so far back you need high-powered lenses to find him. But his late run is something—and looks even better if the pace is staggering . . . HI-MA-DAN, Famous Bayboy, Tuffins.

SEVENTH RACE—Swan Lady loves the drippy going, the track and is quick away. Miss Cye C leaves the gate like a scared rabbit but doesn't seem partial to mud. Trusteen has met better and switches to Frazier who gets a lot of run out of them. Hay Billy can lay close and is all heart where it counts —near the finish. But Copper Prince may be the one to fear. Shields should be able to save ground and may come on when it matters. In a harem-scarum finish . . . COPPER PRINCE, Swan Lady, Hay Billy.

EIGHTH RACE—With a race over the track and no Murrayville here, Malheur Kitten may lead them home. Penuelo has early lick and has met better but there's no works shown and he hasn't had a race in a month. Baby Joe may be the most reliable and moves from the outside to the rail. Inner Guard and Speedy Session have some late run and it may be significant that Harris is staying with the former. Souzem is overdue. In a grab-bag . . . MALHEUR KITTEN, Baby Joe, Inner Guard.

SAVA, Fiji (Reuters) — The British cable repair ship Retriever tonight landed about 56 passengers from an Australian freighter which struck a reef southwest of Suva.

The 7,459-ton Lakemba, bound from Vancouver to Sydney, Australia, hit a coral reef off the small island of Vatulele, 45 miles from Suva. No one was hurt.

MASKED RAIDERS GET $1.5 MILLION

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Five armed bandits raided the palatial seaside estate of Willis Harrington du Pont early today, bound the family and servants, and looted the house of a $1,500,000 Russian coin collection and some $34,000 worth of jewelry and cash.

Du Pont said the bandits told him they would hold the rare coin collection for $200,000 ransom. He at first estimated the worth of the collection at $500,000 but later increased the value,

Du Pont, 31, said the bandits entered the two-storey house shortly after midnight. "They woke us up, tied us and started ransacking the house," he said. "I think they were basically after cash."

OPENED SAFE

Du Pont said the robbers discovered his coin collection after they found 1,000 silver dollars in his safe, which he said he opened for them after being threatened.

Du Pont told police he and his family were herded into an upsairs bedroom while the masked bandits rummaged the house.

Police said du Pont, his wife Miren, 29, and their four-year-old son, Victor, were upstairs when the bandits entered the mansion, which has nine bedrooms and 19 baths. The robbers bound the family and brought in the butler, Hans Hein, 55, and his wife, Rosa, 50.

The bandits left a $10,000 bill on the floor of the bedroom.

Du Pont said it had been in the safe with the silver dollars and he didn't know if the bandits left it through carelessness or because it would be hard to cash.

During their looting of the huge estate which fronts on Biscayne Bay in the Coconut Grove area, the bandits took a roast from a refrigerator and consumed it, along with soft drinks.

Sharp Cutback Hint Scored by Bonner

Attorney-General Robert Bonner said Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp's proposed cutbacks admit the government has made a shambles of the economy.

Mr. Bonner added bitterly that it was largely the fault of Liberal partisanship which was being repeated by Mr. Sharp.

"It's evident that the financial policies of the national government have been in gross error for the past two or three years," he said in commenting on Mr. Sharp's Commons speech.

He recalled his complaint three years ago that the national medicare plan was revealed at a federal-provincial conference in 1963 "as nothing but window dressing for the Liberal (election) compaign that was impending.

'SHOCKING'

"The most shocking statement, if Mr. Sharp has been correctly reported, is that although they now admit it was a mistake, they are nevertheless making an exception for Saskatchewan—which just happens to be in the midst of an election where the Liberal party has troubles of its own."

(He was referring to Mr. Sharp's statement that if there is a delay in implementing the national medicare plan next year, Saskatchewan would still be entitled to the appropriate federal sharing of costs because it already has a suitable medicare plan in operation.)

"This statement demonstrates again that the Liberals have national policies which have been selectively applied, but seldom to this province's benefit," Mr. Bonner said.

"If the public of this province is not sufficiently alive to our (Socred Cabinet) view in this regard, then I suppose they have the democratic right to suffer further at the hands of this Ottawa administration."

"Three years ago I deplored Dominion-provincial conferences which have been called for the sake of Liberal party propaganda.

"That was the case in that (1963) conference and it is the case in the present proposed constitutional conference as well."

However, Mr. Bonner hinted that the B.C. government will respond to Mr. Sharp's hint he would be happy to see the pro-

Yastrzemski Hits Two HRs

BOSTON (AP)—Carl Yastrzemski banged out two home runs today as Boston defeated St. Louis 5-0 to square the world series at one game each.

Red Sox pitcher Jim Lonborg was robbed of a no-hitter when Cardinal Julian Javier hit a double in the eighth inning.

Lonborg, who barely escaped injury when mobbed by fans after winning the clincher from Minnesota Twins Sunday, threatened to match Yankee Don Larsen's perfect game of 1956 as he retired 19 straight Cards before he walked Curt Flood on a 3-2 pitch with one out in the seventh.

Javier ruined the 24-year-old right-hander's bid for a no-hitter when he doubled to the left field corner on the first pitch with two out.

JOINS THREE OTHERS

Lonborg, a handsome Stanford graduate, thus became the fourth pitcher to throw a one-hitter in Series history. The others were Ed Reulbach for Chicago Cubs in 1906 against Chicago White Sox, Claude Passeau for the Cubs in 1945 against Detroit Tigers and Floyd Bevens for New York Yankees in 1949 against Brooklyn.

Yastrzemski's extra 20-minute batting practice after Wednesday's opening defeat and hitless frustration, paid off with two homers, a single and four runs batted in. He had taken no batting practice Thursday to save himself for real action.

Powerful No. 6, the man who carried the Red Sox on his back to the pennant and everybody's choice for most valuable player honors, slammed a 360-foot homer into the sixth row of the right field stands in the fourth, breaking up a scoreless battle between Lonborg and Dick Hughes.

HITS HOMER

Coming up in the seventh inning after Jose Tartabull walked and Dalton Jones singled, Yastrzemski slammed a pitch by left-handed Joe Hoerner into the centre field bleachers. It was a tape measure job, landing about six or seven rows up among the frantic Red Sox fans about 430 feet from the plate.

A sunny day with the temperatures in the 80s turned into a dull, cloudy afternoon as the game wore on. They turned on the lights in the seventh and rain brought out umbrellas and raincoats as they went down the stretch with Lonborg's dramatic pitching.

The drama piled up as Lonborg whirled through the Cardinal batting order, once, twice, and into the third time before he finally walked Flood on a low, outside pitch on 3-2. It was the 73rd pitch of the 95 he threw.

Time after time the Red Sox infield had given him a helping hand. Jerry Adair at second base made a marvelous play on a ball hit by Lou Brock in the fourth with a back-handed stop and perfect throw.

MADE RECOVERY

Rico Petrocelli fumbled Flood's blast for an instant in the same fourth inning and then tossed him out. It was Petrocelli, the little shortstop, who did it again in the sixth on Dal Maxvill's hopper behind second base and it was Rico to the rescue again for a fine play on Orlando Cepeda's smash behind second for a force play on Flood to end the seventh.

Each out was greeted with a new roar from the 35,188 fans who had become Red Sox believers during their exciting pennant drive. When Tim McCarver bounced out to Adair to open the eighth, the cheer cut through the damp air. When Petrocelli tossed out Mike Shannon for the second out, there was a deafening roar.

But when Javier sliced a Lonborg pitch to the left field corner for a double that ended the no-hit bid, there was a gasp. Then they cheered again and gave him an ovation when he came to the plate to bat starting the ninth.

POLICE ON HAND

Extra police had been ordered to the dugout area to avoid repetition of the wild mob scene that followed Lonborg's Sunday effort. There was no trouble this time although a knot of fans appeared around the 22-game winner when he bowed out of the dugout for a moment.

Yaz and Lonborg simply took matters into their own hands this day. The Sox added another run off Hughes in the sixth when he was driven to cover on two walks and an error by Shannon on Jerry Adair's smash off his chest.

Ron Willis replaced Hughes and was pitching when Petrocelli drove in George Scott with a long sacrifice fly to Flood in deep centre. The run, of course, was charged to Hughes, the 16-6 performer in regular season.

In the seventh Willis ran into a wild streak. Jose Tartabull walked and Jones singled past Shannon to left. With the rain coming down quite hard, Red Schoendienst went to his bullpen and brought in a southpaw pitcher Joe Hoernor to face the left-handed batting Yaz.

It didn't work. Yaz went to 2-2 and then drove the ball deep into the centre field bleachers, driving in Tartabull and Jones ahead of him.

HAD BLISTER

Word from the clubhouse was that Lonborg had a little blister on his right thumb that developed in the seventh inning. Dick Williams, the manager, said the blister bothered his breaking ball and curve but never reached the point where he was thinking of taking him out.

"Pressure?," said Williams in answer to a question. "No, this was fun. You should have been there the last half of the season to see what pressure is."

Williams said he will pitch Gary Bell Saturday in St. Louis against the Cards' Nelson Briles after Friday's off day for travel.

"It will be Jose Santiago (Wendesday loser) in the Sunday game," said Williams. "And then Lonborg will wrap it up Monday."

The rain never stopped play but Lonborg had some long innings sitting in the dugout, while the Cards changed pitchers and the Red Sox scored runs. It took about 17 minutes to play the sixth inning and 24 minutes to complete the seventh with Lonborg still hanging onto a possible no-hitter.

RUTH HAS RECORD

It was the 20th time in Series play that one man has hit two home runs. The record is held by Babe Ruth, who hit three in 1926 and three again in 1928.

All through the long afternoon while Lonborg still was working on a perfect game, his pitching coach, Sal Maglie, had to be thinking of the day he was on the losing side of a perfect game against Larsen at Yankee Stadium in 1956. Sal lost that one 2-0.

'MOMENTOUS STEP'

Key Policy Shift Begins Real Constitution Reform

By PETER NEWMAN

OTTAWA — The long painful process of fundamentally reworking Canada's constitution — the legal framework within which we live and govern ourselves — has begun in earnest.

Confirmation of this momentous step came today in a service club speech delivered in Quebec City by Maurice Sauve, the federal minister of forestry and one of Quebec's senior representatives in the federal cabinet.

Newman

In his speech, which was read and approved beforehand both by Prime Minister Pearson and Justice Minister Trudeau, Sauve invited the provinces to open all of their constitutional problems to negotiation with Ottawa "even, if desired, the most sensitive such as the future status of Quebec in the Canadian Confederation."

What makes Sauve's speech so important is that it's a marked departure from Ottawa's previous staunchly held position that constitutional changes should proceed in orderly progression from the relatively uncomplicated matter of winning approval for provincial adoption of a bill of rights, to the more fundamental questions of Canada's future existence.

Now, accorddin to Sauve, there no longer are any "constitutional subjects which can be declared axiomatically beyond the bounds of discussion."

He came back to this point over and over again in his speech ("It is not the policy of the federal government to place any restrictions on the extent or subject matter of a constitutional conference"). He even attacked the British North America Act as being "in many ways old-fashioned, misleading, ambiguous and incomplete."

Only a month ago, in Quebec City during a press conference that followed his address to the Canadian Bar Association, Justice Minister Trudeau declared that Ottawa was not prepared to negotiate the question of the fundamental relationship between Quebec and the rest of the country.

The Sauve speech contradicts none of Trudeau's contentions, but it takes the great Confederation debate considerably closer to the moment of truth. What Sauve is saying, in effect, is that the cumbersome and dead-slow orderly progress of constitutional reform, is no longer enough.

At another level, the Sauve declaration is Ottawa's first constructive response to the Robarts Confederation of Tomorrow Conference, planned for Toronto in late November.

The format of constitutional negotiation suggested by Sauve is "a continuing committee of ministers from both the federal and provincial governments, meeting frequently and regularly, working on an agreed agenda."

Although he never makes the comparison, this sounds very much like the tax structure committee, set up at the federal-provincial conference in Quebec City in the winter of 1964.

NEGOTIABLE

The Sauve initiative is based on a new conviction adopted in recent days by the Pearson government: that if Canadian nationhood is to be saved, Ottawa must not appear to be grudging in its constitutional negotiations. Suddenly everything has become negotiable.

It was to help resolve this very situation that the Royal Commission on Bilingualism and Biculturalism was established in the spring of 1963. It is a matter of cold fury to the politicians who now have to deal with these problems, that more than four years and $8,000,000 later, the commission's recommendations are still no available.

The federal ministers from Quebec are determined to erase the image, held so long in their home province, that the central government is capable only of responding to the initiatives of others. For once, they are all working together instead of expending energy fighting each other.

TO PUSH VIEW

All of the French Canadian ministers in the federal cabinet — and it's an impressive roll call — Marchand, Trudeau, Sauve, Pepin, Chretien, Cote and Cadieux — are planning to take part in a concentrated series of speeches and appearances in Quebec over the next six months to push the federal point of view. The whole operation is being carefully coordinated by Marc Lalonde in the prime minister's office.

As Maurice Sauve said in his Quebec City speech: "The issue is survival. Survival of Canada as a country, and the survival of the culture of French Canada."

Delay Medicare Or Pay—Sharp

By VICTOR J. MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Canadians were faced today with an appeal from Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp to work with the government to hold down costs and prices or face the alternative of a stiff rise in taxes.

Inflationary pressures are rapidly gaining momentum again in the country. Prices and costs are soaring. The federal government has embarked on a determined campaign to curb the increases. It needs the help of business, industry and labor to exercise "restraint," said the minister.

He bluntly warned that if inflationary pressures continue at their present rate the government will have to step in and forcibly bring about deflation. He implied that tax increases would be Ottawa's weapon.

Later in a television interview he acknowledged that higher taxes were the implication but said he hesitated to attach such a threat to his appeal for co-operation in combatting inflation.

MAJOR SPEECH

In a wide-ranging major speech on the economy of the country during the resumed budget debate Wednesday Mr. Sharp said if Canadians cannot collectively and individually restrain costs and prices a "cooling-off period" would be imposed.

The budget debate continued today. A vote on the New Democratic Party amendment, which constitutes a want-of-confidence vote, will take place tonight.

The minister outlined his proposed actions as follows

1—Holding down the budget deficit to his already forecast $740,000,000 and the government limiting its demands on the capital market.

2—Already slashed from the estimated expenditures of the governmental departments has been $650,000,000. The slashing will continue, he promised, to try to achieve balance in national accounts in 1968-69.

3—Ottawa will ask for the continued co-operation of the provinces and municipalities in the anti-inflation drive.

4—The federal government is appealing to industrial and labor organizations to organize a campaign to hold down increases in costs and prices, exercising restraint and curbing demands for wage raises.

TOUGH LANGUAGE

Mr. Sharp's appeal and warning to Canadians was couched in some of the toughest language he has used since assuming office. It drew jibes from opposition members that the government had been "free spending", but Mr. Sharp snapped back that it was slashing estimated expenditures. He urged the opposition to assist by not demanding bigger spending programs.

He revised upwards his forecast of growth in the Gross National Product from 6⅔ per cent to 7 per cent or slightly more. He admitted that this implied an undesirable increase in prices.

He forecast next year consumer demands will increase more strongly than this year. But government demands for goods and services would go up less this year.

Later in a TV interview talking about cutting back expenditures Mr. Sharp invited the provincial governments to postpone implementation of medicare. He acknowledged that if the provinces go ahead with medicare, scheduled for July 1, higher taxes will result.

"The problem that we face — and this is the first time in our history that we have ever faced any problem like this — are

Soviet Arms

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union has offered to replace the arms Jordan and other Arab states lost in the six-day war with Israel last June, it was announced today.

The statement came in a joint communique issued after King Hussein of Jordan ended military aid talks and flew home. There was no immediate indication Hussin had accepted the offers during two days of talks with President Nikolai Podgorny and Defence Minister Andrei Grechko.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Mainly cloudy skies held temperatures to around 50 above even in the Cariboo Wednesday night. The only exception was the Kootenays where clearing allowed temperatures there to drop to freezing early this morning. The storm off the B.C. coast for the past several days is weakening and rising pressures are expected to bring clearing skies to southern B.C. later today and to northern areas Friday. Temperatures also will show a gradual upward trend Friday.

... MAJOR CHANGES COMING

structure of the school system would be undermined by runaway inflation.

On the school year and better use of buildings, he had this to say:

"It is my view that we must find ways and means of ensuring a better and more complete use of school plants.

"I refer not only to buildings but to libraries and the very expensive equipment that we now use in our schools such as business machines and industrial education equipment.

"I see no reason why these should not be used in the evenings as well as throughout the day.

"Indeed, if the demand in a community exists, they should be available on an around-the-clock basis.

ANTIQUATED SYSTEM

"I believe that new developments in education have made the existing prodecure of 10 months of school and two months of summer holiday antiquated.

"In my view, school plants are too costly to be left vacant for one-sixth of the year.

"The traditional reasons for summer holidays rather than holidays at other times of the year are probably disappearing. In any case, the problem bears examination."

As a result, he said, an advisory committee is being set up by his department which would include teachers, trustees and parents for a full examination of the matter.

While these measures would help reduce costs through more effective use of buildings, Mr. Peterson emphasized that building costs must be curbed too by attacking the main sources of rapid increases — "customized" school plans and the jurisdictional gap which permits boards to launch programs without direct responsibility for finding the money.

PER PUPIL COSTS

He pointed out that the cost of building a classroom has risen from $22,000 to $33,000 in the past five years and that the per-pupil costs of school operation have skyrocketed again to $41.51 and $44.82 in the past two years after having been held down to $4.81 in 1960 and only $2.24 in 1961 when the government put strong pressure on school boards to apply brakes to their spending.

Although increases in labor and material costs have raised construction prices, greater productivity also has tended to offset those factors.

"What is adding mostly to costs is not these general factors but the special items that are demanded," he told the trustees who have ordered them.

"For example, there seems to be a general tendency to design schools that incorporate unproven experimental features."

When one baord introduces such a feature, others seem to copy for the sake of prestige, he suggested.

CUSTOM-BUILT

"Another tendency is to 'customize' buildings by introducing innovations which may be more aesthetically pleasing or architecturally interesting than educationally significant."

The study towards standardized construction is a direct result of these tendencies, he revealed.

"The sale of debentures for non-shareable expenditures by the school district capital financing authority has been discontinued; the authority limiting its bond sales to provide for essential, and therefore shareable projects at this time.

"Approval for non-shareable expenditures will be given only with the proviso that the school board concerned arrange for the financing of them through the sale of school district debentures without any provincial guarantee."

On the rising costs of school operating budgets, Mr. Peterson emphasized:

"We cannot justify the annual increases in the cost of education each pupil which have occurred in the past two years."

He said the rate rose twentytold in the past two years and are not warranted.

"The taxpayer has every right to question such increases and ask if, in actual fact, maximum value is being obtained for every school dollar spent," he said.

'HASN'T WORKED'

He said it has been a government objective to give school boards as much financial autonomy as possible while providing as much provincial grants as possible but implied it hasn't worked too well.

He said school boards are the only government level "where the preparation of the budget is divorced from the revenue process.

"Understandably, therefore, there is less restraint to hold budgetted expenditures, within the limits of the revenue funds available.

He concluded this portion of his speech with the warning that while current approval powers of municipal councils over school budgets may be withdrawn as trustees have frequently demanded:

"Elimination of this provision will probably mean that each board will have to shoulder the responsibility for setting the local school mill rate."

SERIOUS IMPLICATIONS

Mr. Peterson said the current quarrel with Ottawa over sudden termination last year of its sharing in vocational and technical school costs "has not only serious financial but also education implications."

He said the federal cutoff has thrown the whole vocational program into uncertainty but the B.C. government has decided to continue its same financial support to school district vocational programs in the hope of a new agreement being worked out shortly.

New Office Building

VANCOUVER (CP) — Westcoast Transmission Co. Ltd. Tuesday announced plans to construct a 15-storey office building in the West End of Vancouver. The building is expected to cost about $4,000,000.

CLOSE PLANTS BY WEEKEND

DETROIT (UPI)—The U.S.-wide strike against Ford Motor Co. will probably force the firm to shut down all of its Canadian operations by this weekend, the company announced.

The United Auto Workers' strike against the second largest American manufacturer was in its 27th day with no sign of progress or hint of settlement.

Trade Link Under Study

TOKYO (AP)—Canadian businessmen are considering joining the Pacific Businessmen's Association made up of Australia, New Zealand and Japan.

Shigeo Mizuno, president of the Fuji Iron Co. of Tokyo, reported this Wednesday after returning from Montreal, where he headed a Japanese delegation at last week's fourth Canadian-Japanese businessmen's conference.

Mizuno said he was satisfied with the outcome of the conference, which took up such issues as trade promotion, possibilities of joint ventures and increased exchange of personnel between Canada and Japan.

Mizuno said Canadian businessmen on the East Coast who had been only interested in trade with Europe now seem to look at the Pacific area with interest.

SHAWNIGAN LUMBER UNDER NEW OWNERSHIP

An 87-year-old Victoria lumber firm has changed hands for the second time in three years.

Shawnigan Lumber Supplies, Ltd., began operating this week under direction of Michael Jiggins, president; C. A. Wanless, vice-president, and Les Crutchlow, secretary.

They bought the firm or Government from Kelly Dickson and Doug Glynn, who bought from the group that had controlled the firm from 1935 to 1964. Fred Hawes was one of these, who remained as managing director until the 1964 sale.

All three of the new owners are well connected in the lumber and building supplies industry in Victoria.

Mr. Jiggins was manager of Doman's Building Supply Centre and Mr. Crutchlow was his assistant. Mr. Wanless was sales manager at Cubbon Building Supplies.

Shawnigan Lake Lumber Co. was founded in 1880 by the Muncie family.
